

Law in Action

The other day her employer accused Miss Hogg, a $45 a week clerk, of selling a $3.98 bathing suit and not ringing it up on the cash register. He and a detective took her to a back room, locked her in, and grilled her for an hour. She could not make phone calls. Finally she "confessed" to shoplifting which is a crime. Fired, she could not get a job. She later denied her confession.

She sued her employer, won a big reward. No employer can abuse an employee this much, the court held, he is not a super policeman. The law does not approve locking up workers and giving them the third degree. It could become false imprisonment even if a policeman did this.

AN OWNER can protect his property by detaining someone suspected of stealing it. The owner may stop a person for a short investigation.

But your privilege to protect your property cannot be abused lawfully. To prove the crime, as a rule, a suspected shoplifter must be caught leaving the store without paying. The store owner can make a reasonable investigation, and call upon the suspected person to help clear up the storeowner's claim. If the shoplifter is caught, the storekeeper should turn him over to the police, and certainly not take the law into his own hands.

Store owners must be certain that the suspect did in fact mean to steal the goods and did not forget to check them out or pay for them.

IN ONE CASE an elderly customer went to a grocery store and took several items off the shelf and "forgot" to pay for them. Outside the store the store manager seized him and before a small crowd accused him of stealing.

Even though the customer leaves a store without paying for the goods, this alone does not prove he meant to steal. He may have forgotten. In this case the store manager had abused his privilege of making a reasonable investigation.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Homeowners Cautioned on Gyp Artists

Fly-by-night contractors are getting ready for their annual fleecing of unwary homeowners who are in the market for new or resurfaced asphalt driveways, according to Kenneth B. Willson, president of the National Better Business Bureau.

He suggests that homeowners planning a driveway for a newly-built home or seeking to resurface an old driveway ravaged by time and winter should take a little care and time to investigate to avoid being victimized by unethical contractors.

Last reports to the National BBB indicate that thousands of homeowners have been victimized each spring by contractors who offer quick, on-the-spot bargain jobs, use inferior materials and equipment or simply take a big deposit from the homeowner and disappear.

Naturally, most paving contractors are reputable businessmen, but just as in any other field, the buyer who doesn't take the trouble to get the facts can wind up with big trouble, asserts Mr. Willson.

Report on Pollution Selected

Selection of the "White House Report on Air Pollution" as the study document for his Great Issues Study Program this month has been announced by Congressman Alphonzo Bell (R-Los Angeles).

A limited supply of the document has been obtained by his office, Bell said. Copies may be obtained by writing to William T. King, Field Representative, Congressional Field Office, Los Angeles 90024.

This Cart-Full of Groceries Cost $362 to $385 Less at Market Basket!

A few days ago we chose a customer at random, Mrs. Carolyn Rodgers of Long Beach, and asked her permission to make a list of her purchases which amounted to $31.79. Had she bought the same groceries at two other leading food chains she would have paid $3.62 or $3.85 more than what she paid at Market Basket. The totals from the other chains include specials as well as regular prices. No doubt you, too, can save as much if you shop Market Basket every week. And, thanks to Deep-Cut Discount Prices on EVERY item* every day, you don't have to limit your selections to certain items, brands or sizes to save money at Market Basket.

This is an actual photo of Mrs. Carolyn Rodgers' basket of groceries taken April 24, 1967.
