LUDLOW, ENGLAND — Along this part of England you find the ruins of gray-stone castles and fortified manor houses, built by English lords on commanding green hills to hold the border against the Welsh.

The Atlantic winds blow across Wales, hurrying white clouds through an immense blue sky. Once it was warlike country, armored men rode through the oaks and splashed across river fords.

In Ludlow town, I stayed in "The Feathers" at the top of the street. It's half-timbered inn, all polished copper and dark paneling and firelight inside. It opened in the year 1800 with a welcome sign nailed to the door:

"Fine new timbered building, open to receive guests. Dinner at noone, supper at five, served by comely and compliate wenches."

"Question: I am an attractive, single girl traveling solo to Europe this August-September. What places would I be able to meet interesting males abroad?"

I called a stewardess I know about this. She says: "The resort beaches of France or England or the Swiss lakes. Girls sitting at sidewalk cafes in the big cities usually are approached, but it's a poor beginning. Meeting on a beach has a decided advantage, and you can whether you want to go on from there."

"British and French men are the best companions. Italian men are most persistent—they follow you down the streets in Rome. But they think you should pay for the dinner. Yours and theirs."

"If she could put off vacation until winter, the Austrian and Swiss ski resorts are the very best. They are crowded with young men and women and everybody gets to know everybody else. All nationalities."

"We would like to drive into Mexico this summer but wonder if it will be too hot?"

There's no cool summer route into Mexico. But my choice would be the middle highways. The dry desert temperatures are better than the coastal route humidity. Say through El Paso and Chihuahua and down. At Guadalupe, take the Morelia highway toward Mexico City. In a few hours you are in cool, pine tree country.

No matter what highway you take, you've got three days of 90-plus degrees at midday before you reach the high plateaus which begin at Guadalupe. Don't try to beat it by night driving. Mexican roadworkers don't mark gravel piles and equipment left in the road. If you try to make it by fast driving, you may blow a tire or hit a wandering burro.

I make it by early, early morning starts. A long, cool lunch stop. An early afternoon halt. There's a lot to be said for the desert at dawn and through the morning.

"Would you give us a first-class hotel in Madrid?"

The Ritz, the Palace and the Castellana Hilton. The Ritz is de luxe. The Hilton most modern. I stay at the Palace. It has that European grand hotel feeling. The gilt bird cage elevator with the elegant uniformed attendant who gets off at each floor to announce the number.

"... presents for friends in Switzerland?"

I've been taking over long play records. Late Broadway shows. Big advantage is they pack flat and don't take up much room.

"Where do we get a transformer for hair dryer, etc?"

There are no all-purpose transformers for all things. Some travel irons are made that switch from 110 volts to

Former FBI Agent Plans Talk Here

Miss Julia Brown, author, lecturer, and for nine years an undercover agent for the FBI, will address a public audience at Torrance High School tonight at 8 p.m. in one of a series of 32 scheduled talks in Southern California.

Her address is sponsored by Truth About Civil Turmoil Committee in this area.

Miss Brown's subject will be "Martin Luther King and His Communist Affiliations."

While speaking in Southern California, Miss Brown is focusing on Martin Luther King, the acknowledged leader of the civil rights movement, who she claims is "one of the most effective workers in the country for communism and against the Negro."

The British 220. Same with razors. But I think all these things are more trouble than they're worth.

"With only one night in Paris, and the FIRST time, what restaurant, please?"

Go big. Make it Maxim's. (Reserve and check the dress. One night—I think Friday—is black tie.)

Impress Guests With This Treat

By VICKI PELLERITO

Senior Home Economist, Southern California Gas Co. Want to impress expected guests? It's easy—try this gourmet's delight—chicken breast au champagne.

With the help of the automatic top burner on your gas range it's easy as 1-2-3.

The automatic top burner makes every pan in your kitchen an automatic appliance. It's called the "Burner with a Brain" because of the sensing device in the center of the burner. This device measures the temperature of the pan and automatically turns the flame on and off to maintain perfect temperature. Foods can't burn, scorch, or boil over as long as you set the temperature. It's almost like having a magic genie. The instant, flexible gas flame is what makes the burner a joy.

CHICKEN BREASTS AU CHAMPAGNE

- chicken double breasts of 1/4 C. flour 1 tsp. seasoned salt 1/2 C. butter 1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced or 1 can (7 oz.) mushrooms, drained 1 C. milk 1/4 C. white champagne Remove skin and bones from double chicken breast-Place boned breasts between two pieces of waxed paper, sliced or 1 can (7 oz.) mushrooms, drained until slightly flattened. (Sauce grees and poured over chick- on breasts just before serv- ings guests.) Serves four.

utes on automatic top burner at 235 degrees. Add milk and simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until tender.

Remove chicken to a warm serving platter and keep warm in low temperature oven at 170 degrees.

Stir champagne into mixture skillet. Bring to boil on automatic top burner at 225 degrees and cook until sauce is reduced to a creamy consistency. If sauce becomes too thick, blend in milk. Spoon and pound with heavy cleaver sauce over chicken breasts just before serving.

Melt butter in a large alum-inum skillet on automatic top burner at 275 degrees. Add chicken breasts to hot time and held, on the butter and cook at 350 degrees. lightly browned on both sides, about 10 minutes. you keep foods warm up to Add sliced mushrooms four hours without further cooking—this wonderful feature also lets you warm plates, refresh baked foods and thaw foods quickly between temperatures of 140-300 degrees.

Your guests will be so impressed and you'll be so refreshed because you had a helper in the kitchen—your modern gas range.

Girls of Year Named at BMHS

Four girls, one from each class, were chosen at Bishop Montgomery High School to receive Girl of the Year awards.

The mothers of the winners presented their daughters with a single red rose. Winners were Kathy Bunic, freshman; Teri Brady, sophomore; Katie Roach, junior; and Diane Schroeder, senior.

Completes 25 Years

Arthur S. Long, 2269 N. Pine Circle, celebrated his 25th anniversary with Southern California Edison Co. in May and presented a diamond service pin graced with a ruby and two diamonds.

Long, division superintendent of the Coast Substations Division, joins more than 9 per cent of Edison's employees who have 25 or more years of service with the company.

A native of Loomis, Wash., Long was raised in Barstow and graduated from high school there. He began his Edison career as station attendant in Long Beach. He was promoted to division superintendent in 1963.

A kilowatt-hour of Edison electricity has gone down a third in price since 1939.*

So maybe you're not wild about the length of ladies' dresses today.

But, of course, you're using a lot more electricity now than you did then. The typical home uses electricity 40 different ways.

But at least electricity is heading in the right direction.

*The average cost of a kilowatt-hour of electricity to Edison's residential customers today is 34.4% lower than in 1939.
