

Kanine Korner

By Francis X. Lohmann

Most children love animals, and this affection can be used to teach an older child responsibility and at the same time give him great pleasure.

Let your child take over the care and feeding of the family dog. He will enjoy walking with his pet, and the exercise is good for both of them. Grooming is easy, with the many and varied new products available to keep Bowser clean and handsome. Spray shampoos and pesticides keep the dog's skin and hair free of dirt and parasites. They are easy to use, and most effective. About an hour a day should be spent in brushing and combing a long haired dog and half that time for the short-haired breeds. Any youngster can handle this job, but an adult should trim the nails and clean the ears and eyes because these are sensitive areas and take a lot of practice and sometimes strength.

TRAINING THE dog can be left to the youngster, too. There are numerous books on the subject, from the very basics to the more complicated advanced dog obedience. I can unhesitatingly recommend T.F.H. Publications headquartering at 245 Cornelson Avenue, Jersey City 2, New Jersey. I might also suggest that the youngster join one of the many dog obedience training clubs.

Instruction in dog training can be barrels of fun, and will create a closer tie between the child and his pet. It could possibly lead to an interest in the sport of dogs or a career in the handling and breeding of dogs or even in the veterinarian sciences. All sorts of wonderful opportunities are open to the child who takes an interest in his dog.

ARE DOBERMAN Pinschers too smart or too unaggressive to be police dogs? Several years ago Britain's police forces took several hundred of the dogs for training but now have only a dozen or so still in use.

The official explanation was the Dobermans aren't as aggressive as German Shepherds, now in favor with the cops. But Frank Pettit, superintendent of the National Canine Defense League, says the fact is the Dobermans are too smart for police work. They are so smart, he claims, that if they are sent out against an armed man they are likely to figure the odds aren't good — and quit the chase.

BOWSER BROWSINGS: — With deepest regrets I must report the recent death of Bart King who for many years bylined the popular Voice of Experience column for Dog World Magazine. Bart had many stars in his canine crown, among them the founding of the Cocker Spaniel Visitor over 25 years ago. With the passing of Bart King another bright light has been extinguished in the universe of dogs. . . . 40th Annual National Dog Week celebrates this year — Sept. 24-30. . . . At the close of judging in a popular breed at a recent dog show, a lady walked up to the judge and asked "Will you tell me the reason you placed my dog third in the class today?" The judge glanced at his judging book, looked up and replied — "Yes, I can, there were only three entries in your class. . . ."

VETERINARIANS strongly recommend Nylabone for the upkeep of your dog's teeth. This fantastic ham-scented pooch pacifier has reversed canine molar deterioration. Every dog should have one. Nylabones are available at your neighborhood pet shop. . . . If dogs could talk it would be bad manners in polite dog society to call a dog a man. . . . The Bichons Frises, a French creation, is my prediction for the next breed of dog to encompass AKC admission. . . . The Russians have put up a canine curtain! Not only is Bowser unwelcome in the Soviet Union but so are all other pets hailing from the United States. Ditto for Iceland where dogs are admitted only in rare cases. How about that?

BREED OF THE WEEK: — Gordon Setter. . . . The least known of the three Setter breeds is Scotland's handsome black and tan gift to dogdom, the Gordon Setter. The Gordon Setter takes his name from the third Duke of Gordon who did much to develop the breed at his castle kennels several hundred years ago. . . . I could name several "one man" breeds, but, without doubt this is one of the most striking examples. He is fanatically loyal to his master but displays a forceful hostility with equal zeal to any other dog who enters his domain. They grave the family circle and invariably pine for the one they love the most.

The Gordon Setter is jet black with tan markings on the muzzle, tips of each paw, the hindquarters and over each eyebrow. The coat is soft and shiny, longer on the ears, underbody and legs. His poundage ranges from 45 to 75 in height 23 to 27 inches.

In the Gordon Setter we find beauty, loyalty and intelligence blending into a
