WAILUA, KAUAI — The Honolulu papers have a classified section "Vacation Homes." Worth looking into if you have a family of four or more and plan a month in Hawaii. Here's a beach home on the island of Maui, 2 bedrooms, 2 baths: $500.

On Oahu (Honolulu and the lush hotel-restaurant section) the rents go out of sight — $1,000 to $2,000 a month for those Diamond Head or Kahala beach homes. But on the outer islands, you might do all right.

"Could three girls get a small, inexpensive house or apartment in Hawaii for three weeks?"

I guess you could get one

Papaya grows in the yard. They go to the beach all day and are doing fine.

"If we can get the $100 air fare to Hawaii, what are the chances of getting jobs for two boys in their 20s?"

The local boys tie up most of the summer jobs here. It's not impossible. But not easy. (One mainland boy here has a job in the pineapple cannery. Local boys grabbed the 11 summer lifesaver jobs at the beaches.)

Girls do better. Hotels and restaurants are advertising for waitresses. Waikiki babysitters get $1 to $1.25 an hour. There's quite a bit of daytime, beach babysitting, too.

"What could we expect in renting a house in Portugal for a month or two?"

Don't think they're set up for short-term rentals — I didn't see any. The Star Agency (American Express agents) in seaside Estoril outside Lisbon has listings.

I lucked into such a good inn (at $9.20 a day for two, meals and wine thrown in) that I didn't look. Houses several blocks off the beach are more pleasant. The gardens are beautiful, and you have the umbrella pines.

The beach at fashionable Estoril has become dirty. Full of picnic debris. Wine bottles and opened sardine cans. The swimming is OK. But after you've been on Pacific island beaches, you're spoiled for life.

There's a lot of villa renting in Spain, particularly on the Costa Brava. (Any house is a villa.) Usually they're set up to sleep six or more — rented mainly to British families. About $200 is the summer, high season price.

You can find summer rentals in France — the Brittany and Normandy coasts are good bets. Again, swimming is so-so. Prices not cheap. Good food and a lot of people around.

Mexico (for me) is too hot along the coasts in summer.

About 5000 feet up is just right. There are summer rentals in Cuernavaca and around Guadajajara and Lake Chapala. No telling about price. They get what the market will bear — Christmas and New Year's, Texans take over Cuernavaca. They pay $1,000 a week without a whimper if the house is good and has a swimming pool.

"On a summer rental, what is normal for food costs? Utilities? Extras?"

In Hawaii, I'm not hurting. It's like home for everything. Portugal: food is cheaper and a cook and maid go for $2 a day each. Spain: Food and wine cheaper by far and you can get cheap household help. France: More like home. And household help comes high. If you can get it.

For Mexico: I was living on $2 and $3 a day. That was the grocery, liquor, cigarette bill for a family of three adults and two children. A household maid is about $25. But she's ornamental. You'll wind
