

Torrance, Calif., Wednesday, July 5, 1967

'Involvement' Rewarded His involvement in community affairs can be a good index of a man's concern for the welfare of his family, his neighbors, and his community.

This may be said also of business and industrial firms and a year of such involvement will be climaxed at special ceremonies next week when the Great Lake Properties, Inc., names a Citizen-of-the-Year from thos who have been awarded Citizen-of-the-Month hono during the past 12 months.

The Great Lakes Properties program has been one aimed at giving areawide recognition to those per sons who have shown their own involvement in their communities-sometimes in measured quantities which have an accumulative impact, sometimes in one dra matic heroic moment.

The winners selected by the committee to receiv the honors over the first year of the program have spanned these extremes. The person selected as the Citizen of the Year will win a distinguished honor and deserves the commendation again of the entire com munity.

Also deserving commendation are the Great Lake people who believe in involvement in community affairs and have taken this method to pay tribute to the contributions of others to the community. Because they have taken the bother to recognize these people and their contributions to the communi ties, a dozen area residents have won recognition which might otherwise have passed them by. We all should be the better off for it.

Seat Belts Save Lives

With news of the holiday traffic toll fresh in our With news of the holiday traffic toll fresh in our minds, it might be well to consider the automobile seat belt, a simple, easy to use safety device that has been a proven lifesaver. It is assuredly provable that many of those who lost their lives during the holiday just concluded could have been spared had they but buckled up the seat belt. Many probably had belts would be and did not up them. available and did not use them.

A recent study by researchers at the University of Michigan into 177 fatalities in automobile accidents brought out the conclusion that 40 per cent of the victims could have been saved with lap belts, and an additional 13 per cent with shoulder straps.

The researchers also reported that a majority of the nonfatal injuries covered in the study could have been prevented by the wearing of seat belts. The simple buckling of seat belts appears to us to be a cheap price to pay for such an outstanding safety margin.

Opinions of Others

I suggest that the separation of education and the central government is just as fundamentally important for the freedom of the society as the separation of religion and government. Both government and education must function well for the free society to flourish. But since these two dominant agencies of society have different roles to perform, each must function independently of the other in order to achieve its discrete aims .- John A. Howard, president of Rockford College.

Safety experts report that driving at night is more than twice as dangerous as driving during the day. In 1965, there were 10 persons killed for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled in darkness-4 dead for every 100 million miles traveled in daylight .--- Today's Health, magazine of the American Medical Association.

* *

One of the best records of efficiently meeating consumer needs has been compiled by investor-owned electric utilities. While consumer prices have risen by over 200 per cent since 1930, the cost per kwh of electricity has steadily dropped. Lower costs resulted from greater capital investment per employe, good management, and the need to compete with other fuels. Free market forces continue to be the consumer's bst friend. -Associated Industries of Alabama.

* * of the oil industry when the government threatened the industry with the most dire consequence unless certain of the companies that had made a modest increase in the price of gasoline rescinded it. If the government continues to interfere with the price of gasoline, as it has done in the price of natural gas, it will establish another dangerous precedent which will prove to be a great disservice to the American people .---J. Howard Pew, chairman of the Sun Oil Company.

HERB CAEN SAYS:

Water Goes a Long Way With Camels or Hippies

At the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Honolulu, Dr. Ellis D. Sox, the S.F. Health Director (not to be confused with "LSD Socks", put the bum rap on our hippies as being "a health problem that costs San Francisco $35,000 a month." Among his listeners was Mayor A. Thenayan of Riyadh, capital of Saudi Arabia, who smiled: "You don't know how lucky you are — my city is in-fested with tribes of Bedou-ins. They are not only dirty At the U.S. Conferen the hawkiest hawk in ers. Congress, will simply diiie when he finds out that his daughter, Marian, who lives in S.F., has just become a campaign worker for Lovey

San Francisco

Dove John Burton, running for the California State Senate. ** * *

Who says nobody wants go to Vietnam? The fested with tribes of Bedou-ins. They are not only dirty and unwashed, they bring in their camels, which are even dirtier and more unwashed." The proposed trade was de-clared, although, as San Francisco's Ted Courtney interjected, "it might have been instructive to find out which can go longer without water — hippies or camels."  $\Delta = \Delta$ to go to Vietnam? The Agency for International De-velopment ran an ad for velopment ran an ad for diesel plant operators and mechanics to go over there, and received 2,023 inquiries -biggest response in the country. Of course, the emoluments and perquisites may have something to do with it: \$7,000 to \$13,000 a water — nppies or cameis." ☆☆☆ In the glittering collec-tion of Turkish art at our de Young Museum: the jewel-encrusted dagger fea-tured in the film "Topkapi" the item that these rollick year plus 25 per cent hard-ship bonus, furnished quar-ters "and other benefits" ters "and oth (hello, Dolly!).

☆ ☆ ☆ Comedian Jonathan Win-Comedian Jonathan Win-ters, exhorting the troops in Vietnam: "Never mind about those clowns in the Haight-Ashbury. Most of them are junkies or fags anyway. Not that I have any-thing acting the measured -the item that those rollickddies went to so much trouble to steal. Anyway, they didn't get away with it . . Just before Melih Esenbel, the Turkish Ambassador to the U.S., arrived for dinner at the Museum the other night, somebody discovered "Bulgarian Cu-cumber Soup" on Caterer Thomas Thomasser's menu. thing against homosexuals-I'm in show business, you know. But they just don't have any place in a war." That's what they keep tell-ing 'em down at the Draft Board, isn't it? Just in time, it became her Soup"-

Former Asst. Secty of another foreign crisis avert-

2

-

re I begin to rea any of you any

to read this

Quotes

ing b

"Cold Cucum

It is just a fact of life man Edwin L. Z'berg (D-Sac-hat your box office appeal ramento), on bill to make that  $\dot{\alpha}$   $\dot{\alpha}$   $\dot{\alpha}$  that your box office appeal ramento), on bill to Recently we witnessed an attack on the earnings he oil industry when the government threatened traducter with the most dire consequence unless separate planning that stale-mates its major resource raising. - Gov. Ronald Reagan on upcoming out-of-state fund-raising speeches programs and its program for safe and adequate high-\* \* I do deplore this increa ways. Neither can it afford ing feeling among some of the people who participate in these sorts of things that oidable inter-agency conflicts that require major program changes after huge sums have already been inthey have to do more and more spectacular things in order to create attention, vested. - Administrators thme state's transportation order to create attention, and I somewhat deplore the tendency of the press to ... be so completely fascinated with this aspect of our life. — Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh (D-Inglewood), on demonstrations at President Johnson's Los Angeles trip. and resource agencies, on naming a committee to work out differences in highway routings. My Neighbors

Rep. L. Mendel Riv- State Roger Hilsman, ruminating over a baba au rhum Bardelli's restaurant: for mutual de-escalation back to guerrilla warfare."

Mr. Hilsman was feeling a bit shaky, having helped Pierre Salinger celebrate his birthday the night before with massive infusions of 100-yr.old cognac. His new book, "To Move a Na-tion," is a good one even Hawks in San Francisco, but not a single Guerrilla, even on Guerrero street. And while digging into this meaty subject. I discovered that Carl Hawk and Donald Buzzard are next-door neigh-bors in the 1300 block on * * * Donald Barthelme's deadefgrossly exaggerated by responsible victims." ir-

AFFAIRS OF STATE Capital Punishment Suit Asks Court to Make Law

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO - In fil-SACRAMENTO — In fil-ing suit to block execution of 61 death row murderers, the National Association for the Advancement of Col-ored People attempts to cir-cumvent the normal proces-ses of government and as the federal courts where the suit was filed, to extend its dictatorial authority over the people of the state. The condemned row mar.

The condemned row mur-derers all have been tried by Californis courts, and the death sentence imposed. The attempt to prevent the sentences from being car-ied out makes a macheny ried out makes a mockery of justice in this state.

Regardless of the hysteria the subject of capital punishment creates in some quarters, it is the law in California, and therefore should have the respect and consideration given all other \* \* \*  $\star \star \star$ For some forty years, the opponents of capital punish-ment have attempted through the legislative proc-ess, to abolish that law, without success. The issue never has been taken to the people of the state for a general vote, which would be the proper course of ac-tion if the opponents feel they are not obtaining a just deal from the legisla- which already are the high-"I wish," Conrad declared, "they would give some con-sideration to the torture often inflicted upon the vic-tims, and to the years of loneliness and economic loss by the families of those vic-tims. But instead of going to a popular vote, NAACP, no doubt prompted by the fact that 28 per cent of the condemned men are Negroes, seeks to have the federal courts mak another legisla-tive decision. deterrent. Numerous crim-inals have testified how they hesitated to kill because 'I didn't want to sniff that The United States Su-The United States Su-preme court in effect made a legislative decision, and negated the will of the peo-ple of the state, when it held Proposition 14 uncon-stitutional. This proposition, voted by the people with a large majority, merely af-firmed the right of a prop-erty owner to have absolute jurisdiction in the handling of his property. This was a didn't want to shift that gas.' "But for over a genera-tion, we have seen the growth of a philosophy that it is wrong to punish mur-derers and rapists. That criminals are just sick peo-ple, and during that time, crime has reached an all-time high." of his property. This was a great victory for NAACP, as it supposedly ends discrim-ination against minority races and transfers that dis-

ROYCE BRIER

Sacramento

For an issue that has re-ceived all the comment that capital punishment has over the past forty years, it might appear to be about time for the issue to be sub-mitted to the people and crimination to the majority. * * * Whether the NAACP ex-pects the federal courts again to rule against the constitutional right of the mitted to the people, and thus be decided once and for all rather than having people to make their own laws, remains to be seen. Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad, R-Hollywood, says if NAACP is successful in it come every session before the legislature. But even if it were sub-mitted to the people, and a vote cast to retain it as part of California law, the ques-tion then might be whether the people made a proper decision under court ruling. its suit, Californians "can brace themselves for an in-crease in crimes of violence,

"I wish," Conrad declared,

"The death penalty is a me ngn. ☆ ☆ ☆ For an issue that has retime high."

Glassboro's Quick Shot At History Fading Away

* * *

the world the substance of fixed thought, and neither Certainly Premier Kosy-gin, and probably you, never what they said. True, there may be leaks, as there were leaks from the Kennedy - Khrushchev heard until recently of aoin heard until recently of Glassboro, a New Jersey college town southeast of World Affairs

Many years ago, at the height of her career, Norma Talmadge arrived in a small lowa village to shoot a silent film. The whole countryside meeting in Vienna, but there will be little or no confirmation. Notwithstanding, the talk was important. The two men participate in wielding the went quite dingy over this colossal event. So did Glass-boro, when it learned it was to be the site of a summit meeting between Kosygin and President Johnson. greatest aggregate of power existing in the present world. Neither wields un-

But just as Miss Tal-madge's film is gone with the smoke of a Roman empire, so will Glassboro's great so will Glassboro's great moment be forgotten. For nothing of memorable con-sequence c ould happen there, Mr. Kosygin and Mr. Johnson are too cautious, too acutely aware of the wrong word or gesture, to reveal to trammeled power, but both were free to express how the aggregate power should be used. Both men fear a show-down of this divided power, for a showdown would be fatal for everybody. But they are at opposite poles in how the power should be used. Both are ruled by on the 19th Century Amer- Succeed," which is the overican character. Perhaps 20 million copies of his simple, inspirational books were all title of these two books, - the Ragged Dick and coffee table showpiece. If it, voted to his widowed moth-ck and Luck series of the does, the publisher will dust er. He loses his job just as *The Store Boy" is about all title of these two books, a small town teenager, poor may make it as a successful but kind of heart and deisdom Yet both are presumably practical men, and in hispractical men, and in ins-tory, the practical has a de-vious way of undermining fixed thought. It is this un-dermining process which mages mankind tolerable to itself. Fixed thought is what you want to do and it is could convince the other of his own righteousness and you want to do, and it is comprised of a thousand forces and elements. The practical is what you can do in a given circumstance.

 $\dot{x} \dot{x} \dot{x}$ The given circumstance runs roughly like this: In the Mideast the Arabs hoped to exterminate the Israeli state, and the Russians hoped they would. The Americans believed it would be inimical to the Free World and to peace. The Israelis settled it in days by mauling the Arabs into sub-mission. This left the Russians holding the bag. They are trying to extricate them-selves, but against a hard fact.

In Vietnam, the Ameri-cans are trying to put down a rebellion and invasion. The a rebellion and invasion. The Russians deem this against their professed interests. But here another factor enters: the Red Chinese, contiguous to the conflict, who hate both Americans and Rus-itans and inside they are sians, and insist they are conspiring to sell the Viet-

The Red Chinese show signs of trying to butt in on the Mideast aftermath, say-

Philadelphia. if it isn't about Bekin's . . If Mr. Hilsman is interested there are 10 Doves and 7 29th avenue. They get along just fine in their little gray nests in the West.

ly line (in The New Yorker) on the napalm technology of modern warfare: "The

fects of these weapons are

Morning Report:

General de Gaulle clouted us in the United Nations-again. Unsuccessful in settling the Vietnam war on his terms, with precise French logic, he now demands that his formula that failed there be extended to the troubled Middle East.

His plan for us is simplicity itself: Get out. Get out of Vietnam. Get out of the Middle East and while we are getting, get out of Europe as well. This is not very friendly but it is clear. And Clarity is a French virtue.

We owe a great debt to France for her help in our Revolutionary War. Without her fleet, Yorktown might never have been. Sometimes I feel, the General regrets it's too late—even for him—to cancel the sailing orders. At 77, he is ramrod straight in bodyand mind.

Abe Mellinkoff

☆ ☆ ☆ When we know how much the state will spend under the budget, we can quickly cut the tax cloth to fit the the day cost to fit the spending pattern. You can't take dollars out of the citi-zen's pocket that you don't need to run state govern-ment. — Sen. George Miller Jr. (D-Martinez). * * *

This is going to be grand theft—10 years in San Quen-tin. We're going a long way. It's a bad bill."—Assembly-

Pluck and Luck series of the 1860s, the Tattered Tom books of the following decade. Alger wrote 120 books for boys, quite apart from his juvenile biographies of famous men, such as "James A. Garfield: Canal Boy to

The publishing house of Holt, Rinehart & Winston has chosen this week to reof vive what some might call the good old days of uncom-plicated literature. Two of Alger's most representative Arger's most representative works are being issued in their original, untampered-with versions. "The Stope Boy, or The Fortunes of Ben Barclay" and "Julius, or The Street Boy Out West" ap-near as a single volume. Street Boy Out West" appear as a single volume. Each points to the sound old American theory that bard work, ambition and high moral character make poor boys rich. Holt's idea of bringing Hor's idea of bringing back Horatio Alger is obvi-ously based on the result of the recent American pen-chant for corn and "camp" —Batman, Tarzan, life-size

Books off as many Alger titles as the traffic will bear. Horatio Alger Jr. (1834-1899), son of a Unitarian minister, once fled to Paris as a rebellious bohemian, but was persuaded to return but was persuaded to return to Revere, Mass., and be-come a minister himself. He became chaplain of a news-boys' lodging house in 1866, but secretly longed to be a literary man. He was not much as an adult novelist, hut his books about boot-blacks and newsboys, most-ly smug and good, were successful beyond his wild-est dreams; ly on Fourth of July week. Who knows? — Pluck and Luck may ride again to take its place beside the new lapel button poetry.

est dreams.

est dreams. Alger never used a simple word where a circumlocu-tion could be substituted (a barber in his stories is "a knight of the scissors"). Rus-sell Crouse once observed that Alger got away with literary murder for years. But the playwright S. N. Behrman, in a new introduc-tion here, insists that read-ing Alger today is "like works by the controversial young playwright - director Megan Terry, appears from Simon & Schuster (paperback, $2.45).

the mortgage on his moth-er's cottage is foreclosed. He proceeds to New York, where his wit and courtesy bring him a nice position, the promise of a lovely bride and a chance to save bride and a chance to save the mother's home. No more complicated a character, Julius the street boy invests his savings in real estate — but why spoil it for you? One would be churdish to snicker, especial-

Norman Mailer has

ing again there is a Russo-American plot. The Russians must take this into account, and it fully explains Mr. Ko-sygin's misgivings a bout sygin's misgivings a bout meeting Mr. Johnson, and the hanky-panky of making Glassboro the site. Historically, this interplay and overlapping of caprici-ous forces is common but it has rarrely been manifest-ed on a global' scale. All this (and the Chinese bomb) ware subject for discussion were subjects for discussion. We hope Mr. Kosygin had a pleasant tour through the Jerseys. George Washington slept there in another troubled time.

