READ WHAT JONES AND BROWN THINK OF TORRANCE

Jones' Pay Day

Jones and his wife figuring: Let's see, wife, we must put $10.00 of this week's pay with $10 of each pay for the next three weeks away for the rent, and my street car book is used up. That is $10.35, and you must pay the Jap $7 for vegetables. Say, but it's tough. I can't see why Brown has all the luck and we have to grind all the time. I get just as much pay as he does. I can't see any way out unless the "kid" quits school and goes to work.

Brown's Pay Day

Gee, wife! I stopped at the bank and deposited $10.00, which makes $500.00 cash in the bank. Say but wasn't we in luck when we bought this place, just a few years ago, on the easy payment plan? No more rent to pay. No car fare, and that two hours I used to spend on the cars every day I put in on our garden, and that $10.00 car fare for three or four months we spend for chickens. Guess we had better send the "kid" to Stanford. Too bad Jones didn't buy when we did. Poor fellow he'll wake up some day.
