SCIENTIST TO LIVE IN HILLS

The Torrance Lime and Fertilizer Company whose quarries are on the Western Ranch South of Lomita, are considering an offer of a prominent and noted scientist who proposes to locate in the hills near the mill of the company and devote his entire time to research work in the fossil and vegetable formations now being uncovered at the lime quarries. There is no expense to be attached to this new phase of the work, as it would be done purely for science. When discoveries of relics of a thousand years ago are found, these would be studied, labeled and placed in museums, school laboratories, and would be a constant source for study and tracing these pre-historic animals and formations back into the lost ages. The experimental work along this line means so much to those interested in geology that expense on their part is not even considered and would be of great benefit to the Fertilizer company in that the world would be informed daily of what the depths of these hills so close by contain and their value to the country, not only in a commercial sense but for educational purposes. Giant carcasses of pre-historic animals are found, fossil formations, fish bone of magnitude and even large vegetable growths are uncovered that are all foreign to this age. Science surely has some job on hand to keep up with the many discoveries unearthed at the lime quarries these days.

The price of the milk of human kindness has not advanced. It is still free, but not always to be had.—Deseret News.

YOU WILL LIKE TO TRY THESE.

THOSE who are fond of green peppers will like to try Green Peppers Stuffed With Rice.

Take six small even sized green peppers, cut in halves lengthwise, wash and remove all seeds and white fiber. Scald with boiling water, boil three minutes, then drain. Boil rice in salted water until tender, using one-half cupful. Drain rice, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of poultry seasoning, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, or more to taste, one egg, and beat and mix well. Fill the pepper shells. Put one-fourth of a cupful of bacon fat, or four slices of bacon in the pan, bake until firm and lightly browned, using the bacon fat for basting. Serve with lamb fricassee.

Currant Bread.

Take two cupfuls of light bread sponge and work into it one-half cupful of butter and the same of sugar, which have been creamed together. Add one cupful of currants or two tablespoonfuls of caraway seeds. Let rise in a loaf. When light bake in a moderate oven. This is nice to serve with tea.

Buttermilk Custard Pie.

THE BROWN CREEPERS.

"We're not fashionable like some of the birds," said Mr. Brown Creeper. "The fashionable ones have summer homes and winter homes."

"Well, I don't know whether it is because of fashion or not that the birds have summer homes and winter homes," said Mrs. Brown Creeper. "I believe it is because a great many of them cannot stand a cold climate. Some of our family don't like it so well and travel away a bit. But most of us do not mind."

"You see, it is hard on many birds to stay where it is cold, for they only have their little feathers to keep them warm, and while feathers are nice and warm, it is not always enough to have only feathers."

"Feathers will often blow about in the wind, and then a little bird may become very cold, indeed."

"Birds haven't great fur coats to keep them warm. Yes, Mr. Brown Creeper, the birds who go South in the winter and who travel about to different climates are the ones who can't keep warm when the weather is so cold."

"I do believe you are right, Mrs. Brown Creeper. I do believe you are right. As you say, it is hard for the birds to keep warm all winter. I've often thought about it myself."

"The winter is mighty cold, mighty cold. But we don't have to think of it now that the warm weather has come."

"All the birds are singing songs of the springtime. We can't join in the great chorus because our voices are so low. They have always been low. No one ever hears a brown creeper's voice unless very near to us."

"We give a little low trill and a very low chirp."

"But how we love the woods! How we enjoy climbing up the trunks of trees, looking in the bark for bugs and insects."

"We like people, too, and are very tame. We do not mind any one and are not easily frightened."

"Of course, we like to wear brown suits, as one would guess from our

"We Enjoy Climbing."

names, and I think the white waistcoat we wear is a stylish touch."

"How we jump from the top of one tree to the next tree below. Oh, how we love trees!"

"And our nests are so like the woods," Mrs. Brown Creeper said, "with the moss and twigs and bits of bark, which we use for our wall paper and rugs and furniture."

"We like to nest on old stumps. We don't care about living in a rich, smart neighborhood. We never found that made any one any happier."

"And soon the little white eggs will come out into little birdlings, the dear little white eggs with the reddish brown spots on them!"

"Oh, it is nice to be a Brown Creeper and lead such a happy life in the dear, beautiful woods."

"We have rather long beaks," said Mr. Brown Creeper, "and they help us to get the long grubs and insects which we enjoy for breakfast, dinner and supper."

"I know why we have such low voices," said Mrs. Brown Creeper. "Why?" asked her mate.

"Because we have always lived in the woods, where it is quiet and where the sounds are all low sounds."

"And we have grown to be quiet, too. We have kept our voices low and soft and the pine trees have whispered to us."

"That is nice, little Brown Creepers; that is nice to make those soft, little sounds. When people hear you they will be so excited and pleased because they will know they are quite near you and are actually becoming friends. For you will become friends with them. Because you are so trusting, surely no one will ever hurt you."

"Yes, the pine trees whispered that to me only the other day. And they told me that always brown creepers have loved the woods and have had their voices low and quiet and peaceful like the woods."

"You don't have to shout to be big," ended Mrs. Brown Creeper, "for the woods are great and mighty and they aren't always shouting about it."

"Right," said Mr. Brown Creeper. "You are perfectly right."

Out of Order.

"The text one in this room that speaks above a whisper will be put out," exclaimed the angry Judge.

"Hup, hup, hooray!" shouted the prisoner as he ran for the door.—Boys' Life.
