SERMONETTES

By N. W. Philbrook
(A Lomita Property Owner)

No crookedness enters the straight gate.

A square deal is more pleasing to God than a big donation.

A sleeping conscience is more dangerous than a roaring lion.

A real Christian can be trusted, even in a horse trade.

Times were never so hard as to cause any reduction in the wages of sin.

It is a sad delusion that anything but right is ever justifiable, safe or sane.

Wild oats may be sown in joy, but they are certain to be harvested in pain and sorrow and remorse.

Living the Christian life is a patient continuance in doing the will of God.

The shady transaction of years ago which demands restitution of ill-gotten money will be an awkward thing to meet at the great day.

The silent influence going out of lives dominated by the word of Christ is one of God's great spiritual forces.
