

AFFAIRS OF the HEART

By Mrs. Thompson

I believe that after a woman marries a man he comes first, no matter what the needs of her relatives are. A woman writes:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman of 37 and have four children. The oldest is a girl of 15 and the youngest is a little boy of 4. My husband is a home-loving man and very good to all of us. He has never made a great deal of money, but with careful managing we get along comfortably and even enjoy the luxury of an automobile. I have a sister eight years older than myself who has been in poor health for the last three or four years. She has two boys who are away at school. Recently her husband died, leaving her very lonely and much in need of some one to take care of her. He was a successful business man and with the life insurance he left she is well fixed. She has asked to come to live with us. I really don't know what to do. My husband doesn't want it and says that our home life will be completely spoiled. She has always been a woman to have her own way and on the occasions she has visited in our home we have had to do a great deal extra for her. Of course if she came now she would help liberally with the expenses, I am sure. I don't want to displease my husband, and at such a time I feel I can't turn my sister away. If she comes it will be hard for the children because she will never be able to stand the noise they are in the habit of making. What do you think of my situation? Should I let my sister come, or should I tell her we are not in a position to have her? I feel that she could be worse off because she has money to live somewhere else. Of course if she had been left without money and needed a home I would take her without hesitating.

MRS. CATHERINE S. Respect your husband's wishes. Tell your sister that you are not in a position to have her come. Tell her you feel anyway that she would have more quiet and chance to rest somewhere else. It would not be fair to the children to put a damper on their high spirits and sulk their behavior to the requirements of an invalid aunt. They are entitled to the freedom of their home.

MOTHER OF THREE: I think it would be very big of you to call on your neighbor and talk over the cause of her ill-feeling. Tell her that you are sorry she was offended by what you did, because you would want her or any one else to make your children, rectify any mischief they created. If she continues to be disagreeable, you will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done the right thing.

BLUE-EYED SALLY: Baked potatoes should be opened and the center removed by means of a fork, and they should be eaten with a fork. It is also correct to eat the skin, if you like it. It is easier to eat a club sandwich by means of a knife and fork, but it is also correct to cut off small portions and eat them in the fingers.

BASHFUL KID: You are shy simply because you have not gone with girls often. When your parents give you more freedom and you are able to be in the society of girls frequently, you will feel as comfortable as anyone else. With all the things that there are in the world to talk about, there is no excuse for anyone to feel there is nothing to say.

Do men who are naturally diffident and easily discouraged in their attentions receive consideration from women? Are they not often misunderstood and their attitude attributed to faint-heartedness or indifference? Women usually prefer men of daring who make their admiration and love evident. Men of the latter type are not apt to be sincere, but they are certainly more popular.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a man of mature years, alone, and of retiring nature to a painful degree. I realize that I have many friends, but often it is impossible to avoid the feeling that perhaps I am intruding, as no one's pleasure in life is in any way depending on me. Club life does not appeal to me; in fact in most part it is unendurable. By experience I realize that one thing necessary to make life worth while is companionship in a home.

Among my acquaintances there is one who is attractive in person and manner, congenial in trend of thought and motives. Our acquaintance has developed to that which, on my part at least, is a high degree of admiration.

I have frequently been assured that my attentions are acceptable, but on calling up to ask for dates at times I received plausible answers as to why that particular time was not just suitable, but I seldom received an intimation as to a more convenient time. Recently that occurred in succession until I could no longer put away the feeling that I was being evaded, and so I ceased to make overtures. Am I too sensitive? If so, how can I overcome it? AT SEA.

I should imagine from your letter that you are too retiring and cautious in your attentions to the girl. Don't be afraid of her. Call her by her first name. Invite her out to dinner, to the theatre, or any other place of amusement you think she might enjoy. Send her flowers and take her candy. If you love her, don't be afraid to show it and mention the fact. Of course I am taking it for granted that you would like a wife and a home since you say that home and companionship represent the best of life.

Some women feel that it is always the man's place to ask to call. Although that is not the case, it may be that the woman you mention made her excuse and felt if you wanted to come at a later date you would say so. Try again and if she cannot accept your first invitation, ask her when it will be convenient. If she makes further excuses you have reason to think she no longer wants you as a friend.

You must get over feeling that you are not needed in life. You certainly are or you would not be here. Fill your place as well and happily as you can and never doubt your worth.

Why Druggists "Suggest"

News Item 1940—Any Paper!

"Reports reaching the office of Amanda Hemingway, Tobacco Prohibition Chief, convince her that smoking is being done at the Old Men's Home on Billings Road. A member of the Pipe Smeller's Squad reports that while "sniffing" near the gates of the institution a few days ago a 98 year old inmate hit him with an EMPTY tobacco can, thereby causing the sniffer great pain and annoyance. This can is now in the possession of Miss Hemingway and is attracting great curiosity at the capitol."

Ain't it fine to come up to OUR Cigar Counter and get what you want when you want it and AS YOU LIKE it? Legally!

New Way to Get Rid of Mice!

Johnnie Shidler caught a mouse alive and after dipping it in Wildroot Hair Tonic allowed it to crash around in its cage for a couple days while it grew a lotta hair. Johnnie then let it loose and naturally it went back where it came from, frightening the OTHER mice so that they never came back! Johnnie's mouse died of loneliness. Wildroot Hair Tonic sure grows hair—either grows hair or back goes your money.

Woman! Know Thy Hairbrush!

The bristle is the important thing! The REAL pleasure giving, friendly scratching bristle which reaches the "spot" comes from the Russian wild boar, found only in the coldest regions of Russia. It is originally about 18 inches long as it comes to the American manufacturers. It is then cleaned, combed and bleached and made ready to associate with the carefully selected Rosewood, Natural Ebony or Mahogany back and handle of the finished brush. These are the REAL BRUSHES that live the hair, please the scalp, soothe your mind and are worth while. Ask any Beacon clerk to show you one of these.

A drug store in a community like ours is the common meeting place for every member of the family. "Meetsha at the drug store" is an oft heard remark and no one thinks of it being unusual. Did you ever make a date to meet anyone at the meat shop or the shoe store? Now here's OUR position:

We carry some 9000 items in this store. A member of the family trips in to purchase a certain proprietary medicine. We know that before that purchase has been decided upon there had been a sort of "talking it over" around the family supper table. We know from experience that SOME one said things like these:

"Let's try some of that Zonite—remember it next time you pass the Beacon."

"Get me some films, will you, Dad? I need 2-A Brownie, etc."

"While you're there, get me a tube of toothpaste."

And that's why we always "suggest" that you MIGHT need this or that when we're wrapping up your purchases.

We know that in all probability you're forgetting a whole list of stuff and will probably be chided about it when you get home.

See the way we reason?
DOC. FINSTER.

Ras Says

Does look right at that and it's a good, square plan, too. Other day a thin old scroot comes in and asks for some tonic like his wife always got. I inquired and Doc to find out what kind it was and I got it for him.

He says: "Is that ALL you've got of it?"

"Nope, we've got six bottles left of it," says I.

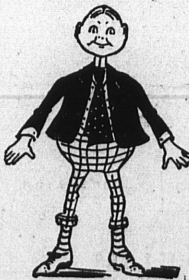

"Gimme 'em," says T. O. S.

"What's the big idea—wife purty sick?"

"Not so's you could notice it," snaps the ole party. "I'm buying all there is in town so's she can't get any more; lookit my bean!"

Durned if a flatiron hadn't made a twisty dent on top of it like a valley!

"Wife's too strong; going to take this tonic myself, keep her AWAY from it and do all I can to get her whittled down to MY size."

A Visitor from New York City

Was chatting with Roy Cowman last Wednesday, and just before leaving remarked: "I don't suppose you can get Caron's Black Narcissus (naming a very, very exclusive perfume) here in this town, can you?" She was delightfully surprised to see Roy bring from his stock the exact kind she wanted. We take a large pride in our toiletries and there's no occasion for anyone to seek the new things in OTHER CITIES. We have them right here: Hougiant's, Coty's, Caro Nome, Luxor, Hudnut's, Pompeian, and a host of others. The new De Vilbiss Perfume Atomizer—Christmas numbers—just arrived!

Those Having Skins!

Know that at times, especially THESE sort of days, it gets chapped. Silique at 50c relieves the sting almost instantly and brings back the softness in a few hours. A splendid after shaving lotion.

A Leopard's Spots!

They're the ONLY spots that Todco Cleaner won't remove. Spots like grease, iodine, ham gravy, champagne, and turtle soup leave INSTANTLY without leaving a RING as a memory. Large bottle for 50c. Doesn't destroy colors either.
