unique and awe-inspiring spec-e which is interesting a greater aber of motorists yearly is the ke dance of the Hopi Indians. Drination regarding the date and tion of this celebration is not on out by the Indians until 18 is before the dance. However, is held some time between the and last of August at one of following picturesque Indian ges: Hotcyllia, Orablat, Po-a, or Walpal-all of them lothe following picturesque Indian villages: Hotevilla, Orafbai, Polacca, or Walpai—all of them located from 60 to 75 miles north-east of Flagstaff, Ariz., on the National Old Trails route. Splendid road conditions will be found from Pacific coast points to Flagstaff, at which point local inquiry should be made relative to the mostadirect route to the village where the dance is to be held. The villages of the Hopi Indians are located on meas, which are great solid rock formations that rise majestically in the desert, with practically perpendicular walls, almost flat on top, and covering a number of acres. The houses are two or three stories in height and surround a court where the dances are held. They are poorly lighted and ventilated and practically unturnished. The Hopi snake dancers, or the Sagke clan of the Hopi tribe, prepare for the dance by ceremonial, rites which are held in the klya pare for the dance by ceremonialrites which are held in the kiva—an underground room accessible only from an opening at the top.
No Indians other than the dancers and no white man enters the kiva during this ceremony. The snakes snakes—are kept in this kiva until the day of the dance. This ceremonial last for 18 days previous to the dance. The snake dance of the Hopl is a prayer for rain, and, strange to say, it nearly always storms within a day or two of this ceremonial! During the celebration the snakes are instructed to carry the message back into the earth that the fields on top of the earth

One of the most seeing one-day motoring trips in California at the present time is the one outline below: Leaving Baleerfield via Nile street, take the Kern Rivine Come mile south of Kernville. One mile south of Kernville unto the loft and take the road to the loft and take the kern Rivine distribution of box tunches in the log with the loft and take the road to the loft and take t hours, during which time the dancers chant their weird song. At the end, the hundreds of snakes are put in a pile in the center of the circle and four of the dancers run for the pile. Each gathers in as many snakes as he can carry, and one goes in each direction—to the north, south, east, and west—and trins far into the desert, where the snakes are released. During the snake dance there are many other Indian ceremonial dances, beginning at suurise and lasting far into the night. The snake dance itself lasts only about two hours, and is held late in the afternoon.
