State Federation of Women's Clubs Organizes Against War; Start Save-the-Beaches Drive

Sacramento—The movement to suppress the and the discussion of public affairs occupied the state board of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, called together here by the state president, Mrs. W. W. Green, for a final meeting preparatory to the convening of the State Convention in San Diego on May 8.

Paving the way for an endorsement of the Gillette Resolution, making effective American participation in the International Court set up by the League of Nations, the board adopted unanimously a motion to submit the matter to Mrs. F. P. Wray, legislative chairman, for further consideration.

The same action of tentative approval was taken on the Capper Resolution now pending in the United States Senate, which would outlaw by compelling arbitration before hostilities were begun between two signatory powers.

The Alameda district of the federated women was congratulated upon the sponsoring of an Institute of Foreign Relations, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Francis Grady, which was attended by thousands of people and designed to promote a better understanding of international affairs.

Urges Park Support
Support of the state's park program was urged by Mrs. C. E. Parsons of Nevada City, a leader in conservation among the clubwomen of California.

"Save the Beaches"
The chief concern of the federation with the organization today of a club division for their care. Mrs. L. P. Crane of Santa Ana, who has long been an earnest worker in the movement to rebuild these little unfortunates mentally and physically, will be the head of the new club.

The appointment of Mrs. Myra D. Steele-Meyer, Sacramento newspaper woman, as corresponding secretary, and Miss Benita G. Eadie of San Diego as credentials committee chairman for the San Diego convention, was announced by Mrs. Green.

Four new clubs affiliated with the state organization: the Women's Improvement Club of Blythe; the Monte Viejas Club of Alpine; the Lindcoove Community Club of Exeter; and the Ladies' Improvement Club of Salida.

The pensioning of the "diggers" of the Panama Canal was considered at the request of the Cristobal Woman's Club of the Canal Zone, and an endorsement made through the national federation of clubs.

The stricken clubwomen of the Santa Clara River Valley were not forgotten by their sister clubwomen, and not only a general resolution of sympathy adopted but fi-

LEARNING TO EAT
By Rama V. Bennett, Nutritionist
Los Angeles County Public Health Association

The test of a successful eating lesson is not that so much food has been swallowed but that the child eats hungrily and happily of a sufficient quantity for its needs. A successful teacher must first have a sane working knowledge of how to choose suitable food and second must have an understanding of how children form attitudes and habits. Neither are inherited instincts, but both may be readily learned.

Parents are the first teachers of early eating habits. The child comes to them without any set habits of eating, he brings only a powerful instinct to be satisfied by food. Habits come only as a result of training. Most parents look so eagerly toward good nutrition results that this very eagerness often defeats the purpose. A tiny baby senses the tension and anxiety of the mother or nurse at feeding time with resultant unfavorable reaction. A good feeding lesson is then lost. Children rebel against calories from over-anxious and over-zealous parents. A normal child's eating habits are a good index of his environment. Physical and emotional strain and stress react with inevitable certainty against a child's learning to eat properly.

All children cannot weigh the same at certain ages. Forcing food to achieve the goal in spite of a child's own body build is a menace to good eating habits and a destroyer of appetite. Determination to have a perfect child by forced feeding brings parents to grief and children to nerves. Acquiring a good appetite is as essential as getting the food down. Know that doing over and over an act which brings satisfaction forms a habit. If "eating time" is "battle time" a child is not learning how to eat. A sane program sanely executed only can bring success. Understanding the child is the beginning of the program.

A series of articles will follow on how to teach children to eat. A list of books on the subject may be had from the Los Angeles County Public Health Association, 1700 Michigan Ave., Los Angeles.

Because of price fluctuations and varying conditions in different localities, it is impractical to set an inflexible figure on the cost of constructing the house pictured above. However, the Pioneer Paper Co., Los Angeles, Calif., will furnish an accurate estimate of the cost on request. Please refer to Plan No. 32. Designed by L. R. Wheeler.

The long, broken roof expanse, the inviting lines and the secluded porch give this lovely five-room home a true atmosphere of English comfort. The well-planned interior is different and the great living room with its alcove and fireplace and tall windows offer beauty as well as a pleasant, home-like atmosphere.
