The ROAD TO RUIN

WITH VIRGINIA ROYE and GRANT WITHERS
A Flaming Warning To Parents of America!

There was once an idea prevalent that only simple minded or weak willed girls became delinquent but the fallacy of this idea is now quite generally recognized. In fact the morosa, white slavers, "Good Time Charlies", and "Foxes" do not trouble with unattractive girls. The more beautiful and spirited, the more desirable and worthwhile a girl may be, the more eagerly she is pursued. And the brightest girls are often the ones who seek most eagerly to probe the mysteries of life.

theme of "The Road to Ruin" which will be shown at the Torrance theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 31-Aug. 1. This picture, which is intended for adult consumption, is a very forcible dramatization of an actual case of juvenile delinquency and is startlingly frank in its handling of a very delicate question. Helen Foster, an exquisite little blonde, renders a remarkable characterization as the school girl who goes astray, while the work of Virginia Royle and Grant Withers is also noteworthy. Others in the cast are Tommy Carr, Florence Turner, Charles Miller, Al Rader and Ed Dunn.

Ticker's Tips

Dear Friends:
A jeweler's got to know how to keep still. You'd be surprised at the number of secrets around a place like this—men who buy things that their wives don't know anything about, and so on. Of course we're not advertising for that kind of business. But what I was getting at is that there are times when you may have a perfectly good reason for not wanting a lot of folks to know what you are buying in the jewelry line—an engagement ring for instance. In a case like that Howard's can be as close-mouthed as an oyster. And we insist on everybody around the store being the same way. I never did hear of his getting in bad by letting the news slip about a purchase that was supposed to be a secret.

Greatest advance in motoring comfort since balloon tires...

STUDEBAKER'S Ball Bearing Spring "Shackles"

In these new cars a patented invention at last solves a problem that has long baffled automotive engineers.

Every motorist knows the importance of spring shackles—those joints or hinges which form the connecting link between body and axles. Engineers have sought to reduce friction to a minimum at these vital joints—to make them flexible yet firm and uniform in action—to make them noiseless—to reduce the necessity for frequent lubrication. All these objectives have now been attained in Studebaker cars.

So revolutionary is this sensational innovation that the word "shackles," with its implication of restricted movement, is no longer applicable. The incessant action and reaction between body and axles is now carried by 172 steel balls rolling in lubricant—no binding, no squeaks, no rattles, no sideway. Instead, smooth, silent resiliency, an undeviating uniformity of action and an enduring buoyancy that will keep your Studebaker young.

In place of complicated centralized systems for oiling and greasing, each ball bearing spring "shackle" contains, sealed within it, ample lubricant to last for more than twenty thousand miles.

Come ride in a new Studebaker today. Thrill to its champion performance. See rare new beauty of line and color. Then compare Studebaker's new low One-Price prices—the triumph of 76 years' manufacturing experience!

At last... ball bearing spring shackles... the secret of the remarkable riding comfort of the new Studebakers.
