

Another Lovely Residence Adorns El Prado Street

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Winkler Complete Mediterranean Designed Home

A charming home of Mediterranean architecture was built for F. C. Winkler, and is located on El Prado.

One enters a piazza in front of the house, by means of a wrought iron gate. Lamps on each side of the gate light the way for night guests.

The piazza has a cement floor, and a wall of cement enclosing it. Pines are left to plant shrubs, and flowers in season, and are long.

An arched door, opening on the right, leads to the entrance hall of the house. Here is a guest closet for wraps.

From here, one enters the long living room, by means of an archway. Two features distinguish this room, the unusual fireplace, and a large dome window in the front of the room.

The fireplace is outlined in beautiful Spanish tile, with a raised platform for the fire proper. Above this, is an offset arch built in, and in this Capistrano mission has been painted in soft colors.

Opposite the large window in the front are French doors leading to a sun room. This room is well lighted by outside windows, and has unusual green woodwork, made by putting an olive green paint over tan.

Through the other doorway in the living room, the dining room may be seen, with three long, French windows giving light. On the top ceiling, which is cornerless and has a paneled ceiling, sprays of autumn leaves have been hand-painted in corners of the offset panel.

A long hall with a built-in telephone shelf and table, a cedar closet, and four linen closets is reached from the dining room. Orchid and black were the colors chosen for this tile bath, reached from the hall, and adjoining an orchid-tinted bedroom. This bath has a built-in vanity covering one end of the room, and finished in a delicate shade of orchid.

Large tiles of orchid and black are laid in the floor, with plain orchid tile for the base of the walls, and black fixtures. The medicine cabinet is concealed by a large beveled mirror, and is large and many-colored. Hand-painted water lilies are painted in various places on the upper walls.

Delicately tinted orchid panels are in the bedroom, with coloring of pale green around the panels. The room is shaded, beginning at the top of the walls with a very faint shade, and deepening as it reaches the floor.

Bowls of asters are painted in the center of the panel on each side of the room.

Across the hall is the pink bedroom, finished in the same manner except in the colors of pink and warm gray. Wild roses are the painted decorations on these walls.

Two large closets with built-in drawers are in this room. The bath of coral pink and gold for this room is built for the feminine personality, and would be a joy to any possessor.

Pink and golden yellow tile, combined with walls of a delicate pink, and a built-in vanity of the same shade, make this bath far more feminine and attractive than the average. An archway, draped with

A pink shower curtain, discloses the shower.

From here, one may go to the large service porch, on which are an ironing board, clothes closet for old clothes, and a huge cooler. One may walk inside this large cooler, which has ample floor room, besides containing lots of shelves for storage.

In the kitchen, which is finished in two shades of green, the many doors and drawers for service and storage are found to be hand-decorated, with sprays of apple blossoms adorning just the right doors and drawers.

The breakfast room, from which one may go to either the kitchen or the dining room, has two corner cupboards, the tops of which harmonize with the cathedral windows in the room.

Painted sprays of flowers and leaves, dotted with a few birds and butterflies, and running on the slant around the cupboards and windows, make this room a most attractive one for a breakfast room.
