Ancient Civilization Unearthed at Lovelock Cave

Evidence pointing to the oldest civilization in America has been unearthed at the Lovelock Cave, located on the Nevada desert. The cave was once the home of a tribe of Indians, legend of which says were cannibalistic. Entrance to the cave is shown at the top; to the left is a flint knife, and at the right is a basket which contained two fur blankets in a perfect state of preservation. The six-cylinder Chevrolet truck found the sand road to the cave not difficult. The tandem rear wheel construction affords easy traction.

Situated in a small peak forming a part of the Humboldt mountains and overlooking the Humboldt lake, in Nevada, is the Lovelock Cave. Its outward appearance, like any number of other caves in the dry desert country of Nevada, gives no intimation of the important find made there since 1911.

The Northern Paiute Indians who live in the vicinity of the cave have a legend which relates that the cave was once the home of a tribe named Sal-l. The same legend says they were exceedingly unpopular with neighboring tribes because of their habit of capturing the women of those tribes and carrying them to their own stronghold. Finally this tribe of Indians, were red-headed, were driven to this cave and exterminated by fire.

In 1911 the cave was located as a mining claim for the purpose of removing large quantities of bat guano which had a great deal of value as fertilizer. In the moving of the fertilizer, many articles of this pre-historic Indian civilization were found, and Mr. L. L. Lord of the University of California went there to begin the exploration of the cave. He found a structure approximately 150 feet long and 35 feet wide at its widest point, and at varying levels of 2 feet to 15 feet were found evidence of this civilization. Mr. Lord's explorations gave to the University of California Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology much valuable evidence in the form of baskets, bows and arrows, flints, knives, blankets, etc. In 1924 a second exploration of the cave was made by Mr. M. R. Harlan, who obtained additional Indian objects. In all, approximately 15,000 specimens from the cave have been recovered.

(Continued from Page 3) sin harangues him on the crime of wealth and humiliation of charity. Only the little flapper sister, played by Bessie Love, sees how the satire family might benefit from their newly-acquired relation to wealth. The story is literally filled with human interest and there is more than one heart throb injected into the romance which, of course, turns out happily for the entire family.

FOX REDONDO

"The Million Dollar Collar" is the name of Warner Brothers unique and exciting vehicle, starring Rin-Tin-Tin and shows at the Fox Redondo, Sunday, July 7. Rin-Tin-Tin has appeared in every imaginable setting since he began to be a picture hero. In the North Country, the desert, the mines, the mountains, city and country, land and water—in "The Million Dollar Collar" he is shown as a companion of a blind beggar—a fake in both blindness and poverty. A new and revolutionary development in the use of sound and speech will reach the screen in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Iron Mask," which comes to the Fox Redondo theatre on Monday, July 8 for 3 days. While the voice of Fairbanks will be heard, there will be no dialogue. The spoken portions of the film will be in the nature of soliloquys in which Doug, as D'Artagnan, will address the audience and speaking directly to them, tell the intents of his characters and the motivations for their actions. In this manner the audience becomes a part of the living play instead of bystanders.

The world takes for granted many things it values most. Fortunate it is that things of the greatest value and usefulness do not cost in proportion to that value. For example, the Telephone. What would its cost be, if charged for in ratio to its usefulness—this convenient instrument that broadens your social contacts, summons the doctor, opens your door to business profits, or lets you hear the voice of a loved one far away? If no telephone had ever been seen in this city, and such a service were suddenly created, the well-to-do would willingly pay $50, $100 or even $500 a month to have it in their homes. A single successful business deal would pay its cost for weeks. A single life saved thru prompt telephone communication would justify such outlay forever. Yet—the telephone is available to everyone, and its cost is only a few cents a day. And there are more telephones being installed every day, there by making your own telephone even more useful.
