They Have The "Shorts"
In Santa Paula, Too

Proving That Printers May Be Short on Cash, But Are Long on Laughs

When it comes to modern methods of doing business, Charlie Quinn, one-time printer at the Automatic Printing Company and now of Santa Paula, has Roger Babson skinned to a frazzle.

Charlie left the employ of H. F. Ubbright and W. Harold Kingsley some four months ago and embarked on a printery all his own in Santa Paula. Two months ago Printer Charlie came to Torrance and had Hank run off a job for him that was too big for the Santa Paula presser, for which a "friendly" charge of $12.00 was made. Not having received the remittance, and having a "bad case of the shorts" himself, as Hank says, he wrote Charlie requesting a prompt remittance. The following letter from Charlie brought a laugh that is still rippling throughout the Automatic and Herald offices. We reprint it with the thought that local business men might find it helpful in calming irate creditors.

"The Printery
"Santa Paula, Calif.
August 16, 1929.
"Automatic Printing Co.,
"Torrance, California.
"Dear Hank:
"Received your letter this A. M. Now about the $12. Here's why you have not received any money from this thriving establishment:
"I put the bills in a drawer and when they are all in I put them in the waste basket. I blindfold the bindery girl and have her draw bills out of the basket until my available funds are exhausted. The bills are thoroughly shaken up in the basket—thus giving all my creditors a square deal. Now if you don't like my way of doing business, I won't even put your bill in the waste basket.
"I made the acquaintance of a speed cop the last time I was in Los Angeles and he was very insistent that I come back on Thursday, August 22 and meet the Judge. Write in L. A. on that day and come to Torrance. Tell King and the rest of the bunch hello.

"See your Thursday.
"Chas."
