The West Honors Stevenson

A memorial tablet at Calistoga, California, marks the spot where the cabin of Robert Louis Stevenson stood. Here he wrote "The Silverado Squatters." Miss Norma Hayden, a Dallas, Texas, school teacher, who is touring the west, recently visited the hallowed literary shrine in her Chevrolet coach.

Hey, fellas, get a load of this. The girls went on a secret swimming spree at the Redondo plunge the other evening. We presume that they didn't want to display their maidenly forms to the male of the species so hence the secrecy. However, five of them plunged heavily into the baby pool which contains two feet of water and when they had washed off the pedal extremities they stepped carefully into the deeper water thereby submerging themselves even unto their shoulder straps. If we recall correctly, a couple of the demurest swimmers were so they couldn't be called water lilies, could they? After frolicking about in the water for about an hour they dressed and walked to an adjacent Chinese cafe where they indulged in noodles, chow mein and chop steaks. It is quite an art to get noodles with chop steaks and some of them may have made a miscue since we thought we saw traces of that edible on their dresses the following day. Evidently the noodles had an exhilarating effect since they were not content with the evening without bowing a couple of girls. Helen MacKenzie rolled 123 for high score. We are unable to state what the others did but you can safely estimate it as being between one pin and one hundred pins. We omitted mention of the fact that prior to the swim they all went on a spending spree at the nickel and ten penny store. Since there were no casualties we can safely say that the party consisted of Vega Harper, Bonnie Pollock, Hazel Lewis, Viola Severson, Helen MacKenzie, Martha Arbuckle and Vera Doty.

and an electric waffle iron. Needless to say the usual pranks were played such as the ball and chain racket, and so on. Skivy engaged Cal in conversation while Bob crept up behind Cal and endeavored to slip the iron anklet on his right limb. Skivy was unable to hold Cal's attention and he looked around just at the moment Bob was about to do the dirty work, thus spoiling the plots of the scheming knaves. This column wishes to offer our sincere congratulations to Mr. Drake and to wish him the very best that Dame Fortune has in store for him.

It looks like Father Time has been around with his trusty scythe and chopped off the heads of the alpha patch adjacent to the plant. The dumb animals should be in line for a big feed on Thanksgiving Day, judging by the yield.

After being sick abed for a few days, Dorothy Keener was just beginning to feel on the up and up Sunday. But the story is not told since she almost suffered a relapse because she tuned in on the Portland and Hollywood baseball game and found that her beloved Hollywood team was unable to do a thing with the Portlanders. Adding insult to injury, they used the same pitcher for both games, whereas Hollywood called on practically its entire staff to try and turn the tables, all to no avail. She finally survived and is now back at work full of the old Ned. We wish to add that all is well because the Hollywood team are the champions of the Pacific Coast League, having captured the pennant last Sunday.

Last week's Torrance Herald contained an article about the rapid delivery of air mail to our company. It might be interesting to know that we also use air mail for delivery of small machine parts one delivery going to the Texas oil field.

Evidently Tinkham doesn't follow the old practice of sleeping with his watch under his pillow, because it is very seldom that he gets here on time. (That was a weak pun, wasn't it?)

What has happened to the voice of Johnny Johnson singing over the radio at KFOX. Must be too busy entertaining the fair sex to take care of his radio work.

On Tuesday evening a party was given in honor of Mr. Tom Arey and Mr. Harold Smith of San Francisco. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Cronin, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bromwich, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. McHale, Mr. and Mrs. Don Horton and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Owens. They motored to the Tropical Inn at Culver City where a delightful chicken dinner was served, following which they drove to Grauman's Chinese theatre to see "The Cock and the Heron." The folks say they enjoyed it immensely. Mac says it doesn't leave a thing to the imagination. Evidently it must be a good picture.

We wish to express our sincere sympathy to B. J. McHale whose mother died recently at Salt Lake City. He spent several weeks with her and she seemed to be on the mend so he returned to California but only reached here in time to learn that she had passed away.

Mr. Arey is a very ardent booster for San Francisco but when he bucks up against argumentative Jack Owens, that former San Franciscan, who is completely sold on Southern California, he will have to present some wonderful points to convince Jack that he is wrong. Mr. Arey, by the way, is Mrs. Jack Owens' brother.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Claus of Eagle Rock and Cal Drake was held on Tuesday, October 8, 1929. Following the wedding at the church they went to Mr. Drake's home at Glendale where refreshments were served to immediate relatives and friends. The newlyweds slipped away in Cal's newlyweds slipped away in Cal's car thereby avoiding the pranks of the funsters. However, his car was decorated in the usual manner with old shoes, rice, tin cans, signs and what have you. They have taken an apartment at the La Bonta located at Melrose and Virgil in Hollywood.

Did you ever drive west from the plant towards Redondo on the Weston street road. We tried it the other day and it felt like a heap of wet clothes must feel being rubbed up and down the face of a corrugated wash board. The road commissioners could give the folks that use that road a nice Christmas present if they trenched the rough spots out before the rainy weather sets in.

at night and, if we may be permitted to say so, actually turns night into day.

Of course you all remember "Whitey" Pierce who formerly operated the soft drink stand near the plant. Whitey stood in and asked for our congratulations which we offered freely thereby accepting a Philadelphia stogie. He states that he has been married three times but this is the shortest of them all. After twenty-two days of married life they have decided to separate. Sounds like a companionate marriage.

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tytus entertained a number of friends at their beautiful, Whittier home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Webb, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Grau, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Morford, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Del Glascock, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bromwich, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Haefs, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cronin and Mr. and Mrs. B. J. McHale.

"Drill Pipe Dan" tells us that "The benches in the parks are filled with fellows who tried to tell the boss how to run his business."

It was a "stunt" night and everyone had to entertain in one way or another. Del endeavored to render soft melodies on the piano with his fist while Bill Grau went over big with his hot dog story. Ritchie and Peters did some classic dancing and in fact everyone added their part to the fun. We are advised that those present learned the correct way to pronounce Mickey's last name after considerable coaching by him. Eddie Morford was his usual self but Cronin seemed to be unusually quiet. A buffet luncheon was served at eleven o'clock. Everyone had a most delightful evening and proclaimed Mr. and Mrs. Tytus as being admirable host and hostess.

Let's have a big turnout at the basket ball game Thursday evening, October 17th, at the Inglewood high gymnasium. The game starts at 8:00 p. m. and the admission is free. The Inglewood city basket ball team will endeavor to teach our boys the fine points of the game but we hope to reverse the tables and show them how to do it. Steger is trying to whip his orchestra boys into shape so as to furnish music before the game. Don't forget to come out.
