Lomita News Consolidates With Torrance Herald

Beginning next week, April 3, the Lomita News and the Torrance Herald will be issued as one newspaper; but the amalgamation of the two papers will in no way affect the complete news report of the two communities or the joint circulation of the two newspapers.

Eleven years ago when the Lomita News began publication Torrance and Lomita were widely separated communities, but the past eleven years has brought a tremendous development in both towns so that now they have almost grown together.

Lomita people look to Torrance industries for employment and Torrance depends upon Lomita in a large measure to furnish living quarters for its workers. Torrance people are interested in Lomita happenings and Lomita people are interested in developments at Torrance. So that it seems only natural that the two pioneer newspapers in each town should join hands and pull together for the development of the entire district.

Under the former plan of issuing separate papers for each town, much valuable news was necessarily omitted. But in the consolidated newspapers, readers in both communities will read all the news of both towns.

There will be no staff changes. Mrs. Edna Lynn will continue to represent the consolidated newspapers in Lomita.

Don't Kill All Snakes; Some Are Your Friends

(Editor's note) Here is the third of a series of snake stories written for the United Press by A. V. Napier, managing editor of The Journal-Miner of Prescott, Ariz. This article ignores the general dislike of snakes, held by most persons, and points out which snakes are friends of man and why. The fourth and concluding article of the series will appear in this paper March 27.

By A. V. NAPIER. (Written for the United Press) (Copyright, 1930, by United Press) If there appears to be an unusual number of snakes in your section of the country this spring, it is because that particular point is infested with an unusual number of rodents. The snakes are there to feed upon the destructive rodents. The reptiles should not be mistreated because they are a great benefit to crops.

In a few days, or weeks, depending upon the climate, altitude and weather, the snakes will awaken from their long nap and crawl forth in search of water and food to break a fast of several months. The rancher will be out about his duties. It is probable that he will see one or several snakes. If he is an average human he will forthwith grab the first cudgel at hand and proceed to murder the best gopher trap that could possibly be brought to the ranch. The average adult snake feeds about every ten days. He will devour from four to 10 rats, mice and gophers at each meal, or about 125 rodents in a single season.

There are only four kinds of poisonous snakes in the United States. They are the rattlesnake, the cottonmouth moccasin, the copperhead and the Mexican coral snake. The latter is so rarely found that a good specimen is worth $50. There is no genuine moccasin west of the Rocky mountains, no copperheads and decidedly few coral snakes. The only western snake that should be killed is the rattlesnake. There is absolutely no danger of mistaking a rattlesnake for any other species. It is easy to observe whether or not the snake has rattles, and if he has not he should be allowed to go his way. If allowed to do so, every snake will pay strict attention to his own business. His business is to devour as many small animals as possible during the season, to fortify himself against his next winter's extended fast. He may make away with a baby chicken if it crosses his path, but if he does it will be small pay for ridding the country of its rodent pests.

Coach Nylander Ill from Badly Infected Shin

Fears were felt this week that Coach Nylander may have to undergo an operation for an infection on his shin following an accident in the Torrance high school gymnasium, February 11. The coach stumbled over a student's foot and the heel of the lid's shoe scratched the coach's leg. The incident was considered inconsequential until an infection set in about a week ago, confining Nylander to his home. Gymnasium classes have been abandoned during the coach's absence, but the track events have been under the supervision of the science instructor, Francis Wadingham.

Miss Flora Smith Speaks on Americanization at Elementary P-T. A. Meeting

Miss Flora D. Smith of the Americanization Department of the Los Angeles school system, addressed the Elementary P-T. A. on the work of her department Tuesday afternoon at their regular session. Miss Smith explained that the work of Americanization was the making of better American citizens of the people who come to the United States from foreign countries. We must not judge the people of a nation generally by one or two whom we have come in contact with who were bad. We must know there are good as well as bad in every nation. It was found during the war that the largest number of illiterates were not among the foreign born but among the negroes and poor whites of the south. Illiteracy is not being able to read or write in any language. We must try to raise the standard among the foreign born. We must not be sentimental. Miss Smith told of the work being done in the Torrance Pueblo by the board of education. They have rented a room there which is used as a class room for adults. The women have helped fit it up and it is very pleasant. Fifteen women attend school there in the day time and are learning English. The owner of the Pueblo is encouraging the beautifying of the Pueblo by offering prizes for the best gardens and the women are taking a very great interest in this.

The program was put on by the pupils of the Fern avenue school. The first number was a short introduction given by Robert Lambert of the B2 room who introduced the pupils of his room who gave a short puppet play telling of the work of the firemen. King Rock, five years old, of the kindergarten gave three accordion numbers. Four Japanese girls from the higher grades of the school gave some Japanese folk dances in costume.

A letter was read from Mrs. Lyttel of the home and school aid department of the district P-T. A., making a plea for used clean clothing. It was the opinion of the board that all such clothing should be used in Torrance.

Mrs. Nettie Steinhilber of the Torrance P-T. A. home and school aid department, made a plea that all who had clean used clothing or old shoes send them either to the Elementary school or to the Torrance Relief room, 1803 Cahillio avenue.

Mrs. F. A. Parsons of Lomita, chairman of emblems for San Pedro, Wilmington and Lomita, spoke on emblems, telling how the oak tree represented the national association, the branches districts and the leaves the local P-T. A.

Twenty-five cents was appropriated for books for the library at the school with Mrs. Walter Donner, an ex-librarian, as head of the book committee. Mrs. Forrest Young, Mrs. J. S. Lancaster and W. M. Bell Jr. were named as the nominating committee to report at the next meeting. Mrs. E. G. Rowell won the door prize, a P-T. A. emblem. The kindergartens, Miss Bliss and Miss Batz tied for the attendance prize for kindergarten mothers. Miss Helen Berry's room won the attendance prize for the down stairs room and Mrs. Edna Russel's room for the upstairs. Miss Spencer's room won for Fern street.

There will be a door prize at each of the next meetings.

School Cast Going to Vets Hospital

The cast of the Torrance high school play, "Froublesome Wives" will be taken to the veterans hospital at Savelle on April 18 through an invitation extended by the Bert S. Crossland post of the American Legion Auxiliary and the Legion members.

SENIORS TO BE OFFERED A COURSE IN OSTEOPATHY

An announcement of interest to members of the senior class of the Torrance High School was received this week from the Los Angeles Osteopathic Society. At a recent meeting of the Osteopathic Society, funds were appropriated establishing a scholarship which will award a year of college tuition to the student in the society's district who writes the best essay of 1000 to 1500 words on the subject, "The Advantages of Osteopathy as a Professional Career."

The contest is open to all students who have satisfactorily completed or are soon to complete a standard four-year high school course. The scholarship is valued at $255, and will be given in either the pre-medical or professional course of the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons at Los Angeles. This institution it is stated, is recognized by the American Osteopathic Association, and is chartered by the State of California to teach osteopathy, medicine and surgery. One year of pre-medical and four professional years are required, leading to the degree, Doctor of Osteopathy, and licensure as physician and surgeon.

In addition to the scholarship provided by the Los Angeles Osteopathic Society, the winning essay in this district will be entered in the state competition of the California Osteopathic Association, offering a four-year scholarship valued at $1925. This makes it possible for a local student to win the grand award of $2175, the amount of the tuition for the full five-year course at the Los Angeles College. Arrangements have been made by the Los Angeles Osteopathic Society to register eligible students in the contest, which will close May 15. Complete information can be had by addressing the society at 799 Kensington Road, Los Angeles, or by telephoning Mutual 7794.

Grown Folks in Evening Schools Outnumber High School Students

By HOMER L. ROBERTS (United Press Staff Correspondent) SACRAMENTO, Cal. (UP)—No longer are the public schools of California limited to the education of little Mary and Johnny. Today they expect to educate Mother and Father, Aunt Sarah and Uncle Ned. Growing by leaps and bounds, adult education in this state has reached a point where the grown-ups attending evening schools outnumber the boys and girls enrolled in high schools. Every county in California is showing the result of this increased interest in education by adults. In Los Angeles county, a total enrollment of 98,184 is reported in its evening high school classes, including 50,869 men and 47,315 women.

dent, is dedicated to education in terms of purpose, rather than in terms of age," explains Mrs. Ethel R. Allen, chief of the Division of Adult Education. "This makes it entirely consistent for an evening school to find among its students grown-ups of every conceivable educational experience from those lacking all formal education to the university graduate."

Every two years the state legislature is tasked to enact laws making it possible further to expand this phase of education.

"In many instances adults are prepared and glad to pay for their education, and it is desirable that they should do so," continued Mrs. Allen. "In any case, adults should be willing to pay for their books. For this reason the school law was changed to make this possible. "It is probable that still further legislation will have to be enacted until all adult schools become independent units of the school system."

"It has been observed that the ordinary school days which eliminate Saturday and Sunday are not applicable to adult classes, since Saturday is often one of the best days for adults to go to school.

The present method of financing adult classes by use of high school funds may also need to be modified in the future."

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gilbert spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Gilbert in Los Angeles.
