Yesteryears' Newspapers
An Edition of The Cleveland Press of 1900 Owned By Mrs. E. K. Stevens of Keystone

(Editor's Note: Have you a copy of an old newspaper? If you have, The Herald would like to see it and pass on its interesting features to our readers. All old papers will be returned to the owners intact within a week after they are received.)

One of the most interesting old newspapers received by the Herald is a copy of the Cleveland (Ohio) Press, published July 14, 1900, and carrying the first stories of the massacre of 700 foreigners inaking by the Boxers. Mrs. E. K. Stevens, of Main Street, Keystone, owns the 20-year-old newspaper.

The paper contains detailed stories of the "horrible tortures" inflicted on representatives and missionaries from American and European governments by the anti-foreign Chinese forces which led to the intervention of the United States, Japan and European governments in the Boxer Rebellion.

A story headed "For Fair Bathing" recites the last word in bathing suits for the fair sex. The suit is of scarlet moirai and white flannel, ornamented with scarlet braid and trimmings; the description runs of the multi-piece "matatorial costume" as it is called.

"A distinctive feature of the suit is the long, white silk gloves, which bid fair to be very prevalent this season and which are both useful and ornamental." The hose are of white silk, trimmed by scarlet ribbons. The head covering is a deep poke bonnet, with one crush bow of scarlet silk, with ties of the same.

"Bathing suits this season," the 1900 article relates, "are being made with short stripes of elastic ribbon, holding the lower edge of the skirt to the knickerbockers beneath."

The 20-year-old newspaper also has a sports section of which a drawing of "Noodles" Hahn, the Cincinnati pitcher—who retired yesterday—without a base hit or a run—is featured. However, "Noodles" is not pictured as pitchers are now-a-days but is garbed in full dress.

Brief editorial comments in the 1900 issue state that "Many who left home for Name are sorry they did it," and "The wily Boer still steps on Johnnie Bull's toes every few days now."

Prohibition was coming into the limelight as the Press states: "By a unanimous vote the supreme court of Illinois has decided that hard cider is an intoxicating drink. Just how these sober-minded judges happened to be so unanimous about it does not appear, but the decree was set forth with an emphasis that made it very evident they knew what they were talking about."

Brotherhood Plans Supper October 31
More than 50 men gathered in the church parlor rooms for a social hour at the M. E. church on October 16. While it was the regular meeting of the committee to plan for future gatherings it was indeed a great surprise to have more than 60 men from the U. S. Steel to come in.

The Men's Brotherhood club voted to have a supper on Friday night, October 31. A noted speaker will address the men of Torrance. Music of the highest order and a program that the men will enjoy is under way for the evening.

Sample Ballots In Voter's Hands For Information
By this time all registered voters in Torrance and Lomita should have received their sample ballots, polling slips and booklets containing the proposed amendments to the constitution and proposed laws, together with argument for and against them.

This booklet deserves an evening's study. If the elector wishes to know just what he is doing when he casts his ballot for or against a proposition, according to Registrar of Voters Kerr, who, with the assistance of about 200 extra clerks, mailed out the sample ballots.

Locally, the November 4 election has but one interest; that is, the selection of a Justice of the peace for Lomita Township. The candidates are Mayor John Dennis, of Torrance, and Judge Patterson, the incumbent.

Death Rate Goes Lower As State Gains in Growth
Mortality But 11.9 Per Cent Per Thousand, Bureau Reports Now

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—A comparison of the California mortality death rate has followed the state's huge growth during the last 10 years, according to the state department of public health. Despite the large influx of elderly and ill persons from all parts of the nation, California's mortality rate, in the light of revised figures, compares favorably with those of other states.

The new figures reveal that the state had a death rate of 11.9 per thousand population last year, instead of the 13.7 death rate announced previously. The revision comes as result of the completion of California's census and the new figures supplant those based upon estimates made from year to year of the state's population during the last decade.

"General health conditions in California are especially good," Dr. Walter M. Dickie, chief of the department said, "as is demonstrated by the new mortality rate statistics. In spite of the heavy migration of invalids to this state, California's death rate is lower than is the general death rate for many other states in the union."

Home Nursing Hints
By Grace L. Smith, R. N.

The pulse is the distention or pulsation of the arteries produced by the wave of blood forced through them by the contraction of the heart muscles, and when one is taking the pulse, one is able to tell how much work the heart is doing.

There are several places where the pulse may be taken. First, on the wrist. Place your index and middle fingers on a line directly below the thumb on the wrist. Never use the thumb in taking a pulse, as the thumb has a pulse sound, and you will be "hearing" your own pulse instead of the patient's. If for some reason the pulse is not felt at this point, take it at the temple. Many times that is the most convenient place as it is no way disturbs the patient. As a matter of fact you can see the pulsation of the heart at this point.

Supposing our patient has been in an accident and the head is bandaged, also, perhaps the arms are in a cast, we still have other places where the pulse may be taken. At the base of the ear, on the corner of the lower jawbone is the carotid pulse, and in the ankles, near the ankle bone, but the pulse on the wrist is the one generally taken.

The normal pulse should feel firm, round and steady with a rate of from 72 to 88 beats per minute. After learning to take a pulse you will soon develop a sense of sound through the fingertips that take the pulse and will be able to determine any unusual heartical. The normal pulse in a male is always slower than in a female, and the normal pulse of a baby or small child is usually quite rapid.

It is very important for the nurse to be able to take a correct pulse as she will be able to assist the physician by noting and charting the pulse at regular hours.

There are many things that affect the beat of the heart. Heat and cold, excitement, heavy exercise, deep breathing, emotional reactions. Various types of diseases have their characteristic effect upon the pulse and different drugs will either increase or decrease the heart actions.

My next article will deal with respiration. If there is some particular question you wish answered, Miss Smith will be glad to take care of it for you. Please write Miss Grace L. Smith in care of this newspaper. Use a self-addressed and stamped envelope.
