ASSISTANT ESCAPES

es Not Daunt Bank
Afternoon;
Money

nd to "Stick 'em up an' n, assistant manager of a bank at 1123 Narbonne e gunman-speaker to the re counter at 2:25 o'clock gunman fired in McMullen's al direction, missed and fled a companion who had rest standing near the door of bank. They made their get-in what was thought to be ntiac sedan. An unorganized it was undertaken by Lomita nts who happened to be in ximity of the bank but the

was lost after the bandit turned off Narbonne avenue ose street.

Slug Found On Floor
thing was gained by the robin the attempt to rob the ron Beckman, manager of the h institution, was the first ash from the bank after the loutless robbers ran out.

man carried the bank's re-if but could not identify the it's car from other machines ng south on Narbonne.
e slug from the gunman's on that was fired at Mc-en was recovered on the floor e bank. Apparently it came a .32 calibre revolver.

McMullen's Story
saw the man carried a gun he had walked a few steps e bank," McMullen said. "He up to my window with it close to his chest while the fellow remained at the door. gunman was dressed in a overcoat pulled well up over eck and face and had a cap-rest of his clothing that I I see was ordinary laborer's
e. He carried a black auto-c, I believe.

Then he came up to the win-he said "Stick 'em up an' it snappy." I told him to o h-I and ducked under the
er. He fired, but wildly, ran out the door." the assist-manager said.
bandit's companion wore a colored overcoat. Both were shaven and about 35 years

RAM AT HIGH IMPRESSIVE

old, old hymn "Silent Night" orium Friday afternoon. The filled out of the building and and ever stood at the local none of the hoisterous release essiveness of the whole pro-such setting and with the s behind the window being tantly changed to lend a new,

color to the well executed resentation of stained glass art, singing groups gave those Christmas songs—"Holy, Holy, ," "Aldoramus Te" (sung in o); "The Sleep of the Child (sung in French); "The of Christ," a French Noel
; and "Lo, How a Rose," a Century madrigal.

Christmas Story Read
en Herbert S. Wood, princelread the Christmas Story—the lar account of the search for ting place, the Birth, and the ng of the Wise Men.
it Principal Wood, standing at the pulpit and in front of candelabra and clad in a e surplice like the singers, a new and more sincere ing to that great story. His ing carried a warmer, more alized note, a message of prod trustfulness that was not on his students.
herubim Song, "Beautiful our" and "Silent Night," the a really outstanding presen-by reason of the "echo" ated by the Junior A Cap-Choir which was concealed he opposite side of the stage the Madrigal Singers, closed
