

Three Hundred Words a Minute In Cagney Film

Fast Dialogue a Feature of "Jimmy the Gent"; Coming Sunday

Twenty-two takes. That many were necessary to record in celluloid a rapid-fire scene between Jimmy Cagney and Allen Jenkins in "Jimmy the Gent," the Warner Bros. picture coming to the Torrance Theatre, Sunday and Monday, April 29 and 30.

The scene bristled with action, also bristled with dialogue—short, sharp exchanges, run off at breathless speed by the two actors. It is a cinema truism that action always prevails over dialogue. It is faster, it is more significant, but here there was a difference.

Fast as the action was in this case, the dialogue was faster. Thereby, by a rough estimate, one hundred words are spoken in the average minutes of screen dialogue, three hundred words to a minute would be a nearer figure for this scene. That gives on some idea.

On the first 21 takes, there was always a snag somewhere. Jimmy looked Allen too soon; or Allen edged on the wrong lines; or Jimmy slipped some place in the river of words and came to a full stop; or Allen lost his breath again.

Anything happened—and everything. On the 22nd try Curtis and he, whole crew stood, breathless, holding their thumbs. Everybody wondered if the two actors could have the spirit or the strength—or the breath—to try again.

This time the scene rushed on without a slip. It reached its end. Cagney and Jenkins sank to chairs, exhausted. Curtis smiled. Twenty-two takes—but finally a perfect one. That's what happens when there's a race between dialogue and action—and dialogue wins every time.

Bette Davis has the leading starring role while others in the cast include Alice White, Alan Stewart, Arthur Hohl, Robert, and Phillip Reed.

Noted Actor Buys the First Block of Pageant Tickets

HEMET.—Henry B. Walthall, noted stage and screen actor, was the first purchaser of a large block of tickets for the eleventh annual Ramona Pageant, to be produced at Hemet Saturday and Sunday afternoons, April 21 and 22, April 28 and 29 and May 5 and 6, according to Edward Poorman, general manager.

Mr. Walthall expressed particular interest in the Ramona play because of the fact that he took the leading role of Alessandro, opposite Mary Pickford, in 1910, in the first motion picture based on the Ramona story. This picture, which was one of the first two-reel productions ever made, was produced by the old Biograph company of New York. Later Ramona pictures were made starring Adda Gleason and Monroe Salisbury and Dolores Del Rio and Warner Baxter.

Jean Inness, Broadway favorite returns to the title role of the Ramona play for her second season, while Victor Jory, widely known stage and screen star, will
