Business Women Will Hold State Convention At Biltmore In May

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., will hold state conventions in 33 states in April and May.—In Los Angeles, California, at the Biltmore Hotel on May 19 and 20, when Mrs. Geline Macdonald of Richmond, Virginia, national president, will be the speaker.

This year national headquarters has suggested that the state present a convention program featuring the use of the conference method. According to this plan delegates will be appointed, experts in their various fields, who will be assigned to three major discussion groups: organization, education and public affairs.

Classes for the study of parliamentary law and the Ten Year Objective will be included in the sessions. The latter is a plan by which the members are fitting themselves to assume real leadership in thinking on economic problems.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is the largest national business women's organization in the world; non-partisan and non-sectarian. It has 1350 clubs in 48 states, the District of Columbia, the Hawaiian Islands and Alaska.

Its individual clubs maintain scholarship and loan funds for educational purposes. These are the practical working out of the Ten Year Objective of the organization which also expresses itself in the establishment of lecture courses and community economic forums working toward greater security and opportunity for the average citizen.

Mrs. Bowman, who will be the convention speaker says: "The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is constantly increasing its prestige to the end that it may assume leadership among all women's organizations in the country. Composed of business women whose practical experience in economics and whose contacts are wider than those of any other group of women makes this heritage logically theirs. A plan for accomplishing this is through the practical application of our Ten Year Objective in every state, making the program of every department applicable to it."
