This week's book list is also a guessing game. Here are samples taken from four books for boys and girls. Can you guess from what book each is taken? If you have read the book, it will be easy. If you have not, the answers at the end will tell you in what book you will find the rest of the story. You can get these books at your branch of the Los Angeles county public library.

Next week—another book guessing game.
1. "I say, Peter, can you really fly?" said John.
Instead of troubling to answer him Peter flew around the room, taking the mantelpiece on the way.

It looked delightfully easy, and they tried it first from the floor and then from their beds, but they always went down instead of up.
Peter did it both slowly and quickly.
"Now just wriggle your shoulders this way," he said, "and let go."
They were all on their beds and gallant Michael let go first.

"I flew!" he screamed while still in mid-air.
John let go and met Wendy near the bathroom.
"Oh, lovely!"
"Look at me!"
"Look at me!"
They were not nearly so elegant as Peter, they could not help kicking a little, but their heads were bobbing against the ceiling, and there is almost nothing so delicious as that.

2. "Hurray, here's luck!" cried Brownie, tossing his cap into the air, and bounding right through the scullery into the kitchen. It was quite empty, but there was a good fire burning itself out, just for amusement, and the remains of a capital supper were spread on the table—enough for half-a-dozen people.
Brownie screwed up his little old face and turned up his button of a nose, and gave a long whistle.
"Whew!" said he, "here's a chance! What a supper I'll get now!"

3. He struck a most solemn blow upon the piece of wood.
"Oh, oh! You hurry!" cried the same far-away little voice.
Master Cherry grow dumb, his eyes popped out of his head, his mouth opened wide, and his tongue hung down on his chin.
The poor fellow was scared half to death, so he tried to sing a gay song in order to gain courage.

He set aside the hatchet and picked up the plane to make the wood smooth and even, but as he drew it to and fro, he heard the same tiny voice. This time it giggled as it spoke:
"Stop it! Oh, stop it! Ha, ha, ha! You tickle my stomach."
This time Master Cherry fell as if shot. When he opened his eyes, he found himself sitting on the floor.
4. Before he had time to think that he ought to let go his hold around the gander's neck, he was so high up that he would have been killed instantly, if he had only fallen to the ground.
The only thing that he could do to make himself a little more comfortable, was to try and get upon the gander's back. And there he wriggled himself, but not without considerable trouble. And it was not an easy matter, either, to hold himself secure upon the slippery back, between two swaying wings. He had to dig deep into feathers and down with both hands, to keep from tumbling to the ground.

1. Peter and Wendy by Barrie.
2. Adventures of a Brownie by Craik.
3. Adventures of Pinocchio by Lorenzini.
4. Wonderful Adventures of Nils by Lagerlof.

Evening Hi Adds Class In Chess

A course in chess has been added to the curriculum of the Torrance evening high school with Alfred L. Paul, chess expert, as instructor.

Information concerning the chess class may be had at the high school or from Mr. Paul at the Torrance Chess and Checker Club, Chamber of Commerce room, Casbrillo avenue, and Monday or Friday night.

Arrangements are being made to have Mr. Paul give public demonstrations of his ability to play simultaneously against several players, soon, and later to play blindfold. These two events will be free to those interested in chess and all players will be invited to participate.

March 7 Date For Completion Of State Road

Forty-Foot Paving Specified For Redondo-Wilmington Highway

Work on the state highway construction from Redondo Beach through Torrance to Wilmington is 10 per cent completed this week as work of grading is proceeding in Torrance, according to engineers of the state highway department.

The new highway follows Redondo-Wilmington, boulevard and is the State street project in Long Beach. The Redondo Beach-to-Wilmington project is 4.96 miles in length and three and one-half miles of this is in Torrance. One mile of the project is east of Torrance in county territory and three-fourths of a mile in county area on the west. The western limit of the project is the city limits of Los Angeles at the shoe-string strip.

The contract, which was let to the United Concrete Corporation, last spring, calls for completion of the work by next March 7. The contract was awarded at $293,563 and an additional $30,000 has been allotted for the job to take care of contingencies, supplemental work, etc.

The paving is to be 40 feet wide the entire length of the highway from Redondo Beach to the Los Angeles city limits. Material for paving will be asphalt-concrete.

Exposition Work At San Diego Starts

The first stride toward economic recovery in California, hinging upon the success of the California Pacific International Exposition in San Diego, was taken today when hundreds of men went to work in San Diego's vast, Balboa Park to prepare the grounds and buildings for next year's spectacle.

Backed squarely by civic leaders of the state, who have contributed $1,000,000 toward the $5,000,000 exposition, the international show will bring together exhibits from all parts of the world. It will open on May 29—California's welcome, through San Diego, to the world.

Enrollment has reached the 300 mark and is steadily increasing.

Tuesday, the first P. T. A. day, offered a fine program and a very lovely reception for the teachers. The P. T. A. membership drive is on this week. Many have joined.

The school gardens are being weeded out after the summer and the ground is being fitted for the fall plants.

There are some very fine farmers at Fern avenue school. Even the B-12 have a little farm in their sand table and have great fun watching the grass grow and placing the animals in the fields and barn.

Keeping Up With Torrance High

By RUTH GRANGER

This year, students are required to take as a part of their daily program, one 10-minute study period and one period of recreation. Some of the recreations offered are dramatics, publications, popular songs, skull practice, candy making, dancing, needle craft, conversational German, journalism, tennis, radio, airplane, auto mechanics, and sketching.

Frank Thompson, a substitute teacher on the high school football team, has been offered a position by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio in a football picture.

An interesting display of the agricultural department of the high school is the junior department of the county fair at Pomona. It illustrates the government plan of establishing families on small farms. Torrance residents are invited to see this display.

There will be two judging teams for Torrance high school, one, the dairy products judging team, composed of William Schipper, Wesley Brady, and Clarence Bay; the other, the dairy cattle judging team, composed of Arthur Hedrick, Manuel Howard and Joe Bay.

The officers of the World Friendship Club, one of the most popular school organizations, held an executive meeting Monday, September 24. New members were voted in and an unusually fine program was planned for the first meeting of this semester.

at Narbonne High School

The Narbonne seniors have elected officers for the new semester. Jack Yalden, popular athlete and letterman, was elected president of Miss Stiff's senior A class. Other senior A officers are Chloell Alkhan, vice president; Geneva Straub, secretary; and Merrill Franke, treasurer.

The B-12's in Mrs. Brinkerhoff's group elected Allan Rider, Narbonne football star, as president; Floyd Ramsey, vice president; Neil Haynes, secretary; Helen Hart, treasurer, and Shirley Reeves, historian.

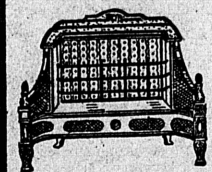

Narbonne student body members had the privilege of hearing Coach Howard Jones of U. S. C. give a short inspirational talk at an assembly Tuesday, September 25. Coach Jones brought out the fact that it is the boy's attitude, determination and ambition that will make him a good football player, and that physical strength is of secondary importance. He emphasized that it is the boy's willingness to serve that counts.

Coach Jones, whose speech was received enthusiastically by the Narbonne students, was introduced by Jack Weber, A. S. B. president. After the talk Alfred Thorsen and Clyde Beckley led the Gauchos in some school yells, in preparation for Friday's practice game with L. A. high school.
