MISS SHULTZ WEDS HOWARD McEWEN
News of the wedding on Monday, October 22, of Miss Dorothy Shultz and Howard L. McEwen, which took place at Yuma, Arizona, came as a complete surprise to the family and friends of the young couple who have just returned from a honeymoon spent at the home of the bride's brother, Robert Shultz, in Parker, Arizona. The ceremony was performed at the home of Rev. Randall B. Scott, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Yuma.

The bride was gowned in a lovely ensemble of white lace, with accessories to match. Her bouquet was a corsage of bride's roses and sweet peas. There were no attendants.
Miss Shultz, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Shultz, 1916 Arlington avenue, graduated from Narbonne high school with the summer class of 1929. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. McEwen, 1225 252d street, Harbor City, is employed by the Richmond Oil Company at Richmond, California.

CHICAGO VISITORS WEEK-END GUESTS

PARIS, (U.P.)—Some of the finest furs this winter have taken to cover. Time was, when we used to put the cheapest, ugliest furs underneath cloth coats for linings. It made them cost less, of course, even though we were a bit ashamed to let the hems flap out so that the lining could be seen.

All that is past now, and we are proud now if the fur lining of a coat displays itself to the most critical gaze. Instead of rabbit under a nice broadcloth coat, there is real ermine, mink, even sable. Some of these fur-lined coats are reversible.
Separate furs are having a great vogue—it not being quite cold enough yet to go into full fur. Double silver fox scarfs, double fisher skins with their heads plastered together so as to make one double head, and scarfs made of four sables are among the finest of the fur trimmings for cloth coats.

Practically all lavish fur collars are detachable. This permits a change of effect that seems to meet with the approval of smart society.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP

Fine furs now used for linings of cloth coats, as well as for detachable trimmings, scarfs, muffs and hats.

KRESSES ENTERTAIN NORTHERN VISITORS
