"The Million Dollar Kid" Chooses a Ford V-8

"The Million Dollar Kid of the Movies," Jackie Coogan, known throughout the world as the greatest child actor of yesterday, celebrated his twentieth birthday recently. His birthday present from his parents was a Ford V-8 de luxe coupe, his first automobile.

The chief reason for the selection, according to Bert Moeller, sales manager for the Wm. L. Hugheson Company, Ford dealers who negotiated the deal, is that his parents wish him to be protected by the all-steel body of the Ford V-8.

"Then, too, there are Jackie's personal wishes which favor a car with quick pick-up and which is dependable and easy to handle," relates Mr. Moeller. "It is worth noting that the young man did not select a brightly colored car but chose one painted black."

Jackie is a sophomore at the University of Southern California. "He is just like a lot of other serious-minded chaps except that he already has earned over a million dollars in pictures and intends to make the movies his life work. He is now interested in western pictures. He knows how to ride horses and handle a gun. He is not the slightest bit impressed with his own importance and I would say that this is due to the excellent home life and environment he is given by his parents."

Death Sentence Is Commuted To Life In Prison

Charles Tedesco, Redondo Beach cobbler who was sentenced to hang November 16 for the murder of John B. Whitehead, who was slain in Waveria last year, was given a life sentence last week when Governor Frank F. Merriam heard the pleas of four justices of the state supreme court.

Acting as private citizens the four justices appealed to Governor Merriam to commute the death sentence, on the ground that doubtful circumstances made Tedesco's conviction on circumstantial evidence an injustice.

Associate Justice William Langdon made a personal investigation in Redondo Beach after the supreme court, Langdon dissenting, had affirmed the verdict of the lower courts.

Man 1 1/2 Miles Away Gets 5000-Mile Call

The longest way 'round is sometimes the shortest way home, even for telephone calls. So it proved, at any rate, in the case of a call which traveled 5,000 miles to reach a man who was a mile and a half away as the crow flies.

Savory Pot-Roast Always In Favor

When the husband longs for "mother's cooking," ten chances to one it is the savory pot-roast and the delicious brown gravy that he recalls.

Of course, mothers have no monopoly on pot-roasts. It is only that they have prepared a pot-roast so many, many times that they have learned what cuts to buy and how to prepare them. Anyone, by using a little care, can make a delicious pot-roast, says Inez S. Willson, home economist, and here's how:

Pot-Roast
First, dredge the pot-roast with flour, season with salt and pepper and brown in hot lard. Add a small amount of moisture, either water, meat stock, tomato juice, or dilute vinegar, cover, and let simmer slowly, until done, about three hours.

It is very important that the meat be well browned, and that only a small amount of liquid be added at a time. As this cooks out more may be added, but again, it should be added in small quantities. As the liquid cooks down each time, the meat becomes a richer brown and the gravy ever so much better.

All meat is best when cooked at a low temperature, and a pot-roast is no exception. After browning, a good pot-roast must be cooked very slowly at a simmering, not boiling temperature.

Cuts to Use for Pot-Roast
The cuts usually used for pot-roasts are the chuck, rump or heel of the round. These may be boned and rolled if desired. If their fat covering is thin, they may be wrapped with either cod or back fat and tied in shape.

I. O. F. Head Sees New Party AKRON, O. (U.P.)—"The New Deal is fundamentally sound, but the youth of America are beginning to revolt against the old political systems," George I. Brael, general commanding patriarch of the International Order of Odd Fellows, said here. "The formation of a new party is inevitable," he said.

It seems that about a mile and a half from the Point Reyes radio telephone station, near San Francisco, which is the receiving point to connect the Manila-Java-Hawaii radio-telephone circuits to the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company long distance lines, there is a small cabin for making tests. In this cabin a telephone engineer works with an assortment of testing instruments to check radio signals across the Pacific in order to learn more about atmospheric and magnetic conditions for the benefit of radiotelephone transmissions.

For a while after the engineer occupied the cabin, there was no telephone line between the cabin and the receiving station. One day this engineer was in touch by telephone with Honolulu, and the Point Reyes station a mile and a half away was also in touch with Honolulu by telephone. The station had a long distance telephone call for the engineer in the cabin, and requested Honolulu to tell him so. In about half an hour the engineer arrived at the station, in response to a request that had travelled 5,000 miles.

wife. On his return from the beach, Williams stated to police that he had been accepted by a hitch-hiker, and that after he had picked the unknown party up, the rider had demanded his money, of which he had about $400, and his car. On being refused and ordered out of the car, the hitch-hiker had seized a heavy wrench and struck Williams over the head. Thinking that the man was dead or dying the unknown man jumped from the car and disappeared.

However, certain circumstances which have since come to light, cast a doubt on the authenticity of the story, and police are working on the assumption that Williams was assaulted for another reason. So far the Gardena police have not been able to discover where Williams had been stopping since he came south, as they have not been able to get in touch with any relatives. However, they have located the spot where the affair took place, which is some distance from where he was finally taken in charge.

Evidences of a struggle in a field on 132d street near Buena Vista, and the statements of a boy, Billy Morris, 11 years old, who saw two cars and several persons at that spot late in the afternoon, placed the location of the crime. From indications, it is believed that Williams entered his car and attempted to leave the scene, and that some one jumped on the running board of his car and struck him with the wrench. Tire marks showed that Williams' car had swerved into the ditch along the road twice. Footprints of a woman were found among others on the trampled ground in the field.

The homicide squad of the sheriff's office under Capt. Bright, is also making an investigation.
