Shirley's Methods Are Puzzle To All

Many directors, script writers, technicians and actors marvel at the manner in which Shirley Temple, star of the Fox Film production "Bright Eyes," which comes to the Lomita Theatre four days starting Wednesday, January 27, can memorize her lines and be better-perfect in them when called before the camera and microphone.

Most of them ask Mrs. Gertrude Temple how she trained Shirley to do this. The majority have the idea that the child has been schooled through memorizing long poems or stories.

This is not the case. Mrs. Temple states emphatically that she has never forced her little girl to memorize and recite poetry or prose.
