The picture will be shown March 10, 11 and 12 at the Plaza Theatre, Hawthorne, with Wallace Beery in "The Mighty Barnum."

ROMANTIC NIGHTS haunting melodies IN OLD VIENNA

Based on an original story by Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," and scenarized by Edgar Allan Woolf and Franz Schulz, "The Night Is Young" at the Torrance Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, carries its audience through haunting melodies, romantic nights in Vienna, into the great Imperial Opera, the Emperor's Palace, and through all the splendor, romance and gaiety that mark the gayest of Continental capitals. Harry Raff, of "Broadway Melody," "Tugboat Annie" and other hits produced the new picture, gorgeously costumed, uniformed, and staged with some of the most elaborate sets in the history of the studios.

Edward Everett Horton, Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel, Herman Bing, Rosalind Russell, Henry Stephenson, Donald Cook, Charles Judels, Albert Conti and others of note are among the players. Elaborate choruses, a great symphony orchestra, a great military review and other elaborate embellishments mark the action of the haunting love story between a young archduke and a ballet girl.

Should a Girl Choose Security or Excitement?

Should a girl choose the colorful reckless chap who is always skating on thin ice, or the solid and staid one who proves less romantic? This problem appears regularly in real life and literature but is seldom satisfactorily answered.

In Columbia's "The Best Man Wins," the Edmund Lowe-Jack Holt starring vehicle showing Saturday at the Plaza Theatre in Hawthorne, Florence Rice is called upon to make the decision. How she decides makes for one of the most romantically dramatic motion pictures seen this season.

On the same bill Saturday at the Plaza is Sally Blane in "The Silver Streak," a hair-raising thriller. The picture features the new streamline train of the Burlington railroad.

HIGH SCHOOL MOVES

The faculty and employees of the Torrance high school were occupied over the week-end, moving into the rehabilitated buildings and getting ready to hold classes there on Monday. The move was completed and business as usual is now the order of the day.

The world's most famous cat figures in "The Winning Ticket," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hilarious comedy based on the Irish Sweepstakes, with Leo Carrillo, Louise Fazenda and Ted Healy heading an ace comedy cast. The new picture comes Wednesday only to the Torrance Theatre.

The cat in question is the huge effigy that is carried through the Dublin streets on Sweepstakes Day for good luck. It is 20 feet high. This and other scenes showing in detail the conduct of the Sweepstakes figure in the fast-moving comedy drama.

Carrillo plays an Italian barber, Miss Fazenda his Irish wife, and Healy the shiftless brother-in-law. Carrillo remains in a tangle of relatives, trials and tribulations throughout the picture. Teaming him with Miss Fazenda marks a new type of comedy duo on the screen.

Charles F. Riesner directed the new picture. The supporting players include Irene Hervey and James Ellison as the romantic leads; Luis Alberni, Fumell Pratt, Akim Tamiroff, Betty Jane Graham, Billy Watson, Johnny Innes and Ronald Fitzpatrick.

GRAND OPERA snatches heard IN FILM PLAY

Snatches of grand opera will be heard in the Warner Bros. production, "The Right to Live," which comes to the Torrance Theatre on Wednesday only, March 13, with Josephine Hutchinson, George Brent and Colin Clive in the stellar roles.

The opera is "Tristan and Isolde" and the song is the Liebestode, although only parts of it are heard. The picture is not a musical at all, the scene being injected to show the lovers in the picture at opera, just after which their truth is plain.

The spectator gets the reaction of a complete opera going on with the house packed, while flashbacks reveal the lovers in their box.

Glasser of San Jacinto, president of the Hemet-San Jacinto community organization responsible for the spectacular outdoor production. In the past 11 years more than 170,000 persons have attended this colorful play, which is a dramatization of Helen Hunt Jackson's early California novel of the same name. It was in the Hemet-San Jacinto Valley that Mrs. Jackson found much of the background and many of the characters for her story.

Fern Avenue SCHOOL

All teachers will write to the homes of pupils next week regarding the work of the children for the first five weeks of the semester. Parents are invited to write or call at the school for further information, and those who call are requested to interview the teacher during intermissions and not during class time.

Parents are asked to see that their children do not come to the school before 8:30, since no teacher is on duty on the grounds until that time. Those pupils who come before 8:30 must sit on the benches in the playground and stay off the apparatus. This ruling has been adopted to prevent unnecessary accidents.

Motorists are asked to use caution in driving along the streets near the schools at all times and especially during the times when children are entering or leaving the grounds.

The "Knighthood of Youth" crusade is proving helpful due to the co-operation of the homes. Pupils have been asked to save newspapers and magazines for the paper drive to be called for in May. The school is in need of pictures and library books, which will be purchased from the money derived from the sale of the old papers.

Hobby clubs are popular. They meet every Wednesday and include stamp club, kite and airplane modelling, art, travel, glue, bird and wild flower club and harmonica band.
