VAN DE KAMP'S OPEN BAKERY HERE FRIDAY

Celebrated Holland Dutch Bakers Locate At 1325 Sartori; Souvenirs For Opening

In response to many hundreds of requests, Van de Kamp's Holland Dutch Bakers are opening one of their spic-and-span bakery stores at 1325 Sartori avenue, in the new downtown Quality Super-Market in Torrance, on Friday and Saturday this week. The formal opening will be signalized by special values and the offering of grammijs—boxes to all children, open accompanied by their parents. These boxes are really Van de Kamp windmill stores in miniature with vanes that turn and the boxes attached are filled with crisp cookies.

"We are sincerely happy to be able to provide better service to the residents of the Torrance area by means of this newest store," said Theodore J. Van de Kamp, who was in Torrance yesterday. "We consider Torrance a progressive, growing community and have long planned to introduce one of our stores here. However, the opportunity for a good location did not present itself until recently. It is a distinct pleasure to be in the same market with merchants like those in the Quality Super Market enabling the housewife to do her shopping quickly and economically at one stop.

"When those who have not been in a Van de Kamp store see our displays, we feel certain they will appreciate the advantages offered to them in the way of fine quality at pleasing prices."

Tested Recipes
 Back of these products lies a story of painstaking care and constant watchfulness to guard quality. The recipes have all been tested over a long period of time. Some of them are hundreds of years old. Master Dutch bakers of generations ago, masters in the blending of ingredients, lavished their genius on products such as Van de Kamp's bake daily.

Value is an important consideration in connection with Van de Kamp's. Prices are exceedingly attractive—within the reach of all. The size of the Van de Kamp company, which now operates 125 stores, has resulted in many economies in purchasing and production which they have passed on to their patrons in consistently lowered prices. It has resulted, too, in many refinements which only an organization operating on a large scale can utilize—such as testing laboratory assistance, studies in home-type baking, elaborate research in baking technology, and the services of the most skilled baking specialists in all departments.

The Van de Kamp Kitchens, located at Fletcher Drive and San Fernando Road, Los Angeles, with a floor area of 3½ acres, are the largest and most efficient of the diversified type in the world. Here every baking operation is handled scientifically, with the utmost dispatch consistent with maintenance of the bakery's fine-quality reputation.

Humidity and temperature control systems, ovens capable of the minutest adjustments, and the latest facilities feature this amazing plant. The proof box, accommodating 54 racks for fresh fruits, butter, eggs and other ingredients occupy an area of 2,400 square feet. The best ovens for every type of bake are used, including a battery of hearth peel ovens, five rotary ovens, 14 revolving ovens, and eight electric ovens. The doughnut department has a capacity of approximately 1,900 doughnuts an hour. All pans and other utensils are automatically washed, and dried after every operation, being practically sterilized in the process.

So well-located is this kitchen that the average time of deliveries is less than 15 minutes, bringing products oven-fresh and fragrant to all locations.

Ice Cream
 Those acquainted with the Van de Kamp products may not be familiar with the fact that they have made a tremendous success with ice cream during the last year. This is a fine quality ice cream sold in rather an unusual way. Van de Kamp's pack their ice cream so that it may be purchased just like one would purchase bread. The ice cream is packed to be just right when served for periods as long as 12 hours, thereby enabling the housewife to buy her ice cream in the morning for dinner time serving. A sensation has been created by Van de Kamp's this year through the introduction of a so-called "Van de Kamp"—a delicious new type cone.

At the opening, Friday and Saturday, experienced salesladies, dressed in immaculate Holland Dutch costumes will serve patrons in the courteous manner which has made so many friends for Van de Kamp's.

In the adjoining column will be found a Van de Kamp advertisement which tells of the pleasing specials offered at reduced prices. Van de Kamp's specials are offered daily and have become tremendously popular because of the exceptional values, and readers are urged to take advantage of them.

Here's a Real Health Habit!

"Put the Milk Pitcher on the Table!"

AND because it's there on the table right where everyone can reach it, the old pitcher says, "Drink me!" Not one will resist it. Jim and Betty, Dad and Mother—all will drink their share.

They know it's good for them—know it's the cheapest health insurance that they can buy.

Mayfair is like that. It builds up energy, stores up resistance to sickness, keeps minds and bodies alert—all at the same time it is tempting summer appetites with its creamy, rich look and flavor.
