Paris Styles

PARIS (U.P.)—Printed material is being put to interesting new uses in evening gowns this season. Mainbocher chooses a delicate print in pink and white organdy to fashion a youthful dance frock. The same print in pale blue and white organdy is used to edge the V decollete in black and to form a sash.

Today's Fashion Tip

Summer evening gowns are made more interesting by unusual handling of flowered prints. Rosine Paris shows an interesting Japanese print with bright fanshape floral designs on a black background. Carrying out the Oriental idea, the dress is gathered in fullness in back to form a fan-tail train. A sash of the same material ties in back over the fan-tail train.

DINNER-SHOWER HONORS BRIDE-ELECT

Crystal silver and white decorated the table for the dinner party Thursday evening, when Miss Eva McCormack entertained at the Dennis home, 1821 Amargosa avenue, for Miss Dorothy Carson. A silver bowl filled with gardenias graced the center of the table and white tapers in silver candelabra were placed at each end. Mirrors beneath the bowl and tapers added to their beauty. Nut cups of silver were tied with white ribbon and a corsage of gardenias was placed for each guest. In the party were Miss Carson, Mrs. Alma Smith, Miss Daisy Koehler, Miss Phyllis Knorr, Miss Mary Kishman, Miss Ethel Guyan, Mrs. Esther Dennis and Miss McCormack.

Following the dinner a lady called Miss Carson on the phone to ask her to learn about house-keeping from Mrs. Dennis. Miss Carson agreed to peek under the bed and on the kitchen shelves. Later the same voice called on the phone to advise Miss Carson to learn about packing trunks by looking in Miss McCormack's trunk. On following this advice many lovely personal gifts for Miss Carson were revealed. Bridge furnished further diversion with prizes for high scores awarded to Miss Koehler and Miss Carson.

Miss Carson with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Carson, left Friday for Fort Collins, Colorado, to become the bride of Dale Bushnell. The ceremony will be performed in the Fort Collins Episcopal church, Wednesday, July 10.
