Valley Cities Seek Admission To Metropolitan

Ranchers of Citrus Belt Are Anxious to Obtain Surplus Water

Prospect of getting additional cities into the Metropolitan water district, which now has ten member cities, loomed today following the appearance of a delegation of east San Gabriel Valley citizens before the directors at their last meeting.

Member cities now in the district are Beverly Hills, Burbank, Compton, Glendale, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Marino, Santa Monica and Torrance.

Communities represented at the meeting, held last Friday afternoon, were Claremont, Glendora, La Verne, Pomona and San Dimas.

As spokesman for the delegation, J. R. Shoemaker, of Claremont, declared that the group represented the owners of many thousands of acres of citrus land in the foothill district between Glendora and a section extending into San Bernardino county. Their chief concern, he pointed out, was to obtain water for their citrus lands.

The district directors, through W. P. Whitsett, of Van Nuys, chairman of the board, told the delegation they would be glad to discuss the possibility of agreement. Whitsett said he would appoint a committee to handle the matter.

It has not been decided what is the proper method to follow in admitting new members, as there are differences in the procedures used in the case of a city and of an unincorporated area.

The Metropolitan water district has never decided what policy to follow in regard to providing ranchers with "surplus water" from the Colorado river aqueduct when such water become available. This "surplus water" is what the ranchers are mainly interested in, it was stated.

Building Permits Greatly Increased

Total value of building permits in the city of Torrance for the first six months of 1935 increased more than 440 percent over the total issued for the same period in 1934, according to a report sent out by the Federal Housing Administration recently. Torrance was 23rd in the list of 44 incorporated cities in Los Angeles county, with a total of $149,568 in permits for the six months ending June 30. Last year's total at the same date was $33,962.

Increased Sales Mark Business Walter G. Linch

That increased sales by Walter G. Linch, Dodge and Plymouth dealer, is an indication of improved financial conditions in general, is apparent. In the first four months of the year this dealer had one of the best balanced operations of unit sales that could be made, 550 percent above the quota fixed by the factory.

So far this year total sales are larger than for the entire 12 months of 1934. This is according to figures found in Motor Recorder, a trade paper.

Redondo Beach and Walter G. Linch are getting publicity over the air connection with tri-weekly broadcasts over KFI at 8:30 p. m.

Linch has 16 employees in his place and everyone from the boss down is busy all the time. Linch still adheres to the NRA in principle, maintaining the same wages and hours as prevailed under the code.

The repair shop is especially busy, being filled with cars for service. The shop has a well-deserved reputation for fixing anything wrong in an automobile.

According to a special dispatch from Detroit, Dodge dealers' retail deliveries took another spurt during the week ending June 29. They reached 9,539 new passenger cars and trucks for the week.

This delivery volume compared to sales recorded for the corresponding weeks of former years, makes the week, in point of sales, the second highest in the company's history, being exceeded only by the week ending May 1, 1926, in which passenger car and truck deliveries reached the total of 9,927 units.

Dealer reports so far tabulated by the office of A. vanDerZee, general sales manager of Dodge division, Chrysler Motors, show that passenger car deliveries made during the week ending June 29 consisted of 8,253 Dodges and Plymouths, as against 7,137 for the preceding week; Dodge truck sales accounted for 1,386 vehicles, as against 1,210 in the preceding week.

Sales by Dodge dealers for the first six months of 1935 now stand at 164,171 Dodge and Plymouth passenger cars, and 27,474 Dodge commercial cars and trucks—total, 191,645 deliveries as against 122,620 recorded for the first six months of 1934.

In addition to 8,253 new passenger cars and trucks delivered by Dodge dealers during the latest report week, they sold 9,026 used vehicles.

Orders reaching the factory from Dodge dealers in all sections of the country are said to continue in a volume auguring well for the accelerated summer business which Dodge sales officials forecast some time ago and which is now, quite evidently, being realized.

The used car department has some wonderful bargains this week. Naturally with so many sales of Dodges and Plymouths, a number of excellent automobiles are taken in as first payment on the deal. And to make these used cars move quickly, Linch has arranged a low down payment with 24 months to pay the balance. Because Linch has been in business 13 years he is featuring this, his 13th sale of new and used cars. He has a stock valued at $13,000. His store number of 313 South Catalina avenue should be 313 to maintain the sequence of "unlucky" (?) 13's, but it is near enough.

Sales of Ice Refrigerators Show Increase

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Air conditioned ice refrigerators continued to sell in increasing numbers throughout Southern California during June. Duff Hartwell, Los Angeles general manager of the Union Ice Company, reported today.

Unit sales of domestic ice refrigerators reported by 15 distributors in the territory showed an increase of 27 percent over June of 1934, while total sales for the first six months of 1935 were 30 percent greater than a year ago.

Hartwell pointed out that not only in the domestic field, but also in commercial refrigeration and air conditioning a definite trend toward ice-using equipment was noted.

The Union Ice Company's engineering staff has been kept busy with installations of both permanent and portable air cooling equipment in homes, offices and business establishments throughout Southern California. At the same time, many proprietors of food stores have installed display cases and commercial refrigerators using ice for the refrigerant.

The popularity of ice equipment is largely due, Hartwell said, to its air conditioning feature, which keeps perishables fresh and moist for long periods, as well as to the low original cost and small depreciation and upkeep.

There was no such word as DEPENDABILITY
until Dodge taught the world what it means

On an eventful day in 1914, the first Dodge was created, giving the world an entirely new concept of motor car value.

Here, for the first time, was a car of unlimited ruggedness, a car whose builders had dedicated their efforts to the ideal that the first requisite in manufacturing a motor car is that it be a good motor car.

Here was a car that gave motorists quality and performance, a car that opened a new epoch in motoring. In it were the intangible properties, the indefinite mettle that inevitably stamp the product of genius.

Dodge was powerful—sturdy. A car built to stand the test of months and miles and give its users honest, never-failing service.

There existed no single word adequate to describe this car. No set phrase could typify its merit. Then the goodness of the product inspired the word "dependability" and instantly the world took it up, passed it from lip to lip, until that one word came to be the symbol of all that the name Dodge implied.

Today, others use this word, make use of its implication. But in the public mind, Dodge and Dependability will ever be inseparable, because three million Dodge owners are massed testimony to the fact that dependability is more than a word—it is a tradition, an underlying principle, that for 21 years has governed the creation of every Dodge car and Dodge truck.

During all these years, the ideal of making the Dodge name always mean dependability, has enlisted the finest efforts of progress in the engineering and manufacturing organization, and ingrained its spirit in the able and friendly Dodge dealers who serve you.

"The word 'dependability' first appeared in Dodge advertising because a household word and has subsequently been added to all standard dictionaries. The ideal represented by this characteristic policy, in early days, has been maintained by Dodge throughout the years, ever present in the product, by engineering leadership and value."
