Circus Given By Playground Children Is Splendid Success

Torrance Playground's first annual circus last Saturday proved to be a huge success. From the start of the big parade to the last drop of pink lemonade, it was the most successful affair conducted by the playground children. The "wild animals," daring acrobatics, graceful dancers, and the funny antics of the clowns all attracted to the hours of work by participants and their playground instructors.

In the parade through the downtown streets was the Hill Billie band of Long Beach, a cavalcade of real horses and their small riders, a herd of "wild" animals, elephants, camels, giraffe—all built on the playgrounds; troupes of small dancers in costumes of all nations, and flocks of funny clowns. There was the Sewing Club from the city park playground, dressed as their great-grandmothers did, sewing on a quilt they had made themselves. And to complete the parade, a section of decorated bicycles and pushbikes.

The hit of the side shows was little Binky, the four-year-old snake charmer with real live snakes. Binky recently became famous over the country for his preference for snakes over kittens and puppies as pets. The gypsy fortune teller also had a long line waiting at her tent.
