Fire Fighting Ford

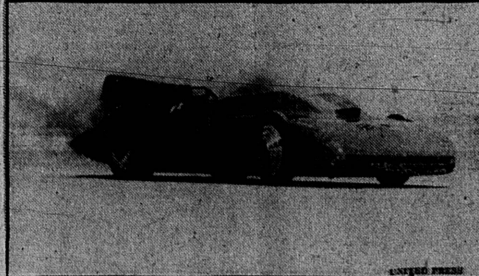

Members of the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at America's Exposition inspect the new Ford V-8 fire truck upon its delivery. The design and equipment were developed by the United States Forest Service under the Department of Agriculture.

A specially designed and equipped Ford V-8 truck has been delivered to the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at America's Exposition in Balboa Park, San Diego. It will be used by trained members of the corps in demonstration of fighting forest fires and as auxiliary fire protection for the Exposition buildings.

Equipment for the Ford truck has been developed by the United States Forest Service under the Department of Agriculture. The truck is equipped with a special pump run by the motor and has an 80-gallon water tank. The truck is capable of drafting water from streams and reservoirs. The pump will throw 20 gallons of water per minute when the motor is turning over at 1750 revolutions per minute and 15 gallons when the motor is idling. The truck also carries 300 feet of one-inch hose, supply of shovels, axes, back pack pumps and a radio. It is the same type of truck that is used in National Forests in California.

Each Ranger Station in the National Forests is equipped with a big tank truck carrying 500 gallons of water and 2000 feet of hose. A smaller tank truck similar to the one at the CCC camp. This combination provides fast attack on the forest fires and has been the means of reducing the burned area in the National Forests of California. The small tank truck, such as the Ford V-8, always leaves first for the fire as it can make a fast run and control the fire until the big tank truck arrives with its extra supply of water and equipment.

According to the Portuguese fisherman, interviewed by deputies, Anderson was alleged to be under cover man for Michael E. Local agents of the commission are also said to have repudiated any dealings with Anderson.

Tunnel Men Are Needed For Work On Sewer Job

Shortage of Experienced Labor Reported By State Employment Service

Experienced tunnel men residing within the County Sanitation districts were urged today to register with the state employment service office at Long Beach, for work on the White Point outfall sewer project.

A large number of experienced tunnel men will be required for the project, since it is expected that the work will be carried on day and night at several points. A six-mile tunnel is to be driven through the Palos Verdes Hills, as the principal feature of the huge outfall that is to serve Torrance and other communities throughout the county.

A federal grant of $72,000 recently was made and work now is under way. Contracts for the work totaling $2,526,000 were awarded in July and August and all of the work now is under way although some little time will be required before all of the contracts will be going "full blast."

One of the conditions of the federal grant is that all men required for the project shall be provided through the United

Postal Savings Now Being Received

Miss Birda Paddock, postmaster at Lomita, announced this week that the new department of postal savings had opened on September 9, with gratifying success. Due to delay in Washington, the forms were not on hand to start receiving the savings accounts on the first of the month as had been expected. Frank Anderson, young Narbonne high school student, had the honor of setting up the first account. Frank paid daily visits to the office after September 1 until the opening date. Increased business in this department is noted daily, says Miss Paddock, who has added several real improvements to the postal service at Lomita since she took office.
