BUSINESS WOMEN MEET TUESDAY

Members and guests of the National Business and Professional Women of Torrance held their first dinner meeting of the season Tuesday evening, at the Old Home Inn, 200 No. Catalina avenue, Redondo Beach, where they enjoyed a splendid dinner served by Mrs. L. Malenske, and an illustrated talk on telephone communications by Dean Smith, public relations official of the Southern California Telephone Company.

By means of talking pictures the club was shown and informed on the method of installing telephone to shore communications and also many other interesting details of the means of carrying on national radio broadcasts, which are supplemented by telephone hook-ups, in order to bring the programs to the most distant points as clearly and well as they leave the broadcasting studios.

Mr. Smith also demonstrated an instrument called an artificial larynx, by means of which persons who have lost the power of speech are able to make intelligible sounds and so regain the ability of communicating with their fellows by means of speech. He invited the club to visit the telephone company's building in Los Angeles where he said all known methods of wire and wireless communication are in use.

The evening closed with a few amusing contests. Mrs. Ruth Arzilli, chairman, Mrs. Orda Pettzke and Mrs. Sabrey Botkin, research committee, arranged the program. Miss Birda Paddock, postmaster at Lomita, was elected to membership. Mrs. Collier, president, and Mrs. Mott, of the South Bay club, which sponsored the organization of the Torrance unit five years ago, were among the guests.

Hair ribbons of red and blue for everyone and dunce cap for those the teacher couldn't seem to handle to her satisfaction. The entire exhibit is laid with oranges, lemons and grape fruit. A scene on one side shows the golden fruit being transported from the packing house to the train in which it is to be carried to the far corners of the country. Paris Styles

By MARY FENTRESS
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS. (U. P.)—Some of the most wearable frocks found in any Paris collection were seen at the Marjorie Dunton opening. This is a new house which has catered to private clients but until this year has never given showings for press and American and foreign buyers.

Marjorie Dunton is an American who has lived here for some time and has incorporated in her clothes the best features of both American and Parisian fashions.

Her sports clothes are particularly interesting with a variety of woolen materials in soft autumn shades. Outstanding is a dress of rust colored wool with a yoke of beige wool applied in a double V design back and front. This motive is repeated in the small turn over collar which trims the high neck. The dress has pockets formed by double tucks, and there is a row of buttons running up the back.

She shows an ensemble in a plaid of two shades of green and a burgundy red which has a plain skirt worn with a blouse of soft kidskin in the lighter shade of green. A fluted ruffle lines the front opening and edges the collar and cuffs, and the kidskin is crushed at the waist to form a girde which fastens with a buckle in front. The coat has a cape collar which can be pulled up high at the neck with a drap effect or can be worn hanging loosely as a shoulder cape.

Burgundy red moire makes an evening gown with an intricate sash of crushed blue velvet. The sash circles the waist in front, then is pulled through the side seams to emerge as an edging of the low back decollete. Narrow shoulder straps are of velvet, and there is an exaggerated circular peplum below the waist.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP
Soft greens, rusts, deep aqua-marine blues and brown make colorful woolen dresses for fall.
