AGED MAN is found dead IN HOME

Funeral services were to be held this week for Samuel P. Morris, father of Charles G. Morris, of route 1, box 604, Torrance.

A bullet wound in his head, the elder Morris was found dead in his cottage at the rear of the machine shop at 841 East Fourth street, Los Angeles, where he served as night watchman.

Beside him lay his shaggy old fox terrier, that has been his inseparable friend for years. The dog also was dead of a bullet wound in the head.

Morris became ill two weeks ago and although bedridden he refused to allow his pet to be taken from him. He told his employer, Fred Miller, that when he died his dog would go with him, that the friends would not separate even in death.

The coroner's office announced today that there would be no inquest.

Wirth Named Law Enforcement Officer

Poultrymen in Los Angeles county have awaited with interest the appointment of the new egg law enforcement officer for Southern California.

According to L. D. Sanborn, assistant farm advisor in charge of poultry work in Los Angeles county, Clarence A. Wirth of Arcadia received the appointment and is already at work making a study of the egg law enforcement situation in Southern California.

Sanborn states that Wirth, a former poultry producer, passed first in the state civil service examination. He has recently been in the employ of the Los Angeles county agricultural commissioner where he carried on quarantine and standardization inspection activities.

Wife's Dog Breaks Up Home
JOPLIN, Mo. (U.P.)—A dog may be man's best friend, but 24 of them can undo the friendliness business, according to Edward H. Shackelford. Shackelford cited in his petition for divorce that his wife rounded up that many dogs and insisted he feed them.
