

Children Hurt Crossing Streets

Little Elizabeth Ann Van Arsdale, age 3, who crossed with her parents at 2318 El Dorado, received a cut on her left ear and friction burns on the left arm Saturday when she ran into the side of a car driven by Gilbert R. Derovin, 1718 Portola, as she was crossing the street. Derovin took the child to the Jared Sidney Torrance Memorial hospital where she was given first aid.

Another little tot, Dawn Marie Parry, age 2½, 1816 Andree, who was crossing the street at 218th and Andree avenue with her sister Frances, age 5, was struck by a car driven by Mrs. R. B. Wallace. She was not seriously injured.

Morgan's Disappearance In 1826 Brings Forward New Party

By C. B. ROBERTSON

In 1826, William Morgan, a citizen of western New York, announced his intention to publish a book in which the secrets of Freemasonry were to be disclosed. It was printed at Batavia, New York. On September 11, Morgan was seized at Batavia, upon a criminal charge, by a company of men who came from Canandaigua. He was taken to that place, tried and acquitted on the criminal charge, but immediately arrested on a civil process for a trifling debt. He was cast into jail there, and the next night was discharged by the agency of several individuals, to Fort Niagara, at the mouth of Niagara river, and deposited in the powder magazine there. It was known that the Freemasons had made violent attempts to suppress Morgan's announced book, and this outrage was charged upon the fraternity. A committee was appointed at a public meeting held at Batavia to endeavor to ferret out the perpetrators of the outrage.

The committee found evidence of the existence of what they believed to be an extended conspiracy, with many agents and powerful motives. Similar meetings were held elsewhere. Public excitement became very great and widespread, and a strong feeling soon pervaded the public mind that the Masonic institution was responsible for the crime. The profound mystery in which the affair was involved gave rise to a thousand absurd rumors. Mutual animosities and recriminations became violent, and entered into all religious, social and political relations.

Anti-Masonic Party Formed
A strong anti-Masonic party was soon created, at first social in its character, but soon it became political. This feature of the party first appeared at town meetings in the spring of 1827, where it was resolved that no Mason was worthy to receive the votes of freemen. A political party for the exclusion of Masons from public offices was soon spread over the state of New York and into several other states, and ran its course for several years. In 1832 a national anti-Masonic convention was held in Philadelphia, in which several states were represented, and William Wirt, of Virginia, was nominated for the office of president of the United States. Although the party polled a considerable vote, it soon afterwards disappeared. Dewitt Clinton was defeated for governor of New York in 1828, because he held membership in the fraternity. The fate of Morgan after he reached the magazine at Fort Niagara was never positively revealed.

Speaker Features of 1936 Willys 77 Outlined By Torrance Dealer

Dr. George Orle, chairman of the board of regents of the American College of Surgeons, who will address a public health meeting as a feature of the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons now in session in San Francisco.

Again engineering alertness in automobile construction is emphasized as the bigger and roomier 1936 Willys 77 made its initial public appearance last week at the show-rooms of L. James Jenkins, 1316 Cabrillo avenue, Torrance.

Exterior body lines and interior trimmings indicate a design ordinarily reserved for higher priced cars, while improvements in smoothness of operation, power and economy have been placed beneath the motor hood.

The power plant is supported by patented rubber mountings that eliminate vibration. A vacuum controlled igniter, higher compression and an adjustable main jet in the carburetor provide gasoline mileage up to 35 miles per gallon.

An entirely new design of the 1936 Willys 77's rear construction has resulted in a back slope which reaches to the fender bottoms; a metal cover completely shields spare wheel and tire; twin tail lights with integral stop lights mounted on the body without brackets. The high hood adopted a year ago has been retained together with the narrow radiator grille. Head lamps are set within the fender mountings with twin openings for horns beneath. Through a unique method of painting the hood louvre ports an entirely different effect is obtained on the 1936 models. Artillery type steel spoke wheels have been utilized for beauty and ruggedness.

A new instrument board has four openings, two on each side, with two pockets in the cowl trim. The rear seat is set to give an additional four inches of foot space while a luggage compartment, ample for two medium-sized suitcases is behind the rear seat. The front seat has been made one single, adjustable unit and the back tilts forward to permit easy access to rear-seat occupants when entering or leaving the car.

Among the chassis features are an improved steeltraulic brake hook-up; fixed type windshield to prevent leakage; silent "U" shackles at rear of springs; wider cowl ventilator and body insulation against dust, wind and water.

Safety has been stressed in the construction of the 1936 Willys all-steel passenger body. Authorities consider the new model, with its over-all length of 164 inches a veritable fortress of steel.

The mileage economy which has attracted much attention in the past three years is again being obtained with the engine which has a bore of 3½ inches and a stroke of 4½ inches. It develops 48 horsepower at 3200 r.p.m. and, with its block of iron and steel-nickel alloy, is capable of attaining speeds of 70 miles per hour.

Passenger bodies include the four-door sedan and two passenger coupe in either special or standard design. Many body colors are available. The two delivery units, the panel-delivery and cab pick-up are also attracting commercial attention, it was declared by Mr. Jenkins.

Funds Appropriated For Lomita Blvd.

Appropriation of $10,000 was voted this week by the board of supervisors, to finance the improvement of Lomita boulevard, between Narbonne and Aliene avenues, a distance of 567 lineal feet.

The supervisors also awarded the contract, on recommendation of Road Commissioner George Jones, to the low bidder announced last week.

Work involved includes the placing of 370 tons of pre-mixed concrete on the top of 900 tons of disintegrated rock base, the construction of 528 lineal feet of cement curb, 192 square feet of concrete gutter, three catch basins, the laying of 144 feet of 15-inch and 18-inch corrugated metal pipe to care for storm waters, and 3,621 square feet of cement sidewalk.
