It's Christmas again and 1935 will soon be history. But it passes without regrets. And 1936, like all "next years," promises much . . . much in happiness . . . much toward that elusive "national recovery" of which we hear and talk so much, but know so little. But with the coming of Christmas and with it the first realization that the year is about gone, men are given to reflection. And with that comes good feeling toward other men and the desire to wish them happiness and good cheer.
It is in that spirit that the business men whose greetings are to be found on this page extend to everyone their appreciation and their sincere thanks for your past patronage and favors.
