Authorities Challenged

To Curb Dangerous Practices Of Motoring Public

Mrs. Raymond Gillette, safety chairman for 10th district Parent Teachers Association, agrees with the California safety council that violations of over-time parking regulations receive too much emphasis; not enough stress is placed on signal jumping, stop sign observance, and proper cross-walk protection at night which are the underlying factors in the accident situation.

This is the challenge leveled at traffic authorities by William May Garland, president of the California Safety Council, Inc., as he departed for Berlin to study Germany's traffic control regulations and attend the Olympic Games.

Work of Noted Artists Shown At the Library

Beautiful Water Color Sketches Adorn Walls of Lecture Room

Thirteen new water color sketches adorn the walls of the public library lecture room, replacing the exhibit of block prints and color work which was brought down from Los Angeles at the opening of the new building.

The new exhibit is furnished by the Federal Arts Project. All of the sketches are interesting, and will appeal to the art lover since they present a wide variety of subjects.

To the one who just "likes pictures" probably the most attractive sketch will be the "Mecca Pastoral" by Henri de Kruijff, with its skillful blend of vivid coloring and its suggestion of happy idle days, or Dana Bartlett's "Green Field."

Historical Scenes
For those who like a flavor of the local and historical there is the "Inlet, Balboa" by Dana Bartlett, "Eagle Hotel—Old Stage Depot," "Schoolhouse—Scott Bar," "Chinese Joss House, Weaverville," by Wm. S. McCall. "Sunday At the Brickyards" by Stephen de Hospodar, admirably portrays the mournful silence and loneliness of a hive of industry temporarily deserted by its human brood. The artist presents another, equally suggestive, aspect of arrested progress in his sketch of a ship on the ways, titled "In For Repairs."

Carnival Spirit
Donald Anderson's "County Fair" catches the whoopla spirit of carefree America on its rounds of carnival amusements. To this sketch the eye comes back again and again to catch the delicate color tones and the thrill of its action. An entirely different note is struck by Carlos Dyer's "Prairie Junction," one of the industrial type pictures, which include the interesting "Home of the Iron Horses," by Henri de Kruijff and "The River Bed" by John W. Wardham.

"The Shrine of St. Francis" by de Kruijff is perhaps the most beautiful sketch in the collection, for its spiritual values, intricate detail and lovely coloring. The collection will be on view at the library for another ten days, or possibly longer, and the public is cordially invited to look them over.

Tips That Beautify

Summer Care of Hair and Scalp
By KATHERINE MULLIN

Summer winds and the increased heat of the summer sun bring about the hardest trial a person's hair ever undergoes. To treat this problem correctly the hair should first have a tonic applied to stimulate new growth. Following this a softener should be used as a conditioner. Then with the hair soft and well massaged, a shampoo will clean and freshen the scalp. The treatment should be completed by using further tonics and the proper scientifically proportioned cream accompanied by the correct massaging. One such treatment a week should keep the hair and scalp in the best of condition throughout the hottest season.
