New York Fashions
By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

Mary Brooks Picken, 285 Madison avenue, New York. Patou's fall collection is the finest in the tradition of the house. He uses lovely materials and exquisite finishes and the entire collection expresses true chic. Smoke blue and arbois red are the new colors of this house which uses much satin and broadcloth for day wear. One cloth dress has a lace yoke in wool thread lace. Evening hats have amusing veils dipping low over the face or with ruffled trims. Velvet hats with pointed crowns have face veils to the nose repeated from the tip of the crown point in back. One felt hat actually has two round veils of heavily dotted chenille descending from the back of the crown to the waist.

Patou shows also many evening headresses with sweeping veils starting from a crown of flowers or feathers. In dresses he uses black net worked in bands in a widening skirt. In the same way he uses close patterned insertion to outline a square neck and this is repeated in rows on the skirt. He also uses chantilly lace and chiffon in alternating bands. Another dress featuring lattice bands with black sequins has a long cape of double net. Gilets for tailored suits have narrow lace edgings. Worth collection includes a black net appliqued with silk designs.

Norman Hartnell of London held showing in Paris. Shows a rust colored wool lace jumper with a bottle tweed suit. He uses much lace and tulle in widening skirts and features shirred bands in voluminous skirt bottoms. He also uses all colors in tulle in models with drop shoulders and big ruches, and has one model in black and white lace with velvet bands in the skirt. Shows a beige lace blouse with a blue cloth skirt.

Wanda Koffler in her collection of hand knits has silk evening coats knitted in all lace stitches, including Venice, fish, binche, and rosepoint.

Mental Marvel On the Stage At Legion Frolic

Princess Pat Will Amaze Audience With Feats of Description

One of the outstanding attractions at the American Legion Frolic to be presented in the municipal auditorium on the night of Sept. 25, will be in the person of Princess Pat, the world's youngest mental marvel. Princess Pat, blindfolded, describes articles of every name and nature upon the person of members of the audience.

Princess Pat's manager offers to forfeit $100 in cash to anyone who presents an article of any type which she cannot describe.

Princess Pat has appeared in almost every country on the civilized globe. Her work has attracted royalty to the extent that she has given performances for the rulers of foreign lands as well as for national celebrities of our own country. The performance given by Princess Pat is well worth the price of admission alone, but in addition, the American Legion Frolics of 1936 has added to the program such outstanding vaudeville celebrities as the Taylor Sisters, renowned acrobats; Swor & Good, blackface comedians; Clifford and Moran, exponents of comedy; Felix Vallee, roper and protegee of the late Will Rogers, Aloha the Mystic, and others.

The bride will be gowned in white lace with bridal veil and will carry a shower bouquet of gardenias and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. Addie Montague will play the wedding march.

Following the ceremony a reception will be held in the guild hall for the more than 100 invited guests.

The young couple will occupy a newly furnished home in Long Beach when they return from a northern honeymoon.

Gilbert-Wilson Nuptials
Miss Pearl Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace H. Gilbert, 1631 Cota avenue, and Eugene Wilson, of Illinois, were quietly married Saturday at 3:30 p. m., in the home of Rev. W. S. Buchanan at Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Merton Gilbert were the attendants at the wedding which was witnessed by the bride's mother and father and Mrs. Stanley Gilbert. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple went to San Francisco on their honeymoon. They will arrive at the Gilbert home late this week.

The bride has resided in Torrance the greater part of her life, was graduated from Torrance high school and has a host of friends here. The groom is a navy man on the battleship Arizona.

McGee-Hein Wedding

Ed Hein and Dorothy McGee surprised their many Torrance friends Saturday, when they slipped away and were married in Santa Maria. After a honeymoon trip to the northern part of the state they will make their home in Torrance. Mr. Hein is part owner of Torrance Super Service Station.
