New Scenic Delights Opened to Pacific Coast Motorists Says Mobilgas Scout

New scenic delights, greater ease and satisfaction in driving, new travel thrills, have been made available to motorists in the Pacific Coast states in recent months. This condition has been brought about by expenditure of large sums for highway work in Washington, Oregon and California. The result is, according to officials of General Petroleum Corporation, that motoring is establishing high records, new car sales are up more than 30 per cent, gasoline and oil consumption has shown marked gains, while business generally has benefited from this travel activity. Today, motorists are seeing the entire Pacific region, and enjoying its matchless scenic grandeur as never before. Pictures herewith, show just a few of the highway projects which more firmly establish the Pacific's right to the title "America's Playground."

No Answer Yet From Board on Transportation

Walteria Residents Still Waiting for Ruling on Petition

Residents of Walteria who have children attending Narbonne high school are still waiting for some response from the Los Angeles city school board of education to their petition for free transportation for the students to and from the schools. Soon after school opened in September the question of the legality of the charge for bus service was raised, and the parents involved appealed to the city of Torrance to assist them in their battle to obtain free transportation. The matter was placed in the hands of City Attorney C. T. Rippy, who forwarded a petition, signed by a large number of Walteria residents, to the board.

According to Mr. Rippy, no answer has yet been received. In a report to the council Tuesday night he stated that at the present time the matter was still pending, but that nearly all of the Walteria students were riding free of charge to and from the school.

School records, however, show that of the 73 students at Narbonne who come from Walteria, 31 are exempt from payment through the application of the parents which have been approved by the board because of the financial inability of the applicant to pay; 16 are paying full price of $2 for one child, $1 each for others in the family; and 26 are paying a part of the fee. The latter are mostly Japanese, whose parents are wage workers in poor circumstances.

Of those who have paid the full price, a few have paid under protest as advised to do by the Torrance officials until the question could be definitely settled. Attorneys here are of the opinion that the transportation charge is illegal under the state law which requires a board of education to furnish transportation to pupils in the school district.

School authorities argue that the expense of transporting students whose parents are able to pay for the service should not be saddled upon the taxpayers in general. The cost of maintaining bus service is a considerable item in the budget and should be lightened as much as possible by the assessing of fees for the service to parents whose incomes are sufficient to warrant their paying for transportation.

Territory of Hawaii Will Ask For Statehood Next January

HONOLULU, (U.P.)—Hawaii will renew its efforts to become the 49th state of the Union on the opening day of Congress next January.

Samuel Wilder King, the territory's delegate to Congress, has announced that he will introduce the necessary resolution the first day, asking for the appointment of a joint committee of the senate and house with authorization to hold formal hearings in Hawaii on its request for statehood.

"Hawaii, we believe, is entitled to full statehood, having passed her 38th year of successful self-government as a territory," declared King. "While previous efforts to gain statehood have not been successful, they nevertheless have paved the way and have brought more recognition of Hawaii in legislative matters."

Believes Time Opportune
King insists that in asking the appointment of a joint committee at the coming session of Congress, the aims of statehood will be advanced. He is convinced that Hawaii is ready for statehood today and that it is only justice to the people who 38 years ago voluntarily annexed their islands to the United States that their claims should receive consideration at the present time.

"We ask now," King states, "that members of Congress visit our territory, delve into every phase of social, economic and political life, study the islands from every viewpoint and see for themselves the manner in which Hawaii is prepared for statehood."

Wants Committee of 24
King's resolution, he announced, will ask for a committee of 24 to be divided equally between the house and the senate and that it visit the islands next summer.

He will suggest that the chairman and senior minority member of the following committees be included in the party: territorial affairs, naval affairs, military affairs, agriculture, appropriations and labor. He will also ask that the committee remain in the islands for two weeks to a month, that members visit each island, and that their hearings be public.

He will suggest that the expenses of the investigation be shared jointly by the territorial and the federal government. A federal appropriation of $10,000 to that end will be backed, he declares, by a territorial appropriation of $15,000.

Why Oil Level In Car Should Be Kept At Top

Life of Automobile Increased By Watching Oil

Why should the oil in an automobile crankcase be maintained at the top mark on the measuring stick?

This is a question often entering the minds of motorists who may resent the conscientiousness with which service station operators watch the oil level.

In a communication to F. C. Davies, sales manager Southern California Division for General Petroleum Corporation, G. F. Olsen, Jr., technical instructor for the marketers of Mobiloil, answers the question in this interesting way:

"If your car has a five-quart crankcase, and the oil level is down one quart, you are increasing the duty of the remaining lubricant by 20 percent, although this duty is already four times more severe than it was in 1930. "If you are driving such a car at a 50-mile speed, 225 gallons of oil are circulated thru the motor per hour. In driving 500 miles, 2,250 gallons have been circulated. In other words, each of the five quarts has been used 450 times during the run.

"Yes, each atom of this oil has been exposed to heat and friction 450 times. Think of the terrific beating. If the oil diminishes, the load carried by the remaining portion is proportionately increased. Hence, the oil level should be maintained.

"Despite the ability of Mobiloil to take punishment, and still lubricate perfectly, despite its ability to stand up and maintain its protecting film under its gruelling task, the makers recommend that this, or any other motor oil be drained every 1,000 miles, and the case refilled with fresh, new oil. What I have said is sufficient reason. Another strong reason is that in traveling 1,000 miles, upwards of 12,000 cubic feet of dust and abrasive-laden air have been drawn thru the oil, loading it with numerous hard particles detrimental to bearings, cylinder walls and other fast moving parts of the motor.

"Yes, it is true economy to keep oil levels up, and refill at regular intervals. By so doing, repair bills are avoided and the life and satisfactory service of a motor is greatly increased."
