TUMULT AND SHOUTING OF A PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

FOUR LEADING MEN GIVEN ONE STAR

Joan Crawford, shown above with Robert Taylor in a scene from "The Gorgeous Hussy," which opens Sunday at the Plaza Theatre, Hawthorne, is the first star to appear in a film opposite four leading men.

Five distinguished actors of peculiarly contrasting characteristics, four of them as lovers, were required to impersonate the men who figured in the life of glamorous Peggy O'Neal in "The Gorgeous Hussy," which opens an engagement of three days at the Plaza Theatre, Hawthorne, Sunday, Nov. 1.

Jackson himself, shielded her from the savage attacks of Washington society, John Eaton, secretary of war, eventually married her, but her first love was for "Bow" Timberlake, the gay young naval officer who married her and sailed away to be killed.

President Jackson is impersonated by Lionel Barrymore, the veteran star whose engaging personality has captured millions thru the years of his brilliant career.

Robert Taylor, Hollywood's most spectacular young star of the current era, plays the part of Timberlake, the dashing seaman who made swift love to Peggy O'Neal and swept her off her feet.

Franchot Tone portrays Eaton, the suave secretary of war, who married her and sailed away to Spain when Washington revolted against her.

READY TO BARTER LIFE FOR LOVE

A tense moment in "The General Died at Dawn," at the Torrance Theatre, tonight, Friday and Saturday, when Madeleine Carroll, adventuress, confronts the war-lord who paid her to lure Gary Cooper to his destruction and offers her own life for that of the man she betrayed but finds that she loves.

Modern war-torn China is the background for the fast-moving drama of romance, adventure and intrigue, "The General Died at Dawn," which opens at the Torrance Theatre tonight.

Taken directly from today's headlines, this picture presents Gary Cooper as a soldier-of-fortune in the ranks of the people's army engaged in a war of annihilation with the war lords who have preyed upon the country for centuries.

the part of the lure used by a war lord to trap him.

In a swiftly paced story which faithfully adheres to fact and retains all the magnitude of the great awakening of China, the film reveals how a casual interest on the part of the girl in the young hero she is ordered to destroy turns to admiration and then to love.
