Ghost Party Progressive Affair

One of the most novel affairs of the week was the progressive ghost party at which a certain group of ladies entertained their husbands Friday evening. The entire group wore ghost attire. Cocktails were served at the Baker Smith home, 2326 Sonoma avenue; main course at the Gilbert Wegner home, on Torrance boulevard; card play at the J. C. Snow home, 1522 Beech avenue, and dessert at the Robert Ashley home, 1103 Arlington.

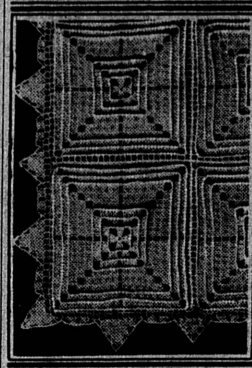

In the party were Messrs. and Mrs. R. Lockwood, Hugh Barnes, Ernest Butt, L. H. Deininger and the hosts. Prizes in bridge play were awarded to J. C. Snow and L. H. Deininger.

MRS. ROUS HOME AFTER THREE MONTHS

Friends of Mrs. I. C. Rous, 1326 Engracia avenue, will be happy to know that she is at home after an absence of more than three months.

Mrs. Rous with Mr. Rous and their two daughters went to Lubbock, Tex., to visit for a time with Mrs. Rous's mother. When they were ready to return home the mother fell and broke her hip and Mrs. Rous remained in Lubbock to care for her. Three weeks ago Mrs. Rous was again ready to return home and again the mother fell and suffered a like accident. Mrs. Rous reports her mother, now past 80, is much improved and getting around on crutches.

MAKE A BEDSPREAD

Ridged-Square Spread

A bedspread is a fascinating stunt for the crocheter. Each little block is a separate bit accomplished, and you can watch the spread grow rapidly before your eyes. This ridged square design, worked in knitting and crochet cotton, can be made either in one color, or the ridges may be crocheted in a contrasting shade. (Directions may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Crochet Bureau, 523 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify Bedspread #207.

Several vocal numbers will complete the program.

All members and friends of the school are invited to attend the meeting.

Pupils On P. T. A. Carnival Program

Pupils of Muriel Zabelle Dance Studios gave an hour of real enjoyment to those attending the entertainment in elementary school auditorium Friday evening, when they appeared at the annual Parent Teachers carnival. Mrs. Zabelle presented her pupils in novelty tap and toe dances, in songs and character readings.

Despite the rain, Mrs. M. Edwards, president of the association, reports all food, flowers and novelties sold and a profit of $40 in the association's treasury.

Credit for the success of the carnival goes to members of the Parent Teachers Association executive board and to room mothers. Listed as follows: Meses. V. Viellenave, Shelby Venable, Wm. Tolson, N. D. Smith, O. E. Fossum, Betty Darrow, Will Lock, S. R. Hopkins, A. A. Blakesley, James Burchett, Floyd Jones, Charles Woodcock, L. E. Stanley, Walter Tappin, G. A. Ross, J. W. Post, L. B. MRS. SNOW FETED AT LUNCHEON

Handkerchiefs are such lovely things to receive and when one has so many given them in one afternoon it must be a thrill indeed. This is what happened to Mrs. J. C. Snow, when she attended a luncheon in the Baker Smith home, 2326 Sonoma avenue, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Smith was hostess to her bridge club and it being Mrs. Snow's birthday, the party honored her. Covers were placed for Meses. Snow, Smith, R. H. Lockwood, Hugh Barnes, Ernest Butt, Robert Ashley, Gilbert Wegner and L. H. Deininger.

After the luncheon contract bridge furnished diversion. Prizes for high scores were captured by Meses. Barnes and Ashley.

MRS. SEARS HOSTESS TO BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Dean L. Sears, 2372 Torrance boulevard, entertained members of her club at a brunch bridge in her home today. Her guests included Meses. Dorothy Sterling, Nina Jumper, Lucille Lewellen, Jo Fleming, Helen Mitchell, Clara Shippe and Roxie Sleeth.

The auditorium reminded one of a haunted house with ghosts lurking in every corner. Skeletons peeped from the folds of the stage curtains as if lying in wait for passers. Skeleton faces surrounded the stage and their dangly forms were hung from every point of vantage. Two lines of balloons extended the full length of the hall and at a given time were let loose to cause no end of excitement among the dancers. Horns, blowers and confetti added to the gaiety. Mrs. Jessie Dennis Bartlett, active club worker, is credited with having created all the weird characters and decorating the hall. Shireys orchestra from Wilmington furnished the music for dancing.

The club acknowledges with many thanks the help received from James Brody and O. D. Butterfield, city employees. Cards advertising the affair on display in many of the downtown places of business were designed and hand painted by Bee Hughes, past president of the club.

City Joins N. B. P. W. In Hallow'en Celebration at Civic Auditorium

National Business and Professional Women of Torrance proved to the city that a masquerade ball can be one of the season's social successes. Their party held Saturday evening in the civic auditorium surpassed any thing of like nature ever held in the city. Close to 200 persons attended the affair and only a few failed to impersonate some weird, interesting or humorous personage or being, and join in the grand march, which started at 10:30 p. m. and ended when the judges after careful consideration awarded first prize to Mary Haig and Mrs. Dillinger attired as jockeys. Their costumes of red and white and blue and white satin were easily the gayest at the party. Second prize was awarded to an out-of-town couple, known to all present as Minnie and Mickey Mouse. Third prize was captured by Tom Watson garbed as the Maharajah, and Bee Hughes as queen of the Shah's harem. A prize was also awarded to Loretta Sanderhoff.

Higgins-Tappin Wedding Saturday

Georgie Higgins, 1920 Plaza del Amo, and Marshall Tappin, of South Torrance, were quietly married Saturday evening at the parsonage of First Christian church, Los Angeles. Only their parents and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony.

A reception for the couple was held at the home of the bride's parents after which they went to their newly furnished home in Redondo Beach.

Both young people are well known in this community. Georgie was graduated from Torrance high school and is at present employed in the school print shop. Marshall was also graduated from Torrance high school and was for many years employed at the Torrance Herald. At present he is employed in the National Supply Company.

Paris Styles

By MARY FENTRESS, United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, (U.P.)—A return to short hair styles is decreed by the leading Parisian hairdressers, who are doing away with the fussy curls and bangs of last season to favor a short, close-fitting shingle.

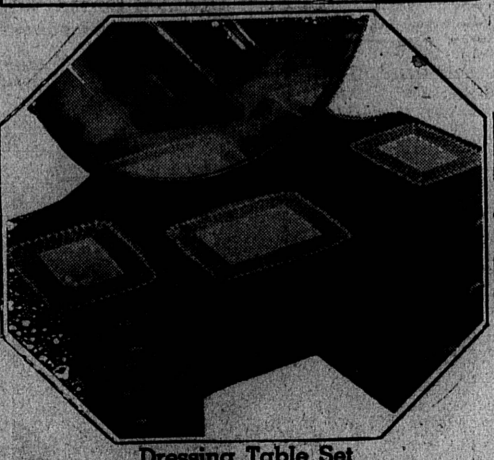

The most popular style at the moment is to wear short hair brushed closely to the head in a cap-like mould with a round, sausage-like curl edging the hairline. The hair is parted to one side with the short hairs combed back from the face and then turned under in a continuous roll to the nape of the neck where the hair is shingled. The same style is worn with longer hair, but in this case the sausage roll continues all the way around the head.

This simplified form of hair-dressing to a certain extent will harm the hair-dressing business, for the waves and curls of a permanent wave are temporarily out of the picture. To keep this coiffure in order, however, a woman must make at least two weekly visits to the hair-dresser. The first trip is for washing and setting and several days later she must return to have the ends rolled under again with an iron.

This coiffure is best suited to a person with a rather long, narrow face and one who has naturally curly hair. The woman with a broad or round face must have a coiffure shaped closely to her head to make her face look thinner. The most popular style for this type face is a rather long shingle in back and a side part with the short hairs at the temple brushed away from the face into small curls that turn up toward the part.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP: Short hair and shingles have returned to favor.

A DAINY GIFT YOU CAN MAKE

Dainty crocheted edgings, made in fine mercerized crochet cotton, are worked on to square linen centers to fashion this three-piece dressing table set. This makes a delightful and much-appreciated gift for the woman who loves fine handwork. Directions may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Crochet Bureau, 523 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Specify Dresser Set #772.

ASK FOR THESE BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY

"Who Owns America," edited by Herbert Agar and Allen Tate. This is a symposium of 21 authors upon the fundamental choice which America along with most of the world is facing. That choice in economic terms is between "collectivism" and "private property." The essays by authorities in their several fields are most effective and the fields are most effective and the volume is well worth a survey at least by the general reader. The work as a whole will stand as a classic in a new movement which may yet save the nation.

"Man the Unknown," by Alexis Carrel, is a remarkable book by one of the foremost living surgeons and biologists, a charming, provocative, stimulating account for the general reader. If you want to learn about yourself as a member of the most interesting species in existence, if you want to know how science can model man and society and how man's future appears to one of the greatest living scientists, read this book.

"The Rolling Years," by Agnes Sligh Turnbull takes place in a Scottish farming community in Western Pennsylvania. It will be enjoyed for its numerous pictures of a happy vanished life, the quilting and the farming, the whole life of an all but wholly self-sufficient community. This glow illumines the work so that in recollection it seems always to be summer sunshine or winter firelight. Any one who has known farm or village life will claim these people for his own.

"Beyond Sing the Woods," by Trygve Gulbranssen. The beginning of this novel by a Norwegian business man reads slowly but soon we are caught in the saga of a Northland family, the Bjornalds. Situations and descriptions have the unmistakable ring of truth. The incident of the axe, for example, handled with skill born of real observation. The skiing episodes, the heading sleigh rides thru the snow-covered forests are precisely and beautifully pictured. Mr. Gulbranssen, writing vigorously and from deep emotional experience, has given us a fine novel.

"Sawdust Caesar," by George Selde. Very timely is this account by the author of "You Can't Print That," and "Years of the Locust." Sinclair Lewis comments, "It is the only book which tells us with all the hitherto unknown facts what Mussolini is doing right now to kill the peace of the whole world."

REBEKAH'S PARTY AT LOMITA HOME

The home of Mrs. Ada Anderson, of Lomita, was transformed into a veritable witches' abode for the party Saturday evening at which some 35 members of Trio Rebekah lodge made merry. Guests came dressed as ghosts, fairies, funny paper characters and movie folk. Costume prizes were captured by Mrs. Regina Hudson, who came attired in a gentleman's evening suit, top hat and carrying a cane, and Mrs. Janet Woodington, who came as the spirit of Hallow'een.

Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, donuts, fancy cakes, apples and coffee.
