Surprise Party Honors Mrs. Moore

Mrs. J. O. Moore, 1923 Gramercy avenue, was pleasantly surprised Wednesday when friends gathered at her home with all essentials for a luncheon and bridge party. The affair, arranged by Mrs. Moore's Eastern Star secret friend, was one of the week's loveliest affairs. Covers were placed at the luncheon table for Mrs. Moore, Ruth Haggard, Harry McManus, F. C. Shields, J. F. Dalton, Lillian Shriner, May McKinley, Clemma Watson, Jean Guyan, Alda Hudson, Margaret Fordice, Sally West, May Sidebotham, Esther Dennis and Cleora Stanger.

Legion Plans Free Armistice Day Dance

Bert S. Crossland Post American Legion No. 170 invites the entire community to join them in celebrating Armistice Day at a free dance, which will be held in the civic auditorium. A good orchestra has been secured for the occasion. Dancing from 8:30 to 12 p. m. Armistice Day, Wednesday, Nov. 11.

Ladies Guests
Ladies of the Auxiliary were special guests of Bert S. Crossland Post 170 at their meeting in Legion hall Tuesday evening. An oyster supper was served, motion pictures were shown and members of the Auxiliary glee club sang a group of three numbers, the last number written especially for the occasion. Dancing and election returns furnished amusement later in the evening.

Radio City's Prettiest Chorine Advises on Makeup

Blonde Or Brunette, Hazel Or Gray-Eyed—All Should Match Makeup To Eyes, Says Prettiest of "Rockettes"

"THE first thing I learned in making up for the footlights was that the most important element involved in making the most of good looks is the choice of makeup itself," Charlotte Joslin, widely photographed New York beauty and member of the world's greatest precision troupe, the Radio City Music Hall Rockettes, made this frank statement recently when an interviewer questioned her about her successful career as a dancing star.

"Girls and women are always asking me for my beauty secret. It is a very simple one; namely, use the color of your eyes as a guide in choosing the most becoming shades of powder, rouge and lipstick. This rule has certainly never failed me; and those of my friends who are professional actresses and models agree that the eyes are a sure color guide. I was quite thrilled when I discovered a whole line of matching cosmetics—powder, rouge, lipstick, even mascara and eye-shadow—all keyed to one of the four major eye shades."

Miss Joslin's own eyes are blue, and just as she claims she has always looked her best in a blue dress, so this makeup, blended especially to flatter the blue-eyed type (it is all a complicated matter of pigmentation and was worked out by a famous color expert) is amazingly becoming to her complexion, she says. There is a completely matched kit for brown, hazel or gray eyes—all blended with quite marvelous skill. But remember, in any case—Charlotte Joslin emphasizes this point—to choose your eyes! It's the idea that counts and the products we use are a matter of individual taste.

How To Use Your Makeup
Once you have found the most flattering makeup, your problem is how to apply it to the greatest advantage, according to Miss Joslin.

Use a cleansing cream—always followed with a skin freshener to remove all traces of cream and leave your skin in perfect condition for your foundation cream. A thin film of this preparation is sufficient for a flattering makeup base, and everyone knows the difference a foundation makes. Apply your face powder... generously... evenly... and remove surplus with a face powder brush.

If you use dry rouge blend it in over your powder (if cream rouge is preferred it should be applied while your foundation cream is moist, followed by your face powder). Rouge should be considered the frame for your eyes... to give them life and sparkle. Miss Joslin says. Most people look their best with rouge worn high on their cheeks, blended to the eyes.

A clever trick, if your lips are too thin or too full, is to reshape their outline with the aid of an orange stick. To insure the indelibility of lip rouge and to give a more natural lip coloring place a cleansing tissue between your lips and press them together. This takes off the surplus and "sets" your lipstick.

Apply eye shadow at the center of the eyelid and blend it outward a little beyond the length of the eye. After applying mascara be sure to brush the lashes well with a clean brush to prevent their clinging together. Finish your makeup by penciling the eyebrows... adding length where they are too short and filling in where they grow too far apart.

District Chairman In Plea For Highway Safety

If you believe you have any specialty—if you can sing, dance, play an instrument or imitate—you are invited to assist the Torrance Woman's Club in putting on an amateur performance in Torrance. Ladies of the club plan to hold the affair in the clubhouse, 1422 Engracia avenue, Friday, Nov. 20. Mrs. H. C. Barrington as chairman will be assisted by Sam Levy, who incidentally has promised to act as co-chairman and master of ceremonies. Everyone wishing to appear on the program should report at the clubhouse Wednesday evening, Nov. 11, when auditions will be given.

Highway Safety
Sixty members attended the meeting of the club in the clubhouse, Wednesday, and heard Mrs. Paxton Lytle, district highway safety chairman, speak. Mrs. Lytle has a charming personality and handles her words in forceful manner. She warned those present that they must be safety conscious—know how long it takes you to stop if you travel 35 miles an hour and above all never trust to luck. Our children are taught safety in the schools and we as parents must be examples to them.

Miss Betty Dalton was generously applauded when gowned in Spanish costume she played a group of three numbers on her accordion.

An interesting talk, illustrated with colored motion pictures, was given by Chas. S. Swift.

New Members
Mrs. M. J. Beale presided at the meeting and introduced five new members: Mmes. Lucille Cheadle, Hughena Roberts, Luella Thompson, Sylvia Shultz and John Hopkins. Announcement was made that the November presidents' council will be held in Huntington Park clubhouse, Tuesday, Nov. 10. Members wishing to attend are asked to phone Mrs. M. J. Beale at 622-M.

EPISCOPAL LADIES PLAN CHRISTMAS SALE
Ladies of St. Andrew's Episcopal church have reserved Dec. 10 for a dessert bridge party and Christmas gift sale. The affair will be held in the guild hall. Full particulars in a later issue of this paper.
