HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLING CONTENDER TASTES DEFEAT AT HANDS OF SON

Bill Hansen Loses Honors To New Champion

Heavyweight wrestlers aren't so good in the tire pushing contests—at least when competing against their baby sons.

Bill Hansen, massive bopper-crusher, found that out when he essayed to compete with his young son Dick, age 6 1/2 months. Though Dick only weighs 20 pounds to his daddy's 215 pounds he walked away with the race.

Of course there was some difference in the weight of the tires and the size. Hansen Senior pushed a Firestone 1800-24 Ground Grip tire weighing 625 pounds. The carrying capacity is 12,240 pounds with 45 pounds of air pressure. It has an overall height of a fraction over five feet. Hansen Junior had a miniature tire, more in size with his own physique, but every bit as difficult to handle as the one that taxed his father's strength.

The mammoth tire, according to James Cramer, manager of the Firestone Auto Supply & Service Store at 1454 Marcelina, is manufactured for use on large trucks.

Quail Safe Here Till Nov. 15

Leave it to the eagle eye of B. J. (Scotty) Scott, one of Torrance champion nimrods, to catch the Herald in an unintentional error. Last week a news story, giving the National Automobile Club as authority, stated that the quail season would open Nov. 1. "Nuh uh," says Scotty. "That's all wrong. The season opens way up north on the first, but down here it opens Nov. 15." Sorry, quail hunters, if the Herald has lead you astray while trying to be of service.

Compton Tartars Expect To Lose Game In Utah First Intersectional Game To Be Played In Ogden Saturday In its first game in history with an out-of-state college, Gordon Clark's maroon and gray football team from Compton Junior College will leave the shores of sunny Southern California early tomorrow morning for Ogden, Utah, where it meets the heavily-favored Weber College varsity Saturday afternoon in the Mormon city. A squad of 38 players and coaches are making the trip.

The intersectional tilt is slated to begin a new era in athletic competition for the Tartar institution. It is the forerunner of one of the most ambitious sports programs ever attempted by any southern junior college. At least, two games with out-of-state elevens will be scheduled in 1937, as well as a pair of games with Northern and Central California junior colleges.

Weber College is a four-year institution and has a powerful aggregation that should win over the Tartars by two or three touchdowns. The vaunted Mormons have turned in sensational performances in games to date this season in the Rocky Mountain area and are one of the most-feared elevens in Utah.
