New Electrolux Refrigerators Displayed Here

Having enjoyed a "preview" of the new 1937 Electrolux gas refrigerators at a Los Angeles exhibit last week, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abramson were in a position to point out the features of the new ice-makers and food preservers that they received for their National Home Appliance shop.

The local dealers are enthusiastic about the many improvements made in the new Electroluxes and emphasize that they have now the older types having been returned to the Los Angeles distribution point.

Although the 1936 price level is about the same, the new cabinets operate for lower costs, are faster in freezing and contain several innovations in refrigerator construction, including a one-piece cabinet. The 1937 Electrolux line at the National Home Appliance shop includes the four cubic feet model, two types of five cubic feet refrigerators, six, eight and 11 cubic feet units.

Holiday Dinner Job Simplified

Modern Christmas market baskets hold foods which make the dinner easy to prepare. No housewife wants to spend all the Christmas day in the kitchen, yet she does want to serve a delicious dinner. This is all very simple if a little thought is given to the selection of foods for the day, because there are so many of the favorite foods prepared in cans now that the final fixing is simple and easy to do.

The first course of soup is ever so good and delicious from the can, and the baskets might hold such varieties as cream of mushroom, corn chowder, onion, consommé or the oyster stew.

Suppose the meat is roast goose, turkey or pork. If the old-fashioned honey vegetables are to be served such as squash or onions, or some other vegetables like brussels sprouts, broccoli, corn, peas or artichoke hearts, instead of getting market produce that has to be cleaned, prepared and cooked, select any one of these in the canned style and save effort and retain flavor.

Cranberry sauce or applesauce will be needed for the meat and either one of these can be in the basket in the canned form. One more task not needed to be done at home!

Extra fixings like ripe olives, peach, pear or apricot sweet pickles can be in the basket in canned form and are such a happy choice.

The dessert of plum pudding or fig pudding comes in cans and just requires heating, or pies can be made easily by using the canned mixture of either pumpkin or mince meat.

Just a little thought to the dinner will give the housewife leisure to enjoy the Christmas celebration with the family and not be tired afterwards. Marjorie H. Black.

QUALITY!

QUALITY!... there's no word in the King's English as much used or as much abused. It is used to describe everything... from blue-blooded aristocrats to five-cent ice cream cones.

Yet despite all that, and search as we may, there is no word that fits as perfectly, no word that so sufficiently describes GRUBB'S MEATS as "QUALITY."

Look up the true meaning of the word. Then buy a steak, or roast, or chicken, or chop at GRUBB'S, and you'll see that one is the counterpart of the other.
