The House has a real battle over the Home Owners Loan Corporation bill, for providing funds with which to take care of thousands of applicants who were left without relief when the Loan Offices were closed. Much criticism has been heard from various sections of the country concerning the administration of the...

The Congressional group that is engineering the campaign for the Townsend Old Age Pension plan mentioned a surprise when Representative Charles Ketterer of California put a discharge petition on the Speaker's desk about the one proposed by Congressman...

Less than fifty members of the House of Representatives have signed the Townsend petition to date. It is an uphill pull to get the required number of 225. It was one of those who signed this discharge petition in order to get the Townsend bill on the floor of the House for consideration, and a free and fair discussion.

The Townsend bill has been well analyzed before the Ways and Means Committee, but committee members are still in the public mind as the activities on the floor of the House and Senate. Since it is apparent that there is much opposition to the Townsend plan in Congress, the bills back home should know more about the arguments for and against this measure. I contend that the Townsend plan is entitled to its day in court.

Many in California seem to entertain the idea that the Townsend movement is strong all over the country. It is well supported on the Pacific Coast, California, and in spots here and there throughout the nation, but nowhere does it show the strength that it does in Southern California, the place of its origin. Remember that this is a 3000 country. Many members of Congress from the Eastern states have no Townsend clubs within their districts. Any program requires considerable time to permeate all sections.

Furthermore, disappointing as it may seem to the Townsend group, the truth is that the Dr. Page plan introduced by Will Rogers of Oklahoma providing for a pension from $20 to $50 per month, has probably as much or more support than the Townsend plan. The members of the Will Rogers bill have followed a different plan of campaign that the Townsend people. Instead of urging pleading and attacking members of Congress as has been done under the Townsend plan, the advocates of the Will Rogers bill have been filing petitions.

With the Townsend advocates asking $200 per month and the Dr. Page followers asking from $20 to $50 per month, these two groups are strong factors in favor of an increase over the President's proposal. It is important at this time to get as liberal an old age pension as possible and time and experience will improve it, as all such measures must be modified and amended from time to time. The war between Senator Long of Louisiana and Representative Drayton Nelson of California is a bitter one. While the English was making it hot on the Senate floor, General Parker moved in some reinforcements headed by General Johnson which has added a great deal to the spectacular side of the battle. The English started out to eliminate General Parker and it seems that the Louisiana Senator has turned up a hornet's nest. The question now is, who is going to be able to stick and who is going to be forced to retreat. It is a bitter fight and where it will end, nobody knows. But it is a sorry loss for the Democratic Party and a waste of a lot of good money in a time when this country needs the heads and the brains of every able man to combat the depression and to promote reforms for economy and social justice.

The bill for extra credits for members of the House of Representatives failed by nearly a 100-vote margin. Members have been so overwhelmed by correspondence that nearly every office in the Capitol burns the midnight oil. The subjects of old age pension, the bonus, unemployment insurance, and the Rogers bill for the regulation of the public utilities are all awaiting a flood of letters. Old members who were in Congress during the World War say that their correspondence is two or three times heavier than at that period. If you do not get a prompt answer to your letter, just remember that the secretaries back in the office at Washington are putting in over-time trying to get it all read.

A few of our correspondents have complained to the extent of being disappointed in the receipt of their letters. We are doing the very best we can to get the replies as soon as possible. We endeavor to state the latest developments, turn the letter over to the secretaries, and they send them out as rapidly as possible. We are doing the very best we can to get the replies as soon as possible.

WOMEN OWNERS of businesses MOBILIZE
Mrs. Stella Akita, of Los Angeles, a member of the Los Angeles Business and Professional Women's Club, has started a movement among women business owners in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Arizona to mobilize their forces in a fact-finding effort toward greater service as well as greater influence in their states.

Mrs. Akita, who is merchandise evaluator for the Los Angeles "Department Store News" is a past president of the Los Angeles club. "We have 1500 tea rooms and beauty parlors run by women in California alone," said Mrs. Akita. "We are organizing to meet the needs of the tourist trade which will be heavier than usual this summer because of the San Diego Fair. We propose to classify the businesses run by women, each type working in its own group. Eventually we will set up group organizations, each with its own officers. Working together, these should have important economic power as well as great influence in the advertising field."

The Republican Gov. leader, Representative Bert Small, is now a Kentucky Colonel. Small, the chief of the house, and formerly a Democratic congressman from Kentucky and an old friend of Small, secured a commission for the Kentucky Republican. The commission was presented to Mr. Small on the floor of the House by Representative Tompkins of Massachusetts. Mr. Small was taken by surprise but expressed his deep appreciation to be honored by the Kentucky governor and also expressed his willingness to serve Kentucky in case of military need. From now on you can expect Colonel Small to be a little more cooperative of the Democratic warriors from Kentucky. Since Colonel Small has some attachment within his own group, his being a colonial serves to his opponents of his political party.
