Steel Play Cast Has Fine Talent

(Continued from Page 1-A) trical department, is playing a dual role. He will be seen as the amusing John Miller, the "harum-scarum," and also as Happy Henry, the tramp. William J. Gallardo, crane-man at the steel warehouse, is creating—and with rare gusto—the part of Frank Miller, the villain.

John Irwin, shearer in the sheet mill, is cast as Billy B. Gosh, a mail carrier. Director-author Showalter is David Miller, the sternest father ever seen on any stage. Wilson Moore, foreman of the sheet mill shipping department, may steal the show with his character of Cyrus Bidwell, village gossip. Walter Wallace, metallurgical department worker, is working hard with Moore to win laughs as Hiram Smith, another gossip.

The women characters are: Mrs. O. H. Olson, wife of the genial roller on the 22 and 36-inch mills, is cast as Mrs. Miller, mother of Frank and John; J. Armstrong, wife of a crane-man, is to be seen as Ola Bars; a country lass. Miss Mary Silverthorne, plant nurse, has the role of Clara Birdsall, a New York City girl.

Inter-City Ball Saturday Night; National Event

(Continued from Page 1-A) the success of the campaign. The press with its customary generosity in the case of any endeavor so important to the general national life, is devoting columns of space to the organization work of national and local committees and to the entertainment features of the national festivities.

The birthday ball will be broadcast from 8 to 9 p. m. (PST) over the networks and by nearly 600 stations. It will be on short wave for distribution around the world and as was the case at previous nationwide parties, American ships at sea and remote army posts will be able to hear the President in Washington and to pick up the music for dancing.

LIMITS READY FOR DANCE AT VET HALL.

Farquhar has asked the presidents of heads of all organizations in Lomita, their wives or husbands, to be patrons and patronesses of the Ball and the ticket chairman, Finn, would like each person selling tickets to report to him at the dance Saturday night.
Other committee chairmen are: Roy Pardon, cards; Grace Owens, checking; L. B. Lewis, decorating; Frances Hathaway, hall and publicity; F. P. Powers, music; Eugene Beckman, prizes; and A. F. Franklin, radio reception of President's address.

HERALD HOME IS ATTRACTING SCORES DAILY

Since the erection of the directional sign on Torrance boulevard pointing to the location of The Herald's Demonstration Home, that structure at Beech and Sierra streets has been thronged daily with interested persons intent on seeing it under construction.

Last Sunday scores visited the home-site and walked thru its unfinished rooms, noting the structural details which make it a most attractive blend of Californian Monterey and Cape Cod cottage architecture. During the past week the contractor and sub-contractors have made rapid progress on the five-room home.

The brick work is practically complete and today the finish plaster coat was given the finishing and opening to the public cannot be determined as yet but it will be thrown open for inspection about the middle of next month.

Crash Fatal to Local Resident in Riverside Co.

H. E. McNeice, 30, a resident on Arlington avenue near 220th street, was killed yesterday as result of an automobile collision on highway 99 near Garnet in Riverside county. The driver of the other machine involved in the accident fled after the crash but Riverside sheriff's deputies are reported saying that they know his identity.

William D. Runsey of Los Angeles is in a critical condition at the Riverside county hospital with a fractured skull suffered in the smash-up. Less seriously injured was Robert H. Kepner, Los Angeles, who suffered a fractured leg and lacerations. R. E. McNeice, of Torrance, brother of the crash victim, was driving the automobile, according to reports received from Riverside. A coroner's inquest is scheduled to be held to investigate the accident.

Dog Believed At Large In City

No further reports had been received at police headquarters here concerning a dog which had symptoms of rabies when last seen last Thursday. The animal, a cocker spaniel with a new strap around its neck, was reported missing by its owner, J. A. Walker, 3001 231st street, last Saturday.

Police officers kept a sharp lookout for the dog during the past week, knowing that if it was afflicted with the dread disease it should be killed, but they were unable to sight it.

School Sidewalk In New Budget

Funds for the construction of a sidewalk on Torrance boulevard and Elm street to accommodate children attending Fern avenue school will be set up in the 1937-38 budget, the Los Angeles board of education agreed this week.

Estimated cost of the sidewalk was given as $925. No provision can be made in the present year's budget, however, H. E. Griffin, secretary of the board, said.

City Engineer F. R. Leonard made an appeal to the board of education in a letter Nov. 25 which the board has had in its office since. Leonard stated that the city council had before it a request of the Fern Avenue P. T. A. for the walks. The city already has built walks adjacent to the needed improvement, to lessen the danger of accidents to children attending the school.

Autopsy Halts Probe Into Death Here

in Los Angeles. Correspondence during the next month or so was fairly regular, Mrs. Perrier told investigating officers here late last week.

Eva Crooks' story, so far as it can be re-constructed, next took a turn for worse. Some six weeks ago she stepped off a bus in Los Angeles, ill, hungry, and with but 50 cents in her purse. She met George Louie, a Chinese, who took her to his apartment, according to police. Then she started going to doctors in Los Angeles.

Friends Bring Her Here
Authorities have learned that her illness and death was not caused by illegal operation—the autopsy performed here last Saturday proved that. But they also learned that questionable medical practice had been contributory to the young woman's condition when she appeared at a local physician's office asking for treatment.

The Torrance doctor realizing at once that Mrs. Crooks was critically ill, rushed her to the hospital here. Medical science, careful, conscientious attention and knowledge that comes from years of experience was at her disposal there. But Eva Crooks was dying and a few hours later was beyond human aid.

When she appeared here, the young San Francisco matron, a native of Petaluma, was accompanied by her friend Louie, Mrs. Julia Chin Gow, a Chinese woman, and Helen G. Martin of the same Los Angeles apartment where Louie lived. They said they brought Mrs. Crooks here because a friend had advised them of the excellent facilities at the local hospital.

Gave Flirtatious Name
Immediately following her death, Louie notified Mrs. Crooks' mother in San Francisco who came here at once. Because the local doctor refused to sign the death certificate, authorities began their investigation. At first they believed the young woman succumbed as the result of an illegal operation. The autopsy proved this was not the cause, that death was due to a disease and lack of proper care and treatment. Satisfied that no criminal charges were possible, the county coroner signed the certificate.

Figures in Gun Duel

At left is Detective Lieut. R. E. O'Rourke, who, in the closing days of a long police career, was forced within the past week to kill his first man. His victim was Harry Linton Butler, right, former president of the Pasadena Realty Board who turned bank robber. Butler, shown in his war-time Navy ensign uniform, was shot down while attempting to escape being identified outside the Pasadena, Cal., branch bank he robbed of $4118 last March.

Mrs. Crooks gave the name of Mrs. Eva Louie on entering the hospital and said her husband was in San Francisco. She appeared rational until shortly before her death but volunteered little if any information about herself or her predicament.

Arrangements for the care of her body were made here by the mother, Mrs. Perrier, and the Chinese, Louie, it was reported.
