

COURTESY STRESSED AS TOURISTS INVADE S.C.

"Courtesy" was the watchword throughout Southern California today, as thousands of public servants and other citizens vied in welcoming summer tourists, who already are flocking here in unprecedented numbers. Launched by the All-Year Club, which for 16 years has exclusively developed the tourist industry, the welcome-tourist program is expected to put this region on the map as the "friendly vacationland."

James R. Page, president of the club, expressed himself highly gratified with the way the campaign, which was started Monday, has "caught on" in all communities. Throughout the county, Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz' deputies were reported practicing courtesy in handling tourists. This courtesy was noticeable in the manner of out-of-state visitors were reprimanded for minor infractions of the law, and the way sight-seeing directions were given.

A. I. Stewart, past-president of the California League of Municipalities, has proposed to mayors and city councils throughout the Southland that proclamations be issued to citizens, urging them to greet tourists with a friendly wave of the hand, to volunteer advice on sight-seeing and to exercise additional courtesy in meeting strangers.

Numerous proclamations voted by city councils suggested letting tourists' cars have the right of way at street intersections and the first chance at the curb were few. Citizens also were asked to prime themselves with sight-seeing information, and to give it to any bewildered tourist seen hesitating at a turn of the road.

WIRE RATES REDUCED

Reductions in rates for overnight telegraph service which became effective June 1 provide substantial savings to residents of Torrance. It was disclosed this week by A. T. Savage, local manager of the Western Union Telegraph company. A tariff filed with the Federal Communications Commission reduced the cost of both short and long messages and cut the telegraph bill of the nation by approximately $5,000,000.

"The effect of these reductions," Savage said, "is that the charge for 25 words will be the same as, and in some cases lower, than the present charge of a 10-word night message and that long messages can be sent at relatively even lower rates."

"The 10-word night message will be discontinued and the initial charge for night letters will be for 25 words instead of for 50 as at present. The maximum charge for a 25-word night letter will be 50 cents, even for the greatest distances in the United States."

Congressman Colder at the Capitol

By CHARLES J. COLDER

WASHINGTON, May 27. (Special to The Herald)—The economy wave is in full-sweep through the House.

It assumed a violent form toward the Interior Department bill and also the appropriation of $1,500,000.00 for relief.

There is the variety that would allot no money for western reclamation projects. There are the power trust economists who oppose the expenditure of government money for power dams, and for rural electrification because it affords competition and forces down the rates to the consumer. There are big business economists who desire to curtail expenditures so that income taxes and inheritance taxes may be reduced. There is the southern plantation economist who is opposed to the relief bill because many of the laborers in the cotton fields find better pay on the W.P.A. There are the sweatshop economists who object to the W.P.A. because they, too, desire to reduce wages to the minimum and raise hours to the maximum. Then there is the old school of economy that would eliminate the government from business and opposes many of the New Deal measures. Some champions of economy want taxes reduced even tho it takes the food from the unemployed. Then there is the economist who would feed the hungry by financing projects that give employment and will repay the investment.

Some of the proponents of economy did their best to cut the appropriation for relief, but the House sustained the billion and a half which the President recommended. A minority favored the raising of this amount, but the majority believed that the President and Harry Hopkins were more familiar with the needs of the country than the members of Congress.

MESSAGE AND DECISION . . . The President's message on minimum wages and maximum hours and child labor was received with profound attention by the House. It was one of the most of them do not require a cation when the confusion and answer.

noise ceased. The President's message set forth a very desirable objective, and one that must be attained sooner or later. He also took a rap at the supreme court.

Opinions differ as to the effect of the recent decision upholding Social Security, on the President's program. It is the undercurrent opinion on Capitol Hill that one of the greatest games of American politics is now being played by President Roosevelt, on one side, and Chief Justice of the supreme court, on the other. Both of them are powerful leaders, schooled in politics, and know all the rules and tricks of the game, and as yet, as I see it, neither is sure of the final decision.

FAIR BILL VETO . . . You have heard much about the delegation of power to the President. There has been much criticism of this subject. The House committee on foreign affairs decided to do a little demonstration of administration on its own account. On the recommendation of this committee, $5,000,000 was appropriated for the world's fair in New York City. The bill also provided that these funds should be handled by a commission consisting of members of the House and Senate committees on foreign affairs.

The House got a big laugh when the President returned the bill to the House with his veto. The President stated that Congress was infringing on his rights as the administrative head of the government.

TOWNSEND-PETITION . . . The ways and means committee has refused a hearing on the Townsend General Welfare bill. A petition is now on the Speaker's desk asking that this bill be brought out of the committee. Hon. John S. McGroarty has been awaiting a decision of the supreme court before taking action on his measure. Now that the supreme court has upheld the Social Security Law, it will enable the advocates of increased pensions to understand better the method of procedure. I desire to state that I have had so many letters on the Townsend plan that I have been unable to reply to all of them.

Most of them do not require a cation when the confusion and answer.
