G. P. Agent Gives Reasons for Admonition

Residents Hear
Niece on Air
From Athens, O.

A spelling contest between young men and women students at Ohio University that was broadcast over a national network last Thursday eveling was more than entertainment for 'Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McNeill, of 3112 29th street. It gave them an opportunity to hear the voice of their niece, Miss Jean McNeill, who is a senior at the Athens, Ohio, institution.

She went thru four rounds of the broadcast contest, competing against 15 men and 14 other women students, before she was "spelled down." The broadcast was presented from the stage of the university's great, memorial auditorium, set among the famed McGuffy elms. This grove was named in honor of William Holmes McGuffey, president of the university in 1859, who is renowned as "the father of elementary education" because of his readers.

An "international" meeting was enjoyed last Tiuursday night by members and guests of the Rotary club at the Legion clubhouse. The speaker—was Norman Blue-Jones, consulting engineer from Exmont, Devonshire, England. His address proved to be most interesting and informative.

He said the lack of understanding between nations was the prime cause of most international complications and then devoted most of his time to a general survey of current events and economic conditions in this country and abroad.

Sam Levy, chairman of the club's International Relations. committee, was in charge of the club's International Relations committee, was in charge of the program" and introduced two other distinguished by the guests, Georges Degraux of San Remo-France, and Aldo Cramoniase of Milan, Italy. The three foreign visitors were guests at the home of President Charles Jones later in the evening.

driver to stop to the car and alet the passengers out, and hard as it may be to believe, nary a passenger dallied.

"Another and equally potent reason for not running over rattlers is that there is always the possibility, however remote, that the rattler's fangs might become embedded in the tire, exposing to a severe danger any man who happens to handli that tire later. "The moral of this story is obvious—leave snakes alone while driving, and there are few who need this admonition while on foot."
