G. R. BROWDER.

Assistant General Sales Manager
Oldsmobile,

who has been with General Motors Corporation in various sales capacities since 1919, this week was named assistant general sales manager of Oldsmobile in charge of retail selling.
Browder's new position will embrace all of Oldsmobile's new and used ear retail selling activities formerly included under sales promotion and group selling.
Browder's first position with

sales promotion and group selling.

Browder's first position with General Motors was that of assistant zone manager in Indianapolis for the Samson Tractor company of Janesville, Wis. In 1924, he joined the Chevrolet organization and in the latter part of 1924 was transferred to the Kansas City Zone as analyzation manager, In 1925, Mr. Browder joined Chevrolet's home office force as analyzation manager for the company.

His recent appointment to the newly-created post gives Oldsmobile three assistant general sales managers. The others are R. M. W. Shaw, in charge of the Eastern part of the United States, and H. A. Trevellyan, in charge of the Western part of the country.

Ranchhand Frightens
Horse to Death

WOODLAND, Cal. (U.P.)—A ranchhand on Fred Wild's farm near here became exasperated when one of the horses hitched to a hay wagon balked. He pointed a finger at the animal and shouted "bang!"

The horse dropped dead. Wild said he believed the worker's action so frightened the animal that it died of heart failure.
