Lewis-Jackson Nuptials Sunday at Waleria Home

An archway of fern, gladiolus and asters built in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Murray, 2448 Park street, Waleria, made an attractive setting for the wedding of Miss Ruth Elizabeth Jackson and Chas. P. Lewis at sunset Sunday evening. Rev. Edwin Carter of First Christian church of Dinuba officiated.

The bride, sister of Mrs. Murray, was attired in crepe gown of rusk and carried a shower of gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Jackson of Guernsey, California, were the only attendants.

A reception following the wedding was attended by members of the families and friends of the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff M. Jackson of Reedley, California, is a graduate of Reedley high school class of '32 and attended Reedley Junior College. She is a talented violinist and a member of Dinuba Music Club. Mr. Lewis is associated with the California Fruit Bureau as weigh-master and fruit inspector.

The couple will be at home to their friends after Sept. 1 at 55 Acacia avenue, Reedley, California.

Fun for all and all for fun! Eat your cake and have it too! Watch for big announcement next week!

PARIS (U.P.)—The "colotte universelle" a two-in-one hat is the hit of Erik's new collection of autumn and winter styles, which have their inspiration in the Far North where Eskimo headgear and peasant styles of Greenland have contributed to novel designs in felt, fur and velvet.

A cap of felt, draped velvet or fur fits well down on the back of the head, while a second, more elaborate hat is perched forward on top. The over-bat may be worn alone or the cap (which is suitable to wear with any other hat for a touch of color contrast) may be worn separately for afternoon or evening occasions. The snug caps are designed to be effective with any type hair-dress, and fur ones completely cover the hair at the back.

A second version of the two-in-one hat is seen in "double-duty" designs, which are simple when worn at one angle, but extremely dressy when reversed.

"Ocean Blue"—the greenish blue of the northern seas—runs through Erik's collection and is used alone, with black or with a deep mulberry shade. It is effective in an Eskimo hat with tiered crown which gives the appearance of three muffins of declining sizes set one on top of the other—ocean blue velvet separates the black layers.

Fur is used for trim where flowers would ordinarily be. A fox tail pops out of the top of a modified "stove-pipe" crown. Persian lamb forms the top of a pill-box turban, and Russian ermine is combined with felt and velvet.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP

Tall, tapering crowns are featured in Erik's hat collection with fur introduced for trim.

Mrs. Barrington Cites Need for Educational Project

Coming as a blow to directors of Torrance Woman's club, who feel the need of keeping the Mothers' Educational Center in Torrance, was the action taken by Chamber of Commerce directors this week when they voted to discontinue their monthly appropriation for the project.

MRS. LILLIAN BARRINGTON
... defends 15-year-old local training institution

"For the past 15 years," says Mrs. H. C. Barrington, Woman's Club president, "this center has been financed by the Chamber of Commerce with clubwomen donating their services. Time and again the chamber has voted to discontinue financing the movement but each time those realizing the vital need in the community for such a worthy enterprise have successfully urged the rescinding of the action. It is hoped that such will again be the case."

Mrs. Barrington stressed the point that Torrance being a younger community has profited greatly from the Center as there are so many young mothers, who have had no experience in motherhood. They have come to the Center and their children show the splendid results obtained from it.

No Duplication
"Many women have come to the Center regularly with their children since their infants were five weeks old. They have learned from the three doctors, who come each month to meetings with Dr. Maude Wilde, founder of the Center, correct diet, posture, growth and character training. This should be a selling point to any community," Mrs. Barrington declared.

"Certainly there is no advertising that can compare with welfare of our children and the helping of young mothers, who have not the time and money to be educated elsewhere."

"In times past," stated the leader, "we have proved to Chamber directors that the Mothers' Center is certainly not a duplication of the clinic work. It is a school of instruction where mothers learn to keep their children well. Absolutely no attempt is made to treat children who are ill."

Average attendance is between 25 and 35 children at each meeting. Their weights are checked against the past month so that mothers may be sure of proper growth and intelligence tests are given as well.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce has given its first floor for Center headquarters. Should the Torrance Chamber refuse to rescind their action, said Mrs. Barrington, perhaps other civic-minded groups will see the need of such a Center and arrange to keep it operating here.

LOMITA AMARANTH UNDERGO INSPECTION

The Lomita Court of Amaranth was visited by Mrs. Lizzie May Gentry of San Pedro, assistant grand lecturer, who was making her regular inspection of the work of the court Monday night. The occasion proved a gala one for the members who had anticipated the event by planning a special program and refreshments.

A number of other visitors were present from Los Angeles, Long Beach, Redondo Beach and San Pedro as well as two grand officers, Mrs. Grace Brooks of Los Angeles, grand lecturer, and Mrs. Nina Faust of Redondo Beach, assistant grand lecturer. Mrs. Gentry was presented with a beautiful bouquet and a pottery vase.

The dining room of the Odd Fellows hall was decorated in pastel colors of pink and green and dainty favors marked each place. The affair was one of the most attractive Amaranth events of recent months.

MRS. FISCHER HOSTESS AT DESSERT BRIDGE

Mrs. Fred Fischer entertained in her new home on Beech avenue, with a dessert bridge party Friday. Her guests included Mmes. A. A. Strom, L. M. Fernley, N. F. Gallucci, C. D. Lowen, T. T. Babbitt, D. Wade of Redondo Beach, and A. Johnson of Los Angeles. Prizes were won by Mmes. Fernley, Johnson and Strom.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

NEIGHBOR TO THE SKY by Gladys Hasty Carroll: The author of "As the Earth Turns" writes another outstanding novel; an authentic and thorough picture of America. "Neighbor to the Sky" is an idyll, an American love story in a setting of American educational institutions. Mrs. Carroll has a point to bring home and she devotes much time and accurate detail to doing so. Many readers will miss her picturesque descriptions of Maine, but will enjoy the new story for its own sake.

A RIDER OF THE CHEROKEE STRIP by E. G. Barnard: Among the ever-growing volumes of "Western" stories, here is a most refreshing find. A collection of true stories of cowboy life; thrilling events of actual happenings, not highly colored fiction. The Old Cowpunchers' association have included in the book their attestation of the truth of these tales and go on record as endorsing the stories as the most "truthful portrayal of Western cowboy life off the press."

JORDANSTOWN by Josephine Johnson: This book tells the story of a year in the life of a small town and in the lives of people who lived there. It is a timely story dealing as it does with the forces which are changing America today. Jordanstown is a small industrial town like hundreds of actual towns scattered throughout the country, its inhabitants are representative of countless thousands engaged in the struggle for life. Miss Johnson is the author of the Pulitzer prize winner "Now In November."

TIME AT HER HEELS by Dorothy Aldis: A gay and satisfying story, completely real. Into every woman's life comes one of these days when she is conscious of time at her heels; when she feels pressed by one generation and pulled by another. When all the "little things of life" loom larger and all true proportion is lost in confusion but at the end of the day living assumes its real form and things of existence fall into their real order.

THE STRANGER PRINCE by Margaret Irwin: The days of Charles the First saw many colorful people but none so romantic a figure as Rupert of the Rhine, a nephew of Charles I and last of the knights errant. A handsome youth and seasoned warrior at 16, Rupert championed the cause of his uncle and his pretty French queen against Cromwell and an angry Parliament. The story of this strange man who always fought for others is told with a wealth of detail and fine character drawing. It was earned from critics the tribute of one "of the most growing novels of our time."

Two Honored with Life Memberships in Legion Auxiliary

Mrs. Caroline Collins and Mrs. Janet Woodington were honored at the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Tuesday evening when they were presented with life memberships in the Bert S. Crossland Unit 170. Mrs. Collins active in community service and hospital work for many years and Mrs. Woodington as unit chaplain for the past seven years have merited the esteem of every member of the organization. Audie Modglin, president of the Auxiliary made the presentation following a dinner in the Legion hall.

At the business session following the dinner plans for the year were outlined. Reports were given by Alice Thompson, membership chairman and by Ella Robinson, finance chairman. Convention reports were read by Lucille Lewellen, Fan Wilkes, Daisy Watson and Olivia Lee.
