Election Cost: $1 Per Voter

It will cost Los Angeles county $1 per voter, or $1,400,000 for elections this year, registrar of voters William M. Kerr told the board of supervisors today.

A total of 765 different ballots must be printed and 85 different ballots for each political party, Kerr said. This is made necessary by the number of congressional assembly, sub-provisional and other districts, he explained. The mailing of sample ballots to prospective voters alone will cost from 27 to 30 cents each, Kerr declared.

Registration for the county already has reached 1,255,197 which is only 141,409 less than the high mark of those qualified to vote in November before the general election this fall.

Democrats remain far in the lead with a total of 740,971 as compared to 424,176 Republicans. Registrations now are averaging about 500 a day and the deadline for the August 30 primary is July 21 while registration for the general election may be made up to Sept. 29.

Lomitan Bound for Sweden

Last Friday the 13th was a lucky day for Mr. and Mrs. Eld Hanson of Pennsylvania avenue in Lomita. It was on that day that they started on a trip that is taking them to Sweden—the realization of the dreams of years for Hanson. They left on one of the Santa Fe's streamliners for New York where they were to sail this week for Stockholm and a four-months' sojourn in Sweden, Norway, Denmark and other European countries.

Hanson will visit with his parents whom he has not seen for many years. While they are away, Mr. and Mrs. Hanson's two sons and a daughter will "keep the home fires burning."

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Templeton of Keystone, visited Sunday in Riverside and San Bernardino.

Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Lancaster, 1503 Post avenue, left Sunday on a motor trip to York, Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Modglin, 1629 Cota avenue, attended a dinner party given by E. C. Lovell at Lakewood Country club, Monday evening.

Future Farmers at State Meet

Six members of the Torrance chapter of Future Farmers of America attended the annual convention and state judging finals held at San Luis Obispo last week-end. Joe Bay, Wilbur Franklin and Masaharu Hata were in the economic entomology contest, Yasuo Fukui, Harold Treize and Thomas Zumwalt entered the poultry contest.

The boys had some valuable experience and became acquainted with the exceptional possibilities for specialized training offered at the California Polytechnic school.

The "Cal-Poly" chapter of Future Farmers was host to more than 800 vocational agriculture students from all over California. The visitors were housed in National Guard tents, eight cots to a squad, each with an instructor. The local boys traveled in a Los Angeles Board of Education bus with representatives from Hamilton, Van Nuys, San Fernando and Canoga Park high schools and their faculty advisors.

CREDIT TO COUNCIL

The writer of this letter is highly elated with the work of the present city council in the dedication of this city to character building of our children and by setting before them a picture of a promise fulfilled.

These men who are now members of the city council made promises on a political platform and immediately went to work to fulfill that promise. This proves that we who elected them and those who did not vote for them should now get behind that wagon and push. We have long been in need of a recreational center that will do justice to the city in which we live and to take our children off the streets and put their minds to work on constructive and health building recreation. I learned that John V. Murray and Leonard Young traveled all of last Sunday investigating from the smallest recreation park to the most expensive in order to profit by experiences of others and to give to us the best facilities at the lowest cost.

How many of our people of Torrance have ever visited our recreation-building on Arlington avenue, across from the city park, and seen the work that not only the children do, but adults as well? May I suggest that you visit that place at your earliest opportunity and be surprised at the industry of these people. My children prevailed upon me to visit them where they were there and I was astonished to see the work that is done with so little to do with.

In closing may I say that I am not attempting to be looked upon by the city council with favor for this letter, so I am requesting the editor to withhold my name and sign it merely

U. P. Resumes Limited Schedule

As a result of increased travel to Southern California during the past few weeks, coupled with an anticipated peak in summer visitors, A. V. Kipp, assistant traffic manager of the Union Pacific Railroad, said this week that the all-pullman, non-extra fare Los Angeles Limited would resume its previous schedule between Southern California and Chicago on May 22.

"We are now running the Challenger in two sections every day," Kipp pointed out, "and with the many added attractions scheduled in Southern California we have found it necessary to resume the regular schedule of the Los Angeles Limited."

Oil Hunt In South Torrance Field Is Moving Southward

Someone is going to bring in a producer that will develop more than 1,000 barrels. Some who have reboiled to 5,000 feet or better are beginning to plan oil drilling still deeper in search of the increased production.

Doyle Petroleum is believed to be engaged in sinking one of its rebores far below the present extent of drilling operations, but no authoritative information can be obtained on this report. Everett Grubbs, one of the original deep-sanders in the field, appears content to sink his successive wells to the present limit. He is averaging 160 barrels at his No. 1, 140 at his No. 2 and around 200 at his last hole, Charles Camp, located between the Star Petroleum and Copeland on 233rd is starting his third well.

Fossilized Fish Found

The "hard-luck" story of the week came from the Perkins well west of Pennsylvania on 229th. Workers on that well, in which a number of local residents hold percentages, lost 33 strands of four-inch drill pipe (about 2,800 feet) and the 8 1/2-inch liner when the string collapsed at 1,000 feet. Crews were still trying to fish out the pipe today. The hole was finished and the well was due to be brought in when the line collapse occurred, it was reported.

Best "Fish-story-of-the-week" came from Dewey Quigley at the Patton-Torrance Oil company office where he was exhibiting cores showing portions of a fossilized fish brought up from 4,721 feet from the Doyle No. 1 recently. The fossil was recovered from the Miocene strata.

DOYLE ENDS TERM AS AGENCY PREXY

Jack J. Doyle, who is one of the most extensive developers of the local field, retired during the past week as president of the Oil Producer's Agency, an independent association. He became a member of the Agency's Ways and Means committee with Neil H. Anderson, another who is active in the South Torrance area.

An examination to fill the position of rural carrier at Lomita will be held there next month, according to Postmaster Birda Paddock. Receipt of applications will close June 3.

Aged Lomitan Succumbs

Death claimed one of Lomita's best-known oldsters Tuesday morning when George Williams, believed to be about 79 years of age, expired suddenly at his home, 2468 1/2 Woodward street. Mr. Williams, who had no known relatives, was a familiar figure on the streets of Lomita, as with his cane and friendly smile he passed the time of day with all who stopped to greet him.

Where he was born, what his occupation was, incidents of his life are all obscure. But he was a man who took great pride in his personal appearance and his unflinching good humor cheered many a Lomitan as he ambled about the business district or sat and talked with friends.

The body is at A. M. Gamby's Mortuary, pending arrangements by the public administrator to dispose of his small estate.

Stripped, Stolen Cars Recovered

Two stripped Chevrolet cars were recovered here Monday within a few hours after they had been stolen in Los Angeles and Long Beach. A sedan was found in the Hollywood Riviera district Monday night by deputy sheriffs. It was taken in Los Angeles. A coach, stolen in Long Beach from a Glendale owner, was found near the General Petroleum refinery off Madrona avenue. The owners claimed the machines yesterday.
